YOUNG MARRIED WOMAN SWALLOWED POISON AFTER FAMILY TROUBLE

It Is Alleged She Quarreled With Her Husband and Then Took a Dose of Carbolic Acid.

Sorrowing over a quarrel with her husband early this morning and because she was tired of life, according to report, Mrs. Sadie Craig, boarding at the home of Mrs. Cupp, on Third street, near Jackson street, attempted to commit suicide at about 9 o'clock by taking a dose of carbolic acid.

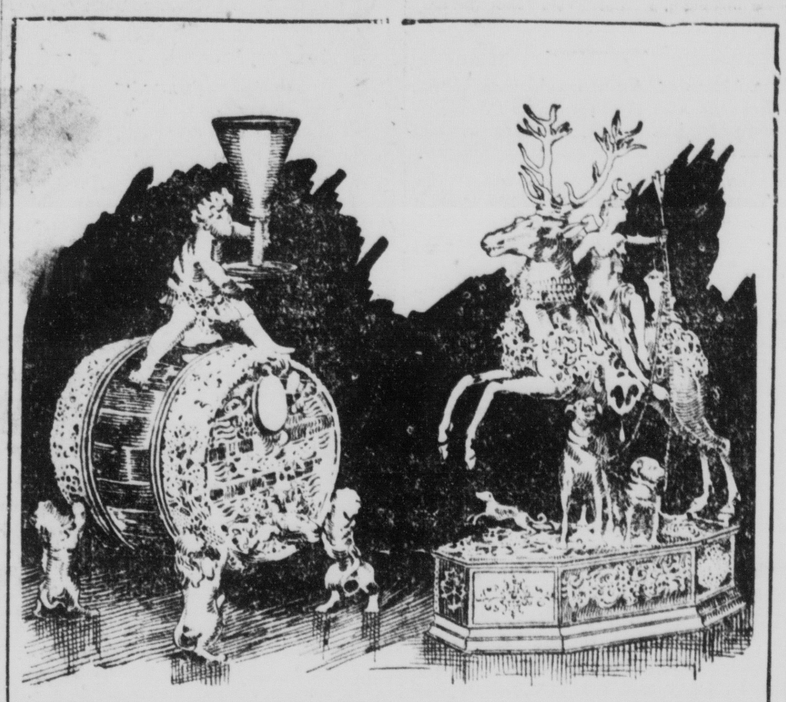
Immediately after applying a bottle of the deadly poison to her lips she commenced screaming loudly. In a moment Mrs. Cupp was at her side. Seeing the bottle on the floor at the side of the woman, Mrs. Cupp quickly realized the situation and hurried to the nearest telephone, summoning Dr. Hobbs.

The physician soon arrived and upon an examination pronounced the woman in no serious condition.

Mrs. Craig is beautiful and only 20 years of age. She is reported not to seem in the least repentent over her rash act, and states that unless she and her husband live more peaceably together hereafter that she will undoubtedly make another attempt to end her days.

Mr. Craig is employ in a local pottery and has only been in the city a short time. It is said that he and his wife have quarreled for months and that her act this morning was only what she threatened to do long ago.

A big crowd of neighbors surrounded the house upon learning of the woman's actions and many exaggerated stories were sent abroad as to her condition. She will undoubtedly recover, but will likely carry a scarred face.



PRICELESS TREASURES OWNED BY J. PIERPONT MORGAN.

At a recent exhibition of silver work, at which the value of the exhibits was estimated at $10,000,000, the specimens which attracted most attention were the two shown in the illustration. These are the property of J. Pierpont Morgan. Each is said to be worth many thousands of dollars. One of them dates from the sixteenth and one from the seventeenth century.

OFFICERS KEPT BUSY HUNTING WITNESSES WHO ARE UNWILLING

Numerous Warrants Out For Those Who Failed to Obey Their Summons—Lively Experience.

Bench warrants galore are being issued in Lisbon for the arrest of subpoenaed witnesses who have failed to appear at the appointed time before the grand jury. Several residents of the East End have been made aware of the fact only to their sorrow. Armed with three warrents of the kind, Deputy Sheriff Porter of Lisbon, and Constable Powell started out last night at 10 o'clock for the purpose of apprehending Samuel Sellers, Benjamin Day and Chris Krafft. The trio had been subpoenaed and not only failed to put in their appearance but failed to present a plausible excuse. The trio live in the East End and are well known pottery workers.

After a search of more than two hours the officers gave up their hunt for Sellers and Day but they got a clew as to the whereabouts of Krafft and had an amusing time in landing him. Going to the house where he resides they knocked for admission. For a moment all was still but when Constable Powell applied the butt of his revolver with great force against the flimsy door panel chirps from all parts were heard. "Is Chris Krafft there?" asked the constable, "No, he isn't," was the reply, "and if he were we would not let you know it."" The officers had had too much experience to be run off in a manner like that and again applied the harsh knocks.

Fearing that there would be trouble the members of the household decided to open, and cautiously Mrs. Krafft thrust her head out of a window to see the cause of the disturbance.

EFFORT TO GAIN A RECOGNITION

Knights of Labor of Trenton Confer With Manufacturing Potters.

LITTLE ENCOURAGEMENT

Is Given at a Joint Conference on Uniform Scale—Brotherhood And the Operating Potters on a Very Friendly Footing.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Trenton, N. J., October 4.—The Knights of Labor organization, which has been running in opposition to the National Brotherhood of Operative potters for two years, is making strenuous efforts to obtain recognition from the manufacturers. Last week it sent a special committee to wait upon several prominent members of the Trenton Manufacturing Potters' association, with the object of forcing the adoption of the uniform list which was submitted to the manufacturers last April. A joint meeting of representatives of both organizations was held and from all accounts, the insurgents were given little encouragement. The list is confined solely to the jiggermen and it is said that many of the articles which it embraces were objected to by the manufacturers. Behind their objections is a refusal to deal with the Knights of Labor, which, by the way, as far as the influence it exercises is concerned, is on its last legs. The Brotherhood has on several occasions during the past year received requests in person from operators to settle shop disputes which is evidence that it is recognized as the controlling body.

The question of installing a uniform price list in the local plants, was the platform over which the jiggermen broke away from the Brotherhood and formed an independent organization which afterwards become a part of the Knights of Labor.

The friendly feeling which at present exists between the Brotherhood and the manufacturers grew out of the conference last June, when a uniform price list was adopted for the sanitary plants. The Brotherhood has for its staunchest supporter the Trenton Potteries company, which has been instrumental during the past few months in settling several shop disputes with the men themselves and in one instance discharged a foreman because he insisted in applying his version to some provisions in the list.

The board of directors of the Trenton Free Public library is in receipt of a communication from the heads of the Carnegie library, East Liverpool, asking for a list of the books on pottery subjects which were installed a short time ago.

The first kiln at the new plant of William Clayton & Co., manufacturers of porcelain goods will be fired this week. The firm reports that it has several large orders ahead.

Will Probated.

Lisbon, October 4.—(Special)—The will of the late Elizabeth McIntosh, of Madison township, has been admitted to probate, and Samuel M. Smith, was appointed executor. William Bailey, John Bailey, and Samuel Connell, were made appraisers.

Dr. Sparks spoke in part as follows: "I do not come as a lecturer, but rather as a teacher of American history that we may see the cause and effect the decentralizing as well as the uniting influences which affect so materially the growth of our country. These lectures will cover a period from 1760 to 1800, but from 1760 to 1766 the period was distinguished by one predominant man, Benjamin Franklin, who figured largely in the making of America.

MERIT SYSTEMS STAY

In the Code, According to House Vote—Bribery to Be Punished.

Columbus, October 4.—(Special)—The house yesterday voted to let the merit system stay in the code. An amendment by Hypers, of Springfield, providing for the removal of all officers for bribery, was adopted. The mayor is given authority to suspend an officer for such a charge. The personnel of the conference committee which will try to settle the code question is the subject of much gossip.

The house is through with the bill, save that part which the committee on repeals is examining, but it will be voted upon not later than Tuesday. The only important point of difference between the two bodies is over the matter of organization of cities. The house favors single headed boards and the seate the multiple headed boards.

THE COUNTY JAIL AGAIN CONDEMNED

Grand Jury Inspects It and Finds It a Disgrace to the County.

IMPROVEMENTS RECENTLY

Have Added Something to the Comfort of Inmates, But More Are Necessary—The Jail Population Reduced to 22 Today.

Lisbon, October 4. — (Special.) — The grand jury this morning made its regular inspection and condemnation of the old rookery known as the county jail. Sheriff Leonard and wife are keeping the premises in as good order as is possible, under the circumstances, and were highly complimented by the jury. The inspecting officials first went through the upper part of the building, originally designed as the residence part exclusively, but later partly equipped with cells to accommodate more prisoners.

The cell rooms, although freshly whitewashed and cleaned, with lossened plastering, presented an uninviting appearance. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard have made a great improvement in the kitchen, by putting in a fine new range. In the basement, originally intended for all the prisoners, the jurors lined up along the corridors and witnessed the transfer of all the prisoners from their lounging corridor to the cells and back, showing how the turnkey is handicapped in handling them. The basement is in as good a condition as it can be made, but the air is rather foul, though not as bad as a few weeks ago when filth from an old cesspool seeped through into the front corridor to a depth of two inches in a night, causing most unhealthy conditions. This trouble has been remedied. The stables were found in good shape. Sheriff Leonard has five horses and several carriages.

The grand jury, as usual, decided the old structure a disgrace to the county. The number of inmates will be reduced to 22 this afternoon when the sheriff will take William Daugherty, of Salem, to the Canton work house.

CONTEMPT OF COURT

Charged Against an East Liverpool Man Arrested And Taken to Lisbon.

Lisbon, October 4. — (Special.) — Chris Krafft, of East Liverpool, was arrested there last night by Sheriff Leonard for contempt of court. He was cited before the grand jury and failed to appear. He was brought here at 3 o'clock this morning.

Back From the Phillipines.

Lisbon, October 4.—(Special)—Byron Culler, of Elkrun township, arrived in the city yesterday after a four year's service in the U. S. army in China and the Phillipines.

MERIT SYSTEMS STAY

In the Code, According to House Vote—Bribery to Be Punished.

Columbus, October 4.—(Special)—The house yesterday voted to let the merit system stay in the code. An amendment by Hypers, of Springfield, providing for the removal of all officers for bribery, was adopted. The mayor is given authority to suspend an officer for such a charge. The personnel of the conference committee which will try to settle the code question is the subject of much gossip.

The house is through with the bill, save that part which the committee on repeals is examining, but it will be voted upon not later than Tuesday. The only important point of difference between the two bodies is over the matter of organization of cities. The house favors single headed boards and the seate the multiple headed boards.

THE COUNTY JAIL AGAIN CONDEMNED

Have Added Something to the Comfort of Inmates, But More Are Necessary—The Jail Population Reduced to 22 Today.

Lisbon, October 4. — (Special.) — The grand jury this morning made its regular inspection and condemnation of the old rookery known as the county jail. Sheriff Leonard and wife are keeping the premises in as good order as is possible, under the circumstances, and were highly complimented by the jury. The inspecting officials first went through the upper part of the building, originally designed as the residence part exclusively, but later partly equipped with cells to accommodate more prisoners.

The cell rooms, although freshly whitewashed and cleaned, with lossened plastering, presented an uninviting appearance. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard have made a great improvement in the kitchen, by putting in a fine new range. In the basement, originally intended for all the prisoners, the jurors lined up along the corridors and witnessed the transfer of all the prisoners from their lounging corridor to the cells and back, showing how the turnkey is handicapped in handling them. The basement is in as good a condition as it can be made, but the air is rather foul, though not as bad as a few weeks ago when filth from an old cesspool seeped through into the front corridor to a depth of two inches in a night, causing most unhealthy conditions. This trouble has been remedied. The stables were found in good shape. Sheriff Leonard has five horses and several carriages.

The grand jury, as usual, decided the old structure a disgrace to the county. The number of inmates will be reduced to 22 this afternoon when the sheriff will take William Daugherty, of Salem, to the Canton work house.

CONTEMPT OF COURT

Charged Against an East Liverpool Man Arrested And Taken to Lisbon.

Lisbon, October 4. — (Special.) — Chris Krafft, of East Liverpool, was arrested there last night by Sheriff Leonard for contempt of court. He was cited before the grand jury and failed to appear. He was brought here at 3 o'clock this morning.

Back From the Phillipines.

Lisbon, October 4.—(Special)—Byron Culler, of Elkrun township, arrived in the city yesterday after a four year's service in the U. S. army in China and the Phillipines.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE THIS.

Space has been given in this newspaper from time to time relative to the shortage of kilnmen and other workmen in the potteries of this district, and as was to be expected, steps have been taken at last to relieve the present depleted ranks of the operatives. In order that the ranks of the operatives might be swelled at the earliest possible moment, a tour of the local potteries was made yesterday afternoon by representatives of the Brotherhood and also of the Western Manufacturing Potters' association The committee representing the manufacturers was composed of H. P. Knoblock, of the Dresden Pottery company and S. M. Ferguson, general manager of the East Liverpool Potteries company. The interests of the Brotherhood were looked after by John T. Wood, a kilnman at the Diamond, and Andwerw Brennan, a member of local No. 24, of Wellsville. At each plant visited statistics were obtained relative to the shortage of workmen in the kiln department, and it will be some days before the complete report will be finished and presented to the heads of both sides. A meeting with this end in view will be held within a few days, and the task of compiling the report will no doubt be a tedious one. There is a shortage in all departments and not alone in the kiln department. There is a shortage of dippers and a shortage of pressers. Vacant benches may be found in other departments, as well as those mentioned. It has been given out from a most reliable source that there is at least a shortage of 100 kilnmen in the city. Taking other departments into consideration, it is fair to presume that permanent employment could be given at the present time to not less than 200 skilled pottery workmen in this district. There is also a shortage of workmen in the out-of-town potteries, and reckoning the vacancies in these shops, another hundred vacant positions may be added to the list. The subject of "shortage" has become of such moment that both manufacturers and representatives of the Brotherhood have taken it up jointly. That the depressed condition will be relieved there is not the slightest doubt. There is also a shortage of small help, but of course very little can be done to offset this condition. On this account many jiggermen are compelled to remain idle several days during a week, and cannot draw a full week's pay. According to the action of the last convention neither national officers nor the executive board have power to act. Whatever might be done to relieve the shortage will have to be submitted to a referendum vote of the locals. There is little doubt but the members at large will see the necessity of taking such action as will supply the number of kilnmen necessary to operate the potteries.

SEEKS AN INJUNCTION.

Halsey M. Barrett, counsel for William R. Wilcox, a heavy holder of preferred stock in the Trenton Potteries company, otherwise the Trenton pottery trust, who brought suit in the court of chancery, at Trenton, N. J., before Vice Chancellor Stevens to restrain that corporation from executing a proposition for a funding plan has submitted argument opposing the contention of the defendant firm that the funding plan was designed to operate advantageously to all of the stockholders and averring that not only was this not so, but that the minority stockholders who dissented from the proposition were harmfully discriminated against in favor of the assenting majority. Mr. Barrett was opposed by former Attorney General John W. Griggs and R. V. Lindabury, representing the Trenton Potteries company. What was asked by the defendant company, Mr. Barrett said, was legal permission to unconstitutionally alter the relations existing between the directors in order to liquidate an obligation occasioned by several years' poor business when dividends could not be paid. A request for an injunction concluded M. Barrett's argument. Decision was reserved till later.

AN ADDITIONAL PRESS.

The additional printing press that is to be installed at the Wallace & Chetwynd pottery by the East Liverpool Potteries company has been completed and a few days ago was delivered at the plant. It is now in the packing shed, and will be installed in that part of the plant which was formerly used as a decorated warehouse. By doing this the company will greatly increase its capacity for decorating ware.

DEIDRICK WAS WRATHY.

By reason of the pipe line running from the city mains to Dresden pottery in construction at Salineville work will be delayed not less than sixty days. The making of moulds was to have started Monday morning, but the water works trustees have neglected to order the pipe for the line. When Mr. Deidrick found that the line could not be placed in for four weeks, he turned over a car of plaster of paris to East Liverpool parties. A Salineville writer says Deidrick is very wrathy about the line not being in place before this.

BUSINESS IS GOOD.

The Chelsea, at New Cumberland, is shipping large quantities of ware in cars, not using barrels or casks. At least 58,000 dozens of teas were shipped last month, a large amount going to Chicago. It was scheme ware. A kiln a day is being turned out, and it is said that it will take more than a year to fill the present order, with the plant running to its full capacity. The Chelsea's pay for two weeks ending last Saturday was $7,600. This is said to be the largest pay ever made by an eight kiln pottery in the valley.

HEAVYWEIGHT PLAYERS.

New Castle will be represented on the gridiron by two finest teams, the Shenango Athletics and the New Castle High school team. The latter has already games scheduled with Westminster, Grove City and other colleges The former team comprises employes of the Shenango pottery, who expect to have a full schedule of games with teams of 140 or 145 pounds in weight within a few days. A number of former East Liverpool players are said to be in the Shenango team.

HIGHWAYMEN AT SEBRING.

John Murray, a presser at the Oliver pottery at Sebring, had a thrilling experience near home a few nights ago. He got off a car about 9 o'clock and was crossing the railroad tracks on his way home when he was grasped by a man who told him emphatically that he wanted what he had. Murray jerked away and gave him a sledge hammer blow with his fist. The assailant was knocked down, and Murray, glad of his success, hurriedly passed on.

COING TO CROOKSVILLE.

While Will Tritt, general manager of the new Crooksville pottery, was in the city last week, he hired among other help a mouldmaker, who will take charge of the new shop at that new plant, Harry Fisher, who is at present employed at Brunt's. Louis Cochrane, whose time expires this evening, will also go to Crooksville, it is said. Commencing Monday Brunt's mould shop will be in charge of Lawrence Maley.

ALTOGETHER DIFFERENT.

Several papers published in the northern part of the county, in commenting upon the new dinner set that is to be placed in the White House, claim that Mrs. Roosevelt declined to have East Liverpool ware in the White House. The truth of the matter was that the making of this order was refused by the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles company, it being offered while President McKinley was in office.

KILNDRAWERS' MEETING.

The regular weekly meeting of Kilndrawers' local No. 17 will be held this evening in Brotherhood hall. Several applications for membership are to be considered at this session.

A NEW JIGGERMAN.

William Baker, who has been employed as a jiggerman at the East Palestine pottery, has left that town, and is now located at Canonsburg. He has taken a similar position at that plant.

SEBRING GROWING.

Wednesday morning a son was born to Mrs. and Mrs. George E. Sebring, of the Sebring Pottery company, at Sebring.

Kisses.

An old sea captain, under the impression that he was saying a good thing, asked a lady passenger why men never kiss one another, while ladies waste a world of kisses on feminine faces.

"Because," the lady replied, "the men have something better to kiss and the women haven't."

The Inevitable.

"Do as I tell you," Tommy's mamma cried. "It's about time you realized the futility of struggling against the inevitable. Do you know what that means?"

"Yes'm," replied Tommy. "It means there's no use o' your washin' my hands an' face 'cause they'll only get dirty again."

DIVIDES DEMOCRATS.

Tom Johnson's Circus Tactics Trouble His Party.

HIS RULE AROUSES RESENTMENT.

The Abuse of Auditors Angers Their Friends and His Arrogant Dictatorship Disgusts Decent Men of All Parties.

Tom Johnson, in his circus speech at Delphos said:

"Last night we told the people of Van West how Berry, their Democratic auditor, had robbed them. Berry is not worth having his record repeated."

Auditor Berry has been a life-long, earnest Democratic worker, and the tirade of abuse Johnson heaped upon him will not prompt party harmony in Van Wert county. The Democrats of other counties will have like cause of resentment for their friends, for as the Van Wert Bulletin says:

"Was ever such a piece of bossism before enforced in any county in Ohio? Tom Johnson, a big, bloated aristocrat, who made his money in trusts and railways and bossed the Ohio Democratic convention, comes to Van Wert county and bosses the affairs of the county Democrats. He dictates who shall stay on the ticket and who shall get off. He is the party. In his tent he yelled: "Auditor Berry said he would not vote for ME!" What claim has ME on any man's vote? ME is not a candidate. The Van Wert county Democrats who assembled in convention and nominated a ticket have no rights Tom Johnsonism is bound to respect. Tom brushes them aside like dead flies. Thanks to American manhood, there are Democrats who will not submit to such tyranny —who will not bow their heads and worship Tom Johnson's money bags."

But this was not all the trouble torn up in Van Wert county by Tyrant Tom. He also attacked the Democratic candidate for auditor, Henry Troup, as well as Auditor Berry, and while the new man, for fear of the election, succumbed to the pressure, yet it was with reluctance and humiliation that must make him bitter, after all. This part of the matter is thus told by The Bulletin:

Henry Troup has bowed his head and pledged his support to Tom Johnson and his theories. When Johnson came to Van Wert, Mr. Troup followed the advice of some of his friends and was conveniently absent—out of town and out of reach of Tom and his meeting. Tom was wild with rage. He stormed and threatened. In his speech he was unmercifully abusive.

Tom, who is twenty times a millionaire, is touring the state, at an enormous expense, making an issue of railway taxation. Tom strengthens his cause in close counties, by promising to put up large sums of money to carry the elections. He had his arrangements all made in Van Wert county, but when he arrived here his plans were spoiled. Some shrewd Democrats, who believe in the teachings of the party and do not believe in Tom Johnson, had influenced Henry Troup, the Democratic candidate for county auditor, to turn the cold shoulder to the Johnson circus. Tom raved and swore he would not contribute one cent to the Van Wert county fund unless Troup came to time. The head of the county Democratic committee, who was looking forward with great expectation for the big roll, and the men who revolve around about his orbit were scared. There was a commotion. Something had to be done. What happened at about this time is told by a staff correspondent of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, who is traveling with the Johnson circus, riding in the Johnson automobile, sleeping in the Johnson tent and eating at the Johnson table, and writing up daily accounts of the performances. A dispatch from Delphos to the Sunday Plain Dealer tells all about Mr. Troup and his part in the show. The dispatch says:

"The mayor's attack on these two prominent Democrats, Berry and Troup, was very fierce, and it stirred up an unprecedented turmoil within the Van Wert Democracy. Troup, the candidate, was plainly commanded to come to Delphos tonight and answer Mayor Johnson's questions or else get off the ticket. A number of county committeemen declared their intention of resigning unless Troup came to time. Among these was J. F. Lattanner, chairman of the Van Wert county committee, and formerly a member of the state executive committee.

"Under this pressure Troup hitched up his sorrel mare and drove to Delphos this afternoon. He sought out Mayor Johnson and declared his willingness to answer all questions which the mayor might propound. He explained his unwillingness to answer the mayor's demands at Van Wert in this manner:

"'You demand that I assess the steam railroads at 60 per cent. I would not agree to this because many of the farms in Van Wert county are assessed at only 33 per cent. I am willing to assess railroad property as high as other property, but no higher.'

"Mr. Johnson said that this statement was entirely just, and all that he demanded. Troup therefore came to the tent and repeated this statement. He also promised not to ride on a pass."

The above takes Mr. Troup away from the Democratic nomination and makes him Johnson's man. He was pledged to the Democracy of Van Wert county, but that was not enough. Now he is pledged to Tom Johnson. Tom is constantly changing. Two years ago he pledged himself to the single tax theory, to the Henry George idea that all taxes should be levied on lands. How long will it take Tom to work Troup up to the George standard? If Henry Troup is going to be a crank, he must be a good crank or get off the ticket.

ELECTRIFIED HOUSES.

The Simple Explanation of a Very Ordinary Phenomenon.

An instance of nonfamiliarity with simple scientific facts is illustrated by an article that goes the rounds of the press once or twice annually—namely, the story of the electrified house. The article usually states that some one has discovered that everything he touches in his house—the radiators, picture frames, banquet lamps, etc.—gives him an electric shock; hence he fears there is some connection between the arc light wires and the water pipes near his residence. The electric light inspector is therefore summoned and reports that the wires of his company are intact and that the electricity must come from some other source.

It does not dawn on any of the people consulted that the discoverer of the phenomenon is unconsciously performing one of the simplest and oldest of electrostatic experiments, the shuffling of his shoes over the dry carpet raising the potential of his body to several thousand volts, which discharge at every opportunity. One may even get electric discharges from his knuckles against the brass lock of a handbag which he may be carrying while walking on a stone pavement during cold, dry weather.

But, dismissing newspaper science, it is somewhat astonishing, in view of the many ways in which in cold, dry countries electricity is unintentionally developed and manifested by sparking, that the first knowledge concerning this phenomenon did not come to the ancients in this way rather than by the attraction of light substances by amber. The explanation of this, however, may be that the scientists of bygone days did not reside in cold, dry countries.—Cassier's Magazine.

Perfumes In Ancient Days.

Old as the history of the world itself is that of the queen of flowers. The ancient Greeks and Romans reveled in roses. They were used lavishly at their feasts. In the time of the republic the people had their cups of Falernian wine swimming with blooms, and the Spartan soldiers after the battle of Cirrha refused to drink any wine that was not perfumed with roses, while at the regatta of Baiæ the whole surface of the Lucrine lake was strewn with flowers.

DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE.

Prospects Bright For Continued Activity In Business.

New York, Oct. 4.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade, issued today, said in part:

Distribution of merchandise shows no diminution, and prospects are bright for continued activity. Dealers in many lines are urgent for prompt shipments, calling upon jobbers and manufacturers for goods already overdue. This indication of reduced stocks is a god sign, and tends to sustain quotations. Western reports are especially favorable, and the early marketing of cotton has brought distinct improvement at the south. Voluntary advances in wages have been announced in a number of instances, while the labor situation is more satisfactory, although not entirely free from controversy. Transportation facilities have improved in the coke region, where congestion was becoming severe, and railway earnings thus far reported for September exceed last year's by 94 per cent.

Pig iron furnaces are receiving larger consignments of coke, and there is less interruption because of fuel scarcity. The situation is by no means satisfactory, however, and production of iron and steel would expand considerably if facilities were normal. Much of the relief has come from large imports, the extent of which is not generally appreciated.

Wool averaged slightly higher in sympathy with the London sale, but further declines occurred in hides, and leather has become dull.

Murray jerked away and gave him a sledge hammer blow with his fist. The assailant was knocked down, and Murray, glad of his success, hurriedly passed on.

COING TO CROOKSVILLE.

While Will Tritt, general manager of the new Crooksville pottery, was in the city last week, he hired among other help a mouldmaker, who will take charge of the new shop at that new plant, Harry Fisher, who is at present employed at Brunt's. Louis Cochrane, whose time expires this evening, will also go to Crooksville, it is said. Commencing Monday Brunt's mould shop will be in charge of Lawrence Maley.

ALTOGETHER DIFFERENT.

Several papers published in the northern part of the county, in commenting upon the new dinner set that is to be placed in the White House, claim that Mrs. Roosevelt declined to have East Liverpool ware in the White House. The truth of the matter was that the making of this order was refused by the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles company, it being offered while President McKinley was in office.

KILNDRAWERS' MEETING.

The regular weekly meeting of Kilndrawers' local No. 17 will be held this evening in Brotherhood hall. Several applications for membership are to be considered at this session.

A NEW JIGGERMAN.

William Baker, who has been employed as a jiggerman at the East Palestine pottery, has left that town, and is now located at Canonsburg. He has taken a similar position at that plant.

SEBRING GROWING.

Wednesday morning a son was born to Mrs. and Mrs. George E. Sebring, of the Sebring Pottery company, at Sebring.

Kisses.

An old sea captain, under the impression that he was saying a good thing, asked a lady passenger why men never kiss one another, while ladies waste a world of kisses on feminine faces.

"Because," the lady replied, "the men have something better to kiss and the women haven't."

The Inevitable.

"Do as I tell you," Tommy's mamma cried. "It's about time you realized the futility of struggling against the inevitable. Do you know what that means?"

"Yes'm," replied Tommy. "It means there's no use o' your washin' my hands an' face 'cause they'll only get dirty again."

DIVIDES DEMOCRATS.

Tom Johnson's Circus Tactics Trouble His Party.

HIS RULE AROUSES RESENTMENT.

The Abuse of Auditors Angers Their Friends and His Arrogant Dictatorship Disgusts Decent Men of All Parties.

Tom Johnson, in his circus speech at Delphos said:

"Last night we told the people of Van West how Berry, their Democratic auditor, had robbed them. Berry is not worth having his record repeated."

Auditor Berry has been a life-long, earnest Democratic worker, and the tirade of abuse Johnson heaped upon him will not prompt party harmony in Van Wert county. The Democrats of other counties will have like cause of resentment for their friends, for as the Van Wert Bulletin says:

"Was ever such a piece of bossism before enforced in any county in Ohio? Tom Johnson, a big, bloated aristocrat, who made his money in trusts and railways and bossed the Ohio Democratic convention, comes to Van Wert county and bosses the affairs of the county Democrats. He dictates who shall stay on the ticket and who shall get off. He is the party. In his tent he yelled: "Auditor Berry said he would not vote for ME!" What claim has ME on any man's vote? ME is not a candidate. The Van Wert county Democrats who assembled in convention and nominated a ticket have no rights Tom Johnsonism is bound to respect. Tom brushes them aside like dead flies. Thanks to American manhood, there are Democrats who will not submit to such tyranny—who will not bow their heads and worship Tom Johnson's money bags."

But this was not all the trouble torn up in Van Wert county by Tyrant Tom. He also attacked the Democratic candidate for auditor, Henry Troup, as well as Auditor Berry, and while the new man, for fear of the election, succumbed to the pressure, yet it was with reluctance and humiliation that must make him bitter, after all. This part of the matter is thus told by The Bulletin:

Henry Troup has bowed his head and pledged his support to Tom Johnson and his theories. When Johnson came to Van Wert, Mr. Troup followed the advice of some of his friends and was conveniently absent—out of town and out of reach of Tom and his meeting. Tom was wild with rage. He stormed and threatened. In his speech he was unmercifully abusive.

Tom, who is twenty times a millionaire, is touring the state, at an enormous expense, making an issue of railway taxation. Tom strengthens his cause in close counties, by promising to put up large sums of money to carry the elections. He had his arrangements all made in Van Wert county, but when he arrived here his plans were spoiled. Some shrewd Democrats, who believe in the teachings of the party and do not believe in Tom Johnson, had influenced Henry Troup, the Democratic candidate for county auditor, to turn the cold shoulder to the Johnson circus. Tom raved and swore he would not contribute one cent to the Van Wert county fund unless Troup came to time. The head of the county Democratic committee, who was looking forward with great expectation for the big roll, and the men who revolve around about his orbit were scared. There was a commotion. Something had to be done. What happened at about this time is told by a staff correspondent of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, who is traveling with the Johnson circus, riding in the Johnson automobile, sleeping in the Johnson tent and eating at the Johnson table, and writing up daily accounts of the performances. A dispatch from Delphos to the Sunday Plain Dealer tells all about Mr. Troup and his part in the show. The dispatch says:

"The mayor's attack on these two prominent Democrats, Berry and Troup, was very fierce, and it stirred up an unprecedented turmoil within the Van Wert Democracy. Troup, the candidate, was plainly commanded to come to Delphos tonight and answer Mayor Johnson's questions or else get off the ticket. A number of county committeemen declared their intention of resigning unless Troup came to time. Among these was J. F. Lattanner, chairman of the Van Wert county committee, and formerly a member of the state executive committee.

"Under this pressure Troup hitched up his sorrel mare and drove to Delphos this afternoon. He sought out Mayor Johnson and declared his willingness to answer all questions which the mayor might propound. He explained his unwillingness to answer the mayor's demands at Van Wert in this manner:

"'You demand that I assess the steam railroads at 60 per cent. I would not agree to this because many of the farms in Van Wert county are assessed at only 33 per cent. I am willing to assess railroad property as high as other property, but no higher.'

"Mr. Johnson said that this statement was entirely just, and all that he demanded. Troup therefore came to the tent and repeated this statement. He also promised not to ride on a pass."

The above takes Mr. Troup away from the Democratic nomination and makes him Johnson's man. He was pledged to the Democracy of Van Wert county, but that was not enough. Now he is pledged to Tom Johnson. Tom is constantly changing. Two years ago he pledged himself to the single tax theory, to the Henry George idea that all taxes should be levied on lands. How long will it take Tom to work Troup up to the George standard? If Henry Troup is going to be a crank, he must be a good crank or get off the ticket.

ELECTRIFIED HOUSES.

The Simple Explanation of a Very Ordinary Phenomenon.

An instance of nonfamiliarity with simple scientific facts is illustrated by an article that goes the rounds of the press once or twice annually—namely, the story of the electrified house. The article usually states that some one has discovered that everything he touches in his house—the radiators, picture frames, banquet lamps, etc.—gives him an electric shock; hence he fears there is some connection between the arc light wires and the water pipes near his residence. The electric light inspector is therefore summoned and reports that the wires of his company are intact and that the electricity must come from some other source.

It does not dawn on any of the people consulted that the discoverer of the phenomenon is unconsciously performing one of the simplest and oldest of electrostatic experiments, the shuffling of his shoes over the dry carpet raising the potential of his body to several thousand volts, which discharge at every opportunity. One may even get electric discharges from his knuckles against the brass lock of a handbag which he may be carrying while walking on a stone pavement during cold, dry weather.

But, dismissing newspaper science, it is somewhat astonishing, in view of the many ways in which in cold, dry countries electricity is unintentionally developed and manifested by sparking, that the first knowledge concerning this phenomenon did not come to the ancients in this way rather than by the attraction of light substances by amber. The explanation of this, however, may be that the scientists of bygone days did not reside in cold, dry countries.—Cassier's Magazine.

Perfumes In Ancient Days.

Old as the history of the world itself is that of the queen of flowers. The ancient Greeks and Romans reveled in roses. They were used lavishly at their feasts. In the time of the republic the people had their cups of Falernian wine swimming with blooms, and the Spartan soldiers after the battle of Cirrha refused to drink any wine that was not perfumed with roses, while at the regatta of Baiæ the whole surface of the Lucrine lake was strewn with flowers.

DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE.

Prospects Bright For Continued Activity In Business.

New York, Oct. 4.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade, issued today, said in part:

Distribution of merchandise shows no diminution, and prospects are bright for continued activity. Dealers in many lines are urgent for prompt shipments, calling upon jobbers and manufacturers for goods already overdue. This indication of reduced stocks is a god sign, and tends to sustain quotations. Western reports are especially favorable, and the early marketing of cotton has brought distinct improvement at the south. Voluntary advances in wages have been announced in a number of instances, while the labor situation is more satisfactory, although not entirely free from controversy. Transportation facilities have improved in the coke region, where congestion was becoming severe, and railway earnings thus far reported for September exceed last year's by 94 per cent.

Pig iron furnaces are receiving larger consignments of coke, and there is less interruption because of fuel scarcity. The situation is by no means satisfactory, however, and production of iron and steel would expand considerably if facilities were normal. Much of the relief has come from large imports, the extent of which is not generally appreciated.

Wool averaged slightly higher in sympathy with the London sale, but further declines occurred in hides, and leather has become dull.

EAST END

PROTESTS POUR IN

From East Enders Against Assessments for Pennsylvania Avenue Improvements.

At the next meeting of council which will be held Tuesday evening, Attorney James Davis, of the East End, will be present to represent several hundred property owners who have been assessed for the improvement of Pennsylvania avenue. Since yesterday morning property owners have called at Attorney Davis' office by the dozens, signed a remonstrance against paying the assessment, and it is believed that by concerted effort many assessments will be cancelled. So far over 100 petitions have been signed by this number, and will be greatly increased before Tuesday evening.

It was stated this morning that the owners of Columbian park had been assessed in the neighborhood of $1,500. The McKinnon estate, which fronts on Pennsylvania avenue, has been assessed over $1,500. This estate is said to be worth at least $2,000 an acre. Notices of assessment have been forwarded to almost every property owner in the East End, and it is most likely that a remonstrance will be filed with council by all of these persons against paying the stated assessments. In the East End the question is the paramount one.

NEVER WILL BE BETTER

Opinion of His Physician About the Injured Dragon Boy.

Will little Michael Dragon, of Virginia avenue, East End, ever be able to arise from his bed, and play again? It is not likely. The boy was visited early this morning by Dr. Walter E. Mowen, and after he came from the humble home he said: "He is just as well now as he ever will be."

The boy is being looked after every day by physicians, and it is the opinion of them that he will never recover. Owing to the fact that the family are foreigners it is quite a hard matter to make them understand. The mother received a letter from her husband who is at Pittsburg, last evening, and he asks that the family pack their goods and come to Pittsburg at once. Dragon says that he has secured a good job. The boy, however, is in no fit condition to be removed, and he will not be, provided Dr. Mowen can prevent it. Much concern is felt over the condition of the boy.

New Social Club.

A social club is to be organized in the East End next week. The preliminary steps have been taken, and it is the intention to secure quarters in the Ferguson & Larkins building on First avenue. A meeting to complete the organization is to be held early next week. The following young men are at the head of the movement: William White, Earl Myers, James White, Herman Supplee, Charles Harris, Fred McCain, Harry Meanor, Roger Hill, Paul Andrews. The club is to be for social purposes only.

NEXT MEETING AT CANTON

The State W. C. T. U. at Salem Elects Officers And Adjourns.

Salem, October 4.—The State Women's Christian Temperance Union convention closed last evening with a public meeting of "Y.s" The convention elected these officers: Mrs. Annie Woods Clark, Columbus, president; Mrs. Sarah M. Perkins, Cleveland, vice-president; Miss Frances Hamilton, Madison, corresponding secretary; Miss Olivia Annette Thomas, Bloomdale, recording secretary; Mrs. Florence Jaite, Cleveland, treasurer. It resolved to send a delegate to the world's Women's Christian Temperance Union convention, at Geneva, Switzerland, next summer, and Mrs. Clark, the president, was chosen delegate. The next annual meeting will be held in Canton.

A matter was taken up yesterday which later developed into quite a controversy. It has been the rule that all funds of the various departments, in fact, all moneys of any kind whatever, shall pass only through the hands of the state treasurer. Mrs. E. J. Gray, of Medina, state superintendent of contests, has heretofore been permitted to handle her own funds, independent of the treasurer. Yesterday it was ordered that all be handled only by the state treasurer.

The executive committee recommended that the convention adopt the motion, and when it came up in the convention a warm debate ensued. Mrs. Gray made a determined plea to be allowed to handle the funds of her own department, but the motion was adopted. Mrs. Gray then tendered to the executive committee her resignation as superintendent of the contest department.

Cruelly Crushed.

William Bliss when president of the Boston and Albany railroad was once called before the railroad committee of the Massachusetts legislature to testify on traffic matters, and a young member who was serving his first term undertook to examine him.

"I want you to tell me how much it costs to haul a freight car from Boston to Springfield," said the member.

"I don't know," replied Mr. Bliss.

"You don't know?"

"That was the answer I gave."

"What are you, anyway?"

"President."

"Of what?"

"The Boston and Albany railroad."

"Well, sir," began the legislator in rising voice, "if you are William Bliss president of the Boston and Albany railroad, and you don't know what it costs to haul freight from Boston to Springfield, who in the name of heaven does know?"

"No one that I know unless it is a member of the Massachusetts legislature who is serving his first term."

Another member continued the examination.

A Plea For Courtesy.

We have lost the old flowery forms of politeness, and now we never waste "Thank you!" on a fellow creature who is not of our own immediate circle. A tradesman does, but he knows it will be charged in the bill. I wonder what will bring us back to the old sweetness of manner? Why should not the customer in the teashop or the customer in the postoffice say "Please" when he gives his order and the other spare a "Thank you!" when he has paid his bill? It makes life run so much more easily.—Girl's Realm.

A STRONG, VIGOROUS MAN

Is Liable to Break Down—Pe-ru-na is Sure to Restore.

Hon. Frank Dunn, Alderman Twenty-Fourth District, writes from 232 East Fifty-Eighth Street, New York City: The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen: "There is no remedy for a broken-down system that I know of which will so effectually restore health as Peruna.

"Whenever I am overworked or suffer from the consequences of a cold a few doses of Peruna builds me up again more quickly than anything I ever tried. I find it especially valuable for catarrh. Three bottles cured me three years ago of catarrh of the stomach and I have never had the least symptoms of it since."

Very truly,
FRANK DUNN, Alderman 24th Dist., N. Y. City.

A TONIC is a medicine that gives tone to some part of the system. There are different kinds of tonics, but the tonic most needed in this country, where catarrh is so prevalent, is a tonic that operates on the mucous membranes.

Peruna is a tonic to the mucous membranes of the whole body. It gives tone to the capillary circulation which constitutes these delicate membranes.

Peruna is a specific in its operation upon the mucous membrane. It is a tonic that strikes at the root of all catarrhal affections. It gives tone to the minute blood vessels and the terminal nerve fibres. Catarrh cannot exist long where Peruna is used intelligently. Peruna seeks out catarrh in all the hidden parts of the body.

Paul Landrum writing from Atlanta, Ga., says:

"In January last I began the use of your Peruna and Manalin for what was termed organic heart trouble. At that time I could scarcely walk to my place of business without stopping to rest and on arrival felt completely exhausted. Had severe pains in my heart and general dizziness. After using the first bottle of Peruna I began to improve and today I feel that I am a sound man and I work fourteen hours a day without any bad feeling."—Paul Landrum.

A. M. Ikerd, an employee of the C. B. & Q. R. R., West Burlington, Ia., writes:

"I had catarrh of the stomach and small intestines for a number of years. I went to a number of doctors and got no relief. Finally one of my doctors sent me to Chicago and I met the same fate. They said they could do nothing for me, that I had cancer of the stomach and there was no cure. I almost thought the same, for my breath was something awful. I could hardly stand it, it was so offensive. I could not eat anything without great misery, and I gradually grew worse.

"Finally I got one of your books, and concluded I would try Peruna, and thank God, I found a relief and a cure for that dreadful disease. I took five bottles of Peruna and two of Manalin, and I now feel like a new man. There is nothing better than Peruna, and I keep a bottle in my house all the time."—A. M. Ikerd.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

When to Eat Fruit.

The question is often asked, At what time of day should fruit be eaten? In tropical countries, where fruit is the chief article of food, the rule appears to be that the earlier in the day it is taken the better and the later the worse. In hot weather many wise people will eat none after noon, alleging that the digestion then declines in power with the decline of the day and the fruit, instead of digesting, decomposes owing to the presence of the saccharine matter. The objection to fruit and certain kinds of vegetables late in the day, be the explanation what it may, is certainly justified by an ample experience, though some persons can eat fruit at all hours without feeling any inconvenience.—Table Talks.

EAST END

PROTESTS POUR IN

From East Enders Against Assessments for Pennsylvania Avenue Improvements.

At the next meeting of council which will be held Tuesday evening, Attorney James Davis, of the East End, will be present to represent several hundred property owners who have been assessed for the improvement of Pennsylvania avenue. Since yesterday morning property owners have called at Attorney Davis' office by the dozens, signed a remonstrance against paying the assessment, and it is believed that by concerted effort many assessments will be cancelled. So far over 100 petitions have been signed by this number, and will be greatly increased before Tuesday evening.

It was stated this morning that the owners of Columbian park had been assessed in the neighborhood of $1,500. The McKinnon estate, which fronts on Pennsylvania avenue, has been assessed over $1,500. This estate is said to be worth at least $2,000 an acre. Notices of assessment have been forwarded to almost every property owner in the East End, and it is most likely that a remonstrance will be filed with council by all of these persons against paying the stated assessments. In the East End the question is the paramount one.

NEVER WILL BE BETTER

Opinion of His Physician About the Injured Dragon Boy.

Will little Michael Dragon, of Virginia avenue, East End, ever be able to arise from his bed, and play again? It is not likely. The boy was visited early this morning by Dr. Walter E. Mowen, and after he came from the humble home he said: "He is just as well now as he ever will be."

The boy is being looked after every day by physicians, and it is the opinion of them that he will never recover. Owing to the fact that the family are foreigners it is quite a hard matter to make them understand. The mother received a letter from her husband who is at Pittsburg, last evening, and he asks that the family pack their goods and come to Pittsburg at once. Dragon says that he has secured a good job. The boy, however, is in no fit condition to be removed, and he will not be, provided Dr. Mowen can prevent it. Much concern is felt over the condition of the boy.

New Social Club.

A social club is to be organized in the East End next week. The preliminary steps have been taken, and it is the intention to secure quarters in the Ferguson & Larkins building on First avenue. A meeting to complete the organization is to be held early next week. The following young men are at the head of the movement: William White, Earl Myers, James White, Herman Supplee, Charles Harris, Fred McCain, Harry Meanor, Roger Hill, Paul Andrews. The club is to be for social purposes only.

Superintendent Thomas Reed, of the East Liverpool street railway, who has been out of the city for several days, returned home last evening.

NEXT MEETING AT CANTON

The State W. C. T. U. at Salem Elects Officers And Adjourns.

Salem, October 4.—The State Women's Christian Temperance Union convention closed last evening with a public meeting of "Y.s" The convention elected these officers: Mrs. Annie Woods Clark, Columbus, president; Mrs. Sarah M. Perkins, Cleveland, vice-president; Miss Frances Hamilton, Madison, corresponding secretary; Miss Olivia Annette Thomas, Bloomdale, recording secretary; Mrs. Florence Jaite, Cleveland, treasurer. It resolved to send a delegate to the world's Women's Christian Temperance Union convention, at Geneva, Switzerland, next summer, and Mrs. Clark, the president, was chosen delegate. The next annual meeting will be held in Canton.

A matter was taken up yesterday which later developed into quite a controversy. It has been the rule that all funds of the various departments, in fact, all moneys of any kind whatever, shall pass only through the hands of the state treasurer. Mrs. E. J. Gray, of Medina, state superintendent of contests, has heretofore been permitted to handle her own funds, independent of the treasurer. Yesterday it was ordered that all be handled only by the state treasurer.

The executive committee recommended that the convention adopt the motion, and when it came up in the convention a warm debate ensued. Mrs. Gray made a determined plea to be allowed to handle the funds of her own department, but the motion was adopted. Mrs. Gray then tendered to the executive committee her resignation as superintendent of the contest department.

Cruelly Crushed.

William Bliss when president of the Boston and Albany railroad was once called before the railroad committee of the Massachusetts legislature to testify on traffic matters, and a young member who was serving his first term undertook to examine him.

"I want you to tell me how much it costs to haul a freight car from Boston to Springfield," said the member.

"I don't know," replied Mr. Bliss.

"You don't know?"

"That was the answer I gave."

"What are you, anyway?"

"President."

"Of what?"

"The Boston and Albany railroad."

"Well, sir," began the legislator in rising voice, "if you are William Bliss president of the Boston and Albany railroad, and you don't know what it costs to haul freight from Boston to Springfield, who in the name of heaven does know?"

"No one that I know unless it is a member of the Massachusetts legislature who is serving his first term."

Another member continued the examination.

A Plea For Courtesy.

We have lost the old flowery forms of politeness, and now we never waste "Thank you!" on a fellow creature who is not of our own immediate circle. A tradesman does, but he knows it will be charged in the bill. I wonder what will bring us back to the old sweetness of manner? Why should not the customer in the teashop or the customer in the postoffice say "Please" when he gives his order and the other spare a "Thank you!" when he has paid his bill? It makes life run so much more easily.—Girl's Realm.

A STRONG, VIGOROUS MAN

Is Liable to Break Down—Pe-ru-na is Sure to Restore.

Hon. Frank Dunn, Alderman Twenty-Fourth District, writes from 232 East Fifty-Eighth Street, New York City:
The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen: "There is no remedy for a broken-down system that I know of which will so effectually restore health as Peruna.

"Whenever I am overworked or suffer from the consequences of a cold a few doses of Peruna builds me up again more quickly than anything I ever tried. I find it especially valuable for catarrh. Three bottles cured me three years ago of catarrh of the stomach and I have never had the least symptoms of it since."

Very truly,
FRANK DUNN, Alderman 24th Dist., N. Y. City.

A TONIC is a medicine that gives tone to some part of the system. There are different kinds of tonics, but the tonic most needed in this country, where catarrh is so prevalent, is a tonic that operates on the mucous membranes.

Peruna is a tonic to the mucous membranes of the whole body. It gives tone to the capillary circulation which constitutes these delicate membranes.

Peruna is a specific in its operation upon the mucous membrane. It is a tonic that strikes at the root of all catarrhal affections. It gives tone to the minute blood vessels and the terminal nerve fibres. Catarrh cannot exist long where Peruna is used intelligently. Peruna seeks out catarrh in all the hidden parts of the body.

Paul Landrum writing from Atlanta, Ga., says:

"In January last I began the use of your Peruna and Manalin for what was termed organic heart trouble. At that time I could scarcely walk to my place of business without stopping to rest and on arrival felt completely exhausted. Had severe pains in my heart and general dizziness. After using the first bottle of Peruna I began to improve and today I feel that I am a sound man and I work fourteen hours a day without any bad feeling."—Paul Landrum.

A. M. Ikerd, an employee of the C. B. & Q. R. R., West Burlington, Ia., writes:

"I had catarrh of the stomach and small intestines for a number of years. I went to a number of doctors and got no relief. Finally one of my doctors sent me to Chicago and I met the same fate. They said they could do nothing for me, that I had cancer of the stomach and there was no cure. I almost thought the same, for my breath was something awful. I could hardly stand it, it was so offensive. I could not eat anything without great misery, and I gradually grew worse.

"Finally I got one of your books, and concluded I would try Peruna, and thank God, I found a relief and a cure for that dreadful disease. I took five bottles of Peruna and two of Manalin, and I now feel like a new man. There is nothing better than Peruna, and I keep a bottle in my house all the time."—A. M. Ikerd.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

When to Eat Fruit.

The question is often asked, At what time of day should fruit be eaten? In tropical countries, where fruit is the chief article of food, the rule appears to be that the earlier in the day it is taken the better and the later the worse. In hot weather many wise people will eat none after noon, alleging that the digestion then declines in power with the decline of the day and the fruit, instead of digesting, decomposes owing to the presence of the saccharine matter. The objection to fruit and certain kinds of vegetables late in the day, be the explanation what it may, is certainly justified by an ample experience, though some persons can eat fruit at all hours without feeling any inconvenience.—Table Talks.

TWELVE PAGES.

The whole country will regret that the conference on the miners' strike, held at the White House in Washington, did not reach a more satisfactory conclusion. The president did all in his power to bring about a peaceful settlement of existing difficulties; but his appeals, both to patriotism and manhood, apparently fell on deaf ears. The coal operators exhibit the same obstinacy and stubborness that has characterized their course from the beginning of the struggle. The offer of President Mitchell, of the Mine Workers' union, to submit the whole controversy to a tribunal of arbitration of President Roosevelt's own selestion and to abide by the result will strike the public generally as being fair and just. How the operators can quarrel with it, if they are conscious of having the right on their side, passes comprehension. The proposition of the other side, to let the judges of the local courts settle the problem, while it may be approved in some quarters, has less to commend it. Such struggles inevitably arouse bitter local feeling, and for the ends of justice it is but natural that something in the nature of a change of venue be desired. The real aim and purpose of the operators is to reject all plans for a settlement that will compel them to recognize the miners' union and its right to treat with them. The owners of the mines and railroads, representing hundreds of millions of capital, band together to aid each other, and yet would deny the same privilege to the men they employ, the men who create their wealth. Here is the inconsistent and inexcusable feature of their course. They retaliate by saying some of the men on strike have been disorderly. But they cannot hold the whole organization responsible for the acts of a few individuals, especially as lawbreaking is not countenanced by the miners' union as a whole, and as its officers have at all times endeavored to discourage it. There would have been no strike and no disorder had the operators shown a disposition to listen to the men and make an honest effort to settle the dispute to the interests of both parties concerned. The situation is indeed grave, but the effort to put all responsibility for it on the shoulders of the men who toil will not be countenanced by the general public. The anthracite miners, considering the hardships and dangers they incur, are among the most poorly paid laborers in the country, and the sympathy of the whole people is with them in the battle they are fighting for living wages.

The Republican county executive committee, in its session at Lisbon, performed most excellent work. The selection of A. E. Swearingen, of Hanover township, as a candidate for the office of infirmary director, is one that will be hailed with the highest satisfaction by the people of Columbiana county. Mr. Swearingen is a man of the highest standing in the community where he resides, and eminently qualified for the office for which he has been nominated. The addition of his name renders the Republican county ticket strong from top to bottom, and ensures its triumphant election as a whole.

Massachusetts Republicans fall in line approving President Roosevelt in one administration and in the intention to support him in another. The anti administration forces in the Bay state have been noisy, but not influential, and there is going to be a grand Republican victory this fall right in the heart of Edward Atkinson's stronghold.

Tom L. Johnson is on the hunt for local issues. He ought to find one in Cleveland, where he is reported to be worth $10,000,000 to $14,000,000, but where, in five years, he has returned for taxation only $33,900.

The university extension movement has been universally commended. Its inauguration in this city is worthy of all encouragement as a stimulus to educational growth.

AT THE THEATER

Manager J. A. Norris offers to the patrons of the new Grand opera house on Saturday afternoon and evening Mr. Frank Burt's famous scenic revival of that great emotional play, "East Lynne," with Miss Rebecca Warren in the character of Lady Isabelle. Without a doubt more people have cried and laughed with Lady Isabelle than any other character known to the American stage. No novel in the English langauge has had a larger sale than "East Lynne" and no drama in the English speaking tongue has been heard by more people.

A large house greeted "Our New Minister" at the Grand Opera House last evening. The same players that appeared here last year compose the company this season and judging from the way the play was received, much better satisfaction was given. Some parts of the play have been revised and with the company this season is a complete new set of scenery. Several new parts have been added, all of which improve the production which is one of the best on the road.

The Bennett-Moulton company, that commence their week's engagement next Monday, promise their many patrons superb productions. This season the company is the largest ,strongest and most complete ever seen at 10, 20 and 30 cents, and will put to shame many of the high-priced companies now upon the road, having the best vaudeville artists between the acts that money can procure.

A CROWDED HOUSE AT FIRST LECTURE

centralizing element was the competition which arose between the ports. The fourth and most serious decentralizing element was the overlapping territory, which was caused largely by reason of disputes in measuring. For years a great debate went on in this country, during which period William Penn and the Calverts figured conspicuously.

"But, let us look at another phase in the growth of our country. Were there not elements which tended to unite as well as decentralize the nation's people? The colonists finally came to the conclusion that God must have ordered this fair land for us, and they began to talk about a 'destiny.' Was Patrick Henry not the first one to use this word in his stirring speeches?

"When England began to press the crown of oppression upon young America's brow, this had a tendency to unite the colonies in sympathy. England issued writs, smuggling took place, and it was at this time that James Otis made that great speech of which John Adams said: 'When Otis made that speech, at that very time, the child of liberty was born.'

"Then came the stamp act with tyranical laws, and it was about this period that Benjamin Franklin figured most conspicuously.

"He spent 10 long years in the service of America, and when he returned the snows of many winters had laid upon his beloved wife's grave, for she had long since passed through those gates, whose portals we call Death."

A GOOD PRESCRIPTION.

Laughter as a Stomach Cure and an Aid to Health.

Worry is but one of the many forms of fear, so that worry tends to the production of indigestion. Indigestion tends to put the body of the subject in a condition that favors worry. There is thus established a vicious circle which tends to perpetuate itself, each element augmenting the other.

It is necessary to secure a cheerful, wholesome atmosphere for the dyspeptic. He should eat his meals at a table where there is good fellowship and where funny stories are told. He should himself make a great effort to contribute his share of this at the table, even if it be necessary, as it was in one case under my care, for him to solemnly and seriously collect funny paragraphs from the press, and at first interject them spasmodically during lulls in the conversation at the table. The very efforts and determination of the man to correct his own silent habits at table, to correct his feelings of discouragement and worry, were in themselves a promise of success. The effort made was adequate to the obstacles to be overcome. He succeeded, and the spectacle of that man trying to be funny at table when he felt thoroughly discouraged and blue is one we shall never forget.

Laughing is in itself also a useful exercise from the standpoint of digestion. It stirs up all the abdominal organs, it increases the circulation of the blood, it increases peristalsis, it increases the secretion of gastric juices. Five minutes' deliberate laughing after each meal would be an excellent prescription for some people.—Family Doctor.

THE BIRTH OF JAPAN.

Curious Legend of the Creation Handed Down by the Japanese.

The following is the curious legend of the creation as it is told in Japan: Clouds formed the bridge on which once god Yzanaghi and his spouse Yzanuma stood pondering on the riddle of existence, whether the beginnings of worlds and the beginnings of life lay slumbering in that sea of chaos. Yzanaghi, apparently more enterprising than philosophically inclined, seized his shimmering spear and plunged it into the black and seething flood. Pulling it up again, he discovered seven salt drops on its diamond point, which, dropping, condensed and formed the island of Cusokorosima.

Thereupon Yzanaghi and his spouse selected the spot of earth which had thus been created as their permanent dwelling place and peopled it with innumerable genii of animal and plant life and spirits of the elements. And around this "palace of immortality" rose eight other islands—Awadsi, the island of foam; the mountainous Cho, Yamato, blessed with fruit; Yyo, unsurpassed in its beauty; the quinquangular Tsikousi, Sado, rich in copper and gold; Yki, one of the pillars of heaven, and Oko, surrounded by three satellites.

Such was the birth of Japan, of that curious land of Fusiyama, with its amiable population of artist artisans, its graceful teahouses, its glistening silks, its grotesque dwarf trees, its white cranes and dreamy lotus ponds. —Harper's Magazine.

The Man and the Wave.

Once upon a time a man was telling a tale of woe that unveiled his matrimonial experience.

"It was all on account of a little dainty handkerchief," he said. "The first time that I saw the girl and before we had been introduced she waved that bit of lace at me, and I was carried away. It was a fall in love and then matrimony. But, alas, that delicate handkerchief was no index to the girl's nature, and I found myself wrecked on the sea of matrimony."

Moral.—A man may be carried away by a wave and wrecked without going near the water.—New York Herald.

There is a dock laborer in Glasgow who is possessed of a great sense of humor. Perhaps it's because he's an Irishman. Pat had been disturbed several times in his single apartment by a well meaning lady missionary. Seeing Pat was rather an exemplary sort of a husband, she suggested that he might be able to afford a room and kitchen soon.

"An' phwat wad Oi want lavin' such a comfortable house as this for?" asked Pat.

"Well," she replied, "you would have more room—more conveniences."

"Convaniences is it?" said Pat, with a smile. "Sure, an' at prisint if Oi want to go to the drawin' room or the dinin' room or the conservatory, begorra, Oi've just got to sit still. Phwat could be handier?"

The lady couldn't say.—London Answers.

Not an Occasion For Haste.

During the Sikh war the late Field Marshal Sir Neville Chamberlain, who then held the rank of colonel, called for volunteers to assist him in blowing up a bastion. Three or four responded, and the colonel led the little party close up to the point where the mine was to be fired. As soon as the explosives were in place and the fuse lighted the volunteers started to run in order to get out of the way of the explosion no less than to effect, as speedily as possible to retreat to the safety of the British lines. They had not gone a dozen yards before Chamberlain shouted: "Come back! There's to be no indecent haste, young men. We'll walk." And walk they did, while the fuse slowly sputtered down to the waiting powder.

A Minor Consideration.

The ambitious young woman was attracted by an advertisement, one line of which read, "How to Become an Author." The advertiser claimed that by his method failure was impossible.

So the ambitious young woman sent on the necessary trifling sum of money, and by return mail she received a slip on which was printed this bit of advice, "Write something."

"But," she protested by letter, "I already have done that, and it hasn't been printed."

"We congratulate you," was the reply. "If you have written something you already are an author. Publication is a minor consideration, with which we have nothing to do."—Brooklyn Eagle.

TWELVE PAGES.

The whole country will regret that the conference on the miners' strike, held at the White House in Washington, did not reach a more satisfactory conclusion. The president did all in his power to bring about a peaceful settlement of existing difficulties; but his appeals, both to patriotism and manhood, apparently fell on deaf ears. The coal operators exhibit the same obstinacy and stubborness that has characterized their course from the beginning of the struggle. The offer of President Mitchell, of the Mine Workers' union, to submit the whole controversy to a tribunal of arbitration of President Roosevelt's own selestion and to abide by the result will strike the public generally as being fair and just. How the operators can quarrel with it, if they are conscious of having the right on their side, passes comprehension. The proposition of the other side, to let the judges of the local courts settle the problem, while it may be approved in some quarters, has less to commend it. Such struggles inevitably arouse bitter local feeling, and for the ends of justice it is but natural that something in the nature of a change of venue be desired. The real aim and purpose of the operators is to reject all plans for a settlement that will compel them to recognize the miners' union and its right to treat with them. The owners of the mines and railroads, representing hundreds of millions of capital, band together to aid each other, and yet would deny the same privilege to the men they employ, the men who create their wealth. Here is the inconsistent and inexcusable feature of their course. They retaliate by saying some of the men on strike have been disorderly. But they cannot hold the whole organization responsible for the acts of a few individuals, especially as lawbreaking is not countenanced by the miners' union as a whole, and as its officers have at all times endeavored to discourage it. There would have been no strike and no disorder had the operators shown a disposition to listen to the men and make an honest effort to settle the dispute to the interests of both parties concerned. The situation is indeed grave, but the effort to put all responsibility for it on the shoulders of the men who toil will not be countenanced by the general public. The anthracite miners, considering the hardships and dangers they incur, are among the most poorly paid laborers in the country, and the sympathy of the whole people is with them in the battle they are fighting for living wages.

The Republican county executive committee, in its session at Lisbon, performed most excellent work. The selection of A. E. Swearingen, of Hanover township, as a candidate for the office of infirmary director, is one that will be hailed with the highest satisfaction by the people of Columbiana county. Mr. Swearingen is a man of the highest standing in the community where he resides, and eminently qualified for the office for which he has been nominated. The addition of his name renders the Republican county ticket strong from top to bottom, and ensures its triumphant election as a whole.

Massachusetts Republicans fall in line approving President Roosevelt in one administration and in the intention to support him in another. The anti administration forces in the Bay state have been noisy, but not influential, and there is going to be a grand Republican victory this fall right in the heart of Edward Atkinson's stronghold.

Tom L. Johnson is on the hunt for local issues. He ought to find one in Cleveland, where he is reported to be worth $10,000,000 to $14,000,000, but where, in five years, he has returned for taxation only $33,900.

The university extension movement has been universally commended. Its inauguration in this city is worthy of all encouragement as a stimulus to educational growth.

AT THE THEATER

Manager J. A. Norris offers to the patrons of the new Grand opera house on Saturday afternoon and evening Mr. Frank Burt's famous scenic revival of that great emotional play, "East Lynne," with Miss Rebecca Warren in the character of Lady Isabelle. Without a doubt more people have cried and laughed with Lady Isabelle than any other character known to the American stage. No novel in the English langauge has had a larger sale than "East Lynne" and no drama in the English speaking tongue has been heard by more people.

A large house greeted "Our New Minister" at the Grand Opera House last evening. The same players that appeared here last year compose the company this season and judging from the way the play was received, much better satisfaction was given. Some parts of the play have been revised and with the company this season is a complete new set of scenery. Several new parts have been added, all of which improve the production which is one of the best on the road.

The Bennett-Moulton company, that commence their week's engagement next Monday, promise their many patrons superb productions. This season the company is the largest ,strongest and most complete ever seen at 10, 20 and 30 cents, and will put to shame many of the high-priced companies now upon the road, having the best vaudeville artists between the acts that money can procure.

centralizing element was the competition which arose between the ports. The fourth and most serious decentralizing element was the overlapping territory, which was caused largely by reason of disputes in measuring. For years a great debate went on in this country, during which period William Penn and the Calverts figured conspicuously.

"But, let us look at another phase in the growth of our country. Were there not elements which tended to unite as well as decentralize the nation's people? The colonists finally came to the conclusion that God must have ordered this fair land for us, and they began to talk about a 'destiny.' Was Patrick Henry not the first one to use this word in his stirring speeches?

"When England began to press the crown of oppression upon young America's brow, this had a tendency to unite the colonies in sympathy. England issued writs, smuggling took place, and it was at this time that James Otis made that great speech of which John Adams said: 'When Otis made that speech, at that very time, the child of liberty was born.'

"Then came the stamp act with tyranical laws, and it was about this period that Benjamin Franklin figured most conspicuously.

"He spent 10 long years in the service of America, and when he returned the snows of many winters had laid upon his beloved wife's grave, for she had long since passed through those gates, whose portals we call Death."

NO AGREEMANT

NOW IN FORCE IN THE CITY FOR CLOSING HOURS.

The Old Regulation Expired October 1, And a New One Has Not Been Made.

Speculation is being indulged in just now as to whether the proposed revision of the retail clerk's agreement with the merchants will go through, or whether the ultimate result will be the abandonment of all regulation as to working hours for clerks employed in East Liverpool.

As a matter of fact, no agreement now exists between the merchants and their employes. The closing regulations which have been in force and which were mutual between the clerks and the merchants expired on October 1, and at that time the members of local union No. 133, presented a new and revised agreement. This document contains several changes, the most important among which was the demand that 6 o'clock be adopted as the closing hour on Monday nights. When the agreement was laid before the merchants the only objection made was to the 6 o'clock Monday night clause, all others, of which there were several, were conceded. The claim was made by the merchants in session then, that the paper presented to them was not an official one, since it neither contained the seal of the union, nor the signatures of the officers of No. 133. This point was waived, however, and the answer returned that the merchants could not agree to the early closing hour for Monday nights.

Since no conference has been held, nor no agreement reached since October 1, the business establishments are now relieved from observing any rules whatever.

It is understood that the employes of the local dry goods stores were the ones to propose the changes in the regulations which are now annoying the parties interested, and as the majority of the dry goods clerks are ladies, the real foundation of the trouble can be laid at their door.

At the meeting next Tuesday night it is assured that there will be the largest attendance for months. No action will be taken that will change the clerk's side of the controversy, in the least. The lady members outnumber the men more than two to one, and the demand will stand. It is confidently expected that there will be a few warm debates before adjournment is taken.

Meantime a few of the merchants are taking advantage of the fact that no agreement now exists, and are observing whatever hours suits them best.

When she saw two officers staring her in the face up went her hands and she commenced pleading for mercy. She knew, however, that she had done nothing to cause her arrest, and with wonderful assurance invited the officers in to take any or all of the people of the household. Chris was the only one wanted. The officers found him curled up in bed and though they hated to cause him so much inconvenience commanded that he dress immediately and follow. He complied but with reluctance and in a few minutes was on the way to the Lisbon jail in charge of Officer Porter.

Constable Powell has numerous such warrants in his possession and will likely make arrests today.

The Baggage Smasher's Wisdom.

The other day an express wagon filled with trunks rattled up Broadway, and just opposite the postoffice a big Saratoga slid off and came crashing down on the car tracks. Several people ran out from the sidewalk to rescue it, but the trunk proved to be empty, and there was little damage done. "Now, if that had been full," said one old gentleman to the expressman, "you'd have had a fine old time with it." "Huh," replied the baggage charioteer scornfully, "full trunks don't fall off by theirselves. You got to fling them off!"—New York Commercial Advertiser.

AERIAL POLO.

A Queer Kind of Amusement on a Pacific Ocean Island.

Writing on "Our Equatorial Islands" in the Century, James D. Hague says:

It became an amusing diversion to overturn the large flat stones beneath which the rats were hiding in solid masses and watch them as they scampered in all directions, pursued and quickly snatched up by the man-o'-war hawks. These crafty birds were apt to learn that the appearance of a man walking on the island, especially with a dog, meant rats for them, and any one thus going forth was usually followed by a hovering flock, ready and impatient for the sport they had learned to expect. A rat brought to hand by the dog was quickly tossed in air, where the birds were ready to snatch it, sometimes with a contest on the wing for the disputed possession. One form of this sport, a sort of aerial polo, which seemed to be as good fun for the birds as for the observers, consisted in tossing two rats into the air at the same moment, not singly and apart, but tied together with about six feet of strong twine.

Instantly the birds made a dash for the rats, and the successful winner of the first prize went sailing off with one rat in his bill and the other swinging in the air beneath until snatched by the second winner, when, after a quick, sharp struggle and a taut strain on the cord, the bird with the weaker hold was compelled to let go. This then went on as a continuous performance, with somewhat Jonah-like but rapidly repeated disappearances and reappearances of the little rats, swallowed and reluctantly disgorged by the birds in quick succession until the flock, thoroughly exhausted by their impetuous flight and extraordinary exercise, alighted on the ground for a short truce, when the two temporary stakeholders would be found sitting face to face, keenly eying each other from opposite ends of the string still connecting them, each anxiously on the sharp lookout for sudden jerks and unpleasant surprises, while all the other pursuers gathered around in a ring, waiting for the two prize birds to fly. The general aspect of all participants seemed to verify the familiar adage that the pleasure is not in the game, but in the chase.

NO AGREEMANT

NOW IN FORCE IN THE CITY FOR CLOSING HOURS.

The Old Regulation Expired October 1, And a New One Has Not Been Made.

Speculation is being indulged in just now as to whether the proposed revision of the retail clerk's agreement with the merchants will go through, or whether the ultimate result will be the abandonment of all regulation as to working hours for clerks employed in East Liverpool.

As a matter of fact, no agreement now exists between the merchants and their employes. The closing regulations which have been in force and which were mutual between the clerks and the merchants expired on October 1, and at that time the members of local union No. 133, presented a new and revised agreement. This document contains several changes, the most important among which was the demand that 6 o'clock be adopted as the closing hour on Monday nights. When the agreement was laid before the merchants the only objection made was to the 6 o'clock Monday night clause, all others, of which there were several, were conceded. The claim was made by the merchants in session then, that the paper presented to them was not an official one, since it neither contained the seal of the union, nor the signatures of the officers of No. 133. This point was waived, however, and the answer returned that the merchants could not agree to the early closing hour for Monday nights.

Since no conference has been held, nor no agreement reached since October 1, the business establishments are now relieved from observing any rules whatever.

It is understood that the employes of the local dry goods stores were the ones to propose the changes in the regulations which are now annoying the parties interested, and as the majority of the dry goods clerks are ladies, the real foundation of the trouble can be laid at their door.

At the meeting next Tuesday night it is assured that there will be the largest attendance for months. No action will be taken that will change the clerk's side of the controversy, in the least. The lady members outnumber the men more than two to one, and the demand will stand. It is confidently expected that there will be a few warm debates before adjournment is taken.

Meantime a few of the merchants are taking advantage of the fact that no agreement now exists, and are observing whatever hours suits them best.

Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, men—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous effort to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insiduous consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boschee's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure-all, but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get this reliable remedy at Charles F. Craig's.

ABSOLUTE FREE TRADE

And Nothing Short of That Is Intended.

CUSTOM HOUSES TO BE ABOLISHED.

Tom Johnson Admits That This Is One Thing That He Aims at, and He Is "The Whole Thing" Among Ohio Democrats at This Time.

Always heretofore the Democrats have dodged and denied on the free trade issue, and have stubbornly insisted that they had no purpose or intention of favoring absolute free trade. All kinds of fine phrases, from "tariff revision" on through a long list more or less meaningless, have been used to evade the rugged issue that their opposition to protection to American industries, actually meant the abolition of all taxes upon foreign imports.

But in Ohio, at least, this mask has been stripped off at last. At Lima, O., Tuesday night, Sept. 23, TOM JOHNSON DECLARED OPENLY, as he had done less conspicuously in previous meetings and in congress, THAT HE BELIEVED IN MR. GEORGE'S PROPOSITION TO ABOLISH CUSTOM HOUSES. Our authority for this is "the Democratic paper of Ohio," the Columbus Press.

"Me," as Johnson calls himself, hath said it, and that settles it at this time for the Ohio Democracy, who have chosen him as their supreme dictator, and who wear his button for their party's next nomination for the presidency. The custom houses must go, and absolute, unqualified, undiluted free trade is the party doctrine.

No longer will any readjustment of rates, to lessen possible inequalities, answer for the Ohio Democracy. Mere "revenue reform," once so radical, is not now near deep-rooted enough for the followers of Tom Johnson and the recent Bigelow. Even "the tariff for revenue only" is no longer drastic enough, for in its place comes the tearing down of every custom house, the removal of every tariff collector, the sweeping away of the last scintilla of the least possible protection to the feeblest home industry.

And in their place, what is proposed by ME, Tom Johnson? Why direct taxation; the single tax on land values, and nothing else, doing away with every other form of levy and assessment upon every other form of property. This is the Henry George idea, pure and simple and perfect, and Mr. Johnson declared in that same breath at Lima, in his very words as given by the Columbus Press:

"THE DOCTRINES OF HENRY GEORGE ARE THE MOVING SPIRIT OF WHATEVER I DO, WHETHER AS MAYOR OF CLEVELAND, OR IN THIS TENT, OR IN ANOTHER FIELD OF ACTIVITY."

Keep that in mind. Remember that Henry George was for the uttermost free trade, and that Johnson is, because the single land tax is to take care of everything, local, state or national. Free trade stripped of the least pretense of protection is the Ohio Democratic doctrine today.

LABOR DEMAND EXCEEDS SUPPLY.

Farmers, Contractors and Builders Short of Help.

Prosperity is causing a stringency in the local labor market. There are several new buildings in Troy on which work is stopped temporarily because of the lack of workmen.

Contractors are confronted with a new competition in securing and keeping help. The bumper crops have created an abnormal demand for farm help. Crops must be harvested and housed, and farmers are offering extra inducements in the shape of higher wages for hands.

This happy condition for the workman is the same or "more so" in the skilled labor market, and even clerks are in demand in the cities. This Republican brand of prosperity, aided by good crops, extends through every grade of society and to all parts of the United States.—Troy (O.) Union.

HERE'S YOUR FREE TRADE.

An Ohio Democratic Convention Demands Direct Taxation.

During the Salem Republican convention a delegation of potters called on the Mahoning county leaders and wanted to be assured that Mr. Kennedy would support the McKinley high tariff. They declared that they would have no work if the tariff should be reduced on pottery products. The pottery workers of East Liverpool, Sebring and other parts of the district must be somewhat surprised over the action of the Democratic congressional convention at Alliance in declaring for an abolition of all tariffs and in favor of direct taxation.—Youngstown Telegram.

We are neither the friend of the rich man as such, nor the friend of the poor man as such; we are the friend of the honest man, rich or poor, and we intend that all men, rich and poor, shall obey the law alike, and receive its protection alike."—President Roosevelt.

MRS. HELENA BLAU,
Young Milwaukee Society Woman.

Mrs. Helena Blau.

TEN thousand cured women have written to tell how Wine of Cardui bestows the blessing of health on every woman who takes it, rich and poor alike. Mrs. Helena Blau, No. 123 Seventh Street, Milwaukee, Wis., is one of the young women whom Wine of Cardui has rescued from a life of suffering. She writes:

"Wine of Cardui is certainly 'worn out' women's best friend and I am pleased to give my experience with it. A few months ago I caught a severe cold, having been out in inclement weather, which settled all over me, particularly in the abdomen. I was in almost constant pain. I consulted a physician and took his medicine for a month and without any relief. I then decided I would try your medicine and it was a lucky day for me when I did so. I noticed a change in a few days and felt encouraged to continue taking Wine of Cardui, and my patience was rewarded, for in two weeks my pains had left me and I felt like a new woman."

The woman who has suffered from female weakness should do anything within reason to secure health. Wine of Cardui is the medicine that appeals to reasonable women—women who hold operations and cutting in horror—women who know that Nature is the best physician. Wine of Cardui gives women back their health by giving Nature a chance to build up the wasted and diseased tissue. Wine of Cardui regulates the menstrual flow and Nature, when relieved of the drains or of the poisons in the system, makes the functional organs strong and healthy again.

Any woman who is silently suffering untold pains because she is too sensitive to undergo a physician's examination and treatment can find no excuse for not securing relief when Wine of Cardui is offered to her. There is no publicity to deter her. She can take Wine of Cardui in the privacy of her home, with as much assurance of a final cure as though a dozen doctors recommended it. Many physicians do recommend Wine of Cardui to their patients.

Always heretofore the Democrats have dodged and denied on the free trade issue, and have stubbornly insisted that they had no purpose or intention of favoring absolute free trade. All kinds of fine phrases, from "tariff revision" on through a long list more or less meaningless, have been used to evade the rugged issue that their opposition to protection to American industries, actually meant the abolition of all taxes upon foreign imports.

But in Ohio, at least, this mask has been stripped off at last. At Lima, O., Tuesday night, Sept. 23, TOM JOHNSON DECLARED OPENLY, as he had done less conspicuously in previous meetings and in congress, THAT HE BELIEVED IN MR. GEORGE'S PROPOSITION TO ABOLISH CUSTOM HOUSES. Our authority for this is "the Democratic paper of Ohio," the Columbus Press.

"Me," as Johnson calls himself, hath said it, and that settles it at this time for the Ohio Democracy, who have chosen him as their supreme dictator, and who wear his button for their party's next nomination for the presidency. The custom houses must go, and absolute, unqualified, undiluted free trade is the party doctrine.

No longer will any readjustment of rates, to lessen possible inequalities, answer for the Ohio Democracy. Mere "revenue reform," once so radical, is not now near deep-rooted enough for the followers of Tom Johnson and the recent Bigelow. Even "the tariff for revenue only" is no longer drastic enough, for in its place comes the tearing down of every custom house, the removal of every tariff collector, the sweeping away of the last scintilla of the least possible protection to the feeblest home industry.

And in their place, what is proposed by ME, Tom Johnson? Why direct taxation; the single tax on land values, and nothing else, doing away with every other form of levy and assessment upon every other form of property. This is the Henry George idea, pure and simple and perfect, and Mr. Johnson declared in that same breath at Lima, in his very words as given by the Columbus Press:

"THE DOCTRINES OF HENRY GEORGE ARE THE MOVING SPIRIT OF WHATEVER I DO, WHETHER AS MAYOR OF CLEVELAND, OR IN THIS TENT, OR IN ANOTHER FIELD OF ACTIVITY."

Keep that in mind. Remember that Henry George was for the uttermost free trade, and that Johnson is, because the single land tax is to take care of everything, local, state or national. Free trade stripped of the least pretense of protection is the Ohio Democratic doctrine today.

LABOR DEMAND EXCEEDS SUPPLY.

Farmers, Contractors and Builders Short of Help.

Prosperity is causing a stringency in the local labor market. There are several new buildings in Troy on which work is stopped temporarily because of the lack of workmen.

Contractors are confronted with a new competition in securing and keeping help. The bumper crops have created an abnormal demand for farm help. Crops must be harvested and housed, and farmers are offering extra inducements in the shape of higher wages for hands.

This happy condition for the workman is the same or "more so" in the skilled labor market, and even clerks are in demand in the cities. This Republican brand of prosperity, aided by good crops, extends through every grade of society and to all parts of the United States.—Troy (O.) Union.

An Ohio Democratic Convention Demands Direct Taxation.

During the Salem Republican convention a delegation of potters called on the Mahoning county leaders and wanted to be assured that Mr. Kennedy would support the McKinley high tariff. They declared that they would have no work if the tariff should be reduced on pottery products. The pottery workers of East Liverpool, Sebring and other parts of the district must be somewhat surprised over the action of the Democratic congressional convention at Alliance in declaring for an abolition of all tariffs and in favor of direct taxation.—Youngstown Telegram.

Mrs. Helena Blau.

TEN thousand cured women have written to tell how Wine of Cardui bestows the blessing of health on every woman who takes it, rich and poor alike. Mrs. Helena Blau, No. 123 Seventh Street, Milwaukee, Wis., is one of the young women whom Wine of Cardui has rescued from a life of suffering. She writes:

"Wine of Cardui is certainly 'worn out' women's best friend and I am pleased to give my experience with it. A few months ago I caught a severe cold, having been out in inclement weather, which settled all over me, particularly in the abdomen. I was in almost constant pain. I consulted a physician and took his medicine for a month and without any relief. I then decided I would try your medicine and it was a lucky day for me when I did so. I noticed a change in a few days and felt encouraged to continue taking Wine of Cardui, and my patience was rewarded, for in two weeks my pains had left me and I felt like a new woman."

The woman who has suffered from female weakness should do anything within reason to secure health. Wine of Cardui is the medicine that appeals to reasonable women—women who hold operations and cutting in horror—women who know that Nature is the best physician. Wine of Cardui gives women back their health by giving Nature a chance to build up the wasted and diseased tissue. Wine of Cardui regulates the menstrual flow and Nature, when relieved of the drains or of the poisons in the system, makes the functional organs strong and healthy again.

Any woman who is silently suffering untold pains because she is too sensitive to undergo a physician's examination and treatment can find no excuse for not securing relief when Wine of Cardui is offered to her. There is no publicity to deter her. She can take Wine of Cardui in the privacy of her home, with as much assurance of a final cure as though a dozen doctors recommended it. Many physicians do recommend Wine of Cardui to their patients.

Yet Ohio Democracy Demand Destruction.

ASK AGAIN FREE TRADE TRIAL.

Their Present Platform Most Radical Ever Advocated and Their Leader Wants All Custom Houses Wiped Out, Destroying Protection.

It is just ten years ago that the Democratic party persuaded the people of the United States to put their foot in it. Under the Harrison administration and the McKinley tariff the country was prosperous as never before that time. Business was in such full tide as to persuade many that it would stand any kind of tampering, and so the talk began about the need for a change as the reason for defeating Harrison and electing Cleveland and a congress that would carry out his recommendations in favor of the freest trade that any president had ever advocated in any of his public messages.

The election went for free trade and notice was thus served on that November night to every industrial interest that it was in peril. In consequence, every man in charge of an enterprise who was at all prudent and looked forward to the possibilities of the coming months, began to set his house in order for the troubles that were threatened by the Democratic platform and campaign speeches and newspapers. The contracting current of trade grew more and more constricted month after month until less than six months after Cleveland's election the effect was so fully felt in financial circles that the terrible currency panic of 1893 held the entire country in its grasp. This is the actual sequence of events. The threat of free trade stopped the factories, the stoppage of the factories affected the banks, and the disaster to the banks paralyzed every interest. It is true, just as Democrats state, that their free trade tariff bill did not get upon the statute book until many months afterward, but they were elected pledged to its passage, and it was the bounden duty of every manufacturer and business man of every kind to get ready for trouble from the first, and not wait until the storm burst upon him.

At that time there had been 30 years of almost uninterrupted Republican rule, for on no previous occasion had the Democrats been in power in all branches of the government at once, so that they could put into the statute book unhindered their free trade heresies. Almost the first act of the first Republican congress was a protective tariff law, to undo the mischief of the Democratic panic of 1857, just as the first act of the first congress of the United States under the constitution, when George Washington first was president, was a law for the protection and encouragement of American industries. The Morrill tariff carried the United States through the Civil war, and the marvelous progress of the succeeding years, and in consequence an entire generation had come and gone in the 35 years after the Democratic times of 1857 of "ten cents a day no roast beef," until the election of 1892, and the cry for a "change" sounded very plausible to the millions who never knew of the sufferings of their fathers, and to the other millions who had come upon these shores since those days.

Ten years, however, is not so long a period, and there are too many Americans, both among the women as well as among the men, who remember the troubles of the free trade panic precipitated by the election of Cleveland and a congress of his kind, to care to risk anything else of the sort. And yet that very question is before us today more truly than it has been at any time in the past ten years. Nor is it as much in evidence in any other state as it is in Ohio in the shape that the campaign is taking.

Tom Johnson, who has suddenly become the "ME" of the Democracy here, in the hope of equally being the "ME" of his party everywhere, is an out and out free trader. The Henry George doctrines, which he declares to be the "moving spirit of whatever I do," explicitly demand the abolition of every form of tax except that upon "land values." The single land tax would not leave the least room for even "incidental protection."

Mr. Johnson at Lima declared that he believed "Mr. George's proposition to abolish custom houses." Consequently, not one Democrat in Ohio, who has been with his party in the past when it favored even "incidental protection," as it has often done in this state, especially in certain districts, has left the slightest footing for his faith in the platform of his party or its candidate this year, because that candidate is himself a Henry George man, thrust upon his party for that reason and no other.

Free trade is in the fight in Ohio, and it is up to every man who cares to protect his own employment, or to get good prices from the produce of his fields, from the workers in the factories, to vote against the Johnson party—"horse, foot and dragoons."

Record of Mercer and Carey in the Big Clubs of the American League.

Now that the American League baseball season has closed, baseball fans in this city will read with interest the work that was done by Win Mercer, who was pitching for the Detroit team during the season, and of George Carey, who looked after the initial bag for the Washington, D. C., club. There has just been prepared a semi-official batting average of all the players of this league, coupled with other interesting statistics, which is here given.

During the season 123 players were used by all the clubs in the league. In the list of fielding averages Carey held 12th place. His record in them was as follows: Games 120; A. B. 455; R. 45; B. H. 143; S. B. 0; S. 8; Pct. 314. Mercer is close to the bottom of the long list, holding 112th place. His record was: Games 33; A. B. 98; R. 7; B. H. 17; S. B. 1; S.H. 4; Pct. 173. Carey has the best average in the outfield of any first baseman in the American League with but one exception, that being Mc-

The Proof Lies In East Liverpool Testimony.

It is not hard to prove the claims made for Doan's Kidney Pills. Scores of people in East Liverpool testify to their merit. Surely the evidence from friends and neighbors, plain statements of their experience, is better proof than the testimony of people residing in some far-away place. Read the following:

Mr. William Torrence, fireman at engine house No. 1 says: "For some time I was annoyed with symptons of either weakened or over-excited kidneys. I had noticed more than one recommendation made byp eople living in East Liverpool about Doan's Kidney Pills, and thinking that if the medicine performed half what it promised it might help me, I bought a box at Larkins' Drug Store. The treatment cured me."

Gann, of Baltimore, who has an average of 990. Carey's average was one point less. The official record gives Carey the following: Games 120; P. O. 196; A. 66; Errors 14; Pct. 989. Among the pitchers of this league, Mercer holds sixth place. He has to his credit 33 games; P. O. 18; A. 98; E. 6; Pct. 951. In the pitcher's average the following record is given Mercer: Games 33; B. B. 84; W. P. 2; H. P. B. 8; S. O. 36; Won 15 games; lost 15; T. O. Pct. 500. In the number of shut out games that Mercer has won and lost during the season was Won 4, Lost 4.

Sporting papers issued this week contain among other things the following about "Win Mercer:"

Detroit has released pitcher McMackin. The team has this season used twelve pitchers—Mercer, Mullin, Miller, Yeager, Siever, Cronin, McCarthy, Kissinger, Egan, Terry, Fisher and McMackin.

It is said that Mercer some time ago signed to manage the Detroit team next season.

To punish Pitcher Tannehill for deserting the Pittsburg team, he has been ordered to report at the home grounds every day until October 15. This prevents him from taking any part in the exhibition games, the proceeds of which go to the players, and it will also keep him from joining the Cantillion Stars which is managed by "Win Mercer," of East Liverpool.

BEAVER OIL FIELD

Drillers in the Vicinity of Georgetown Are Having Troubles of Their Own.

Drillers in the Georgetown oil fields are having trouble. Tools in three wells are stuck and this has delayed operations somewhat.

Gailey & Co., on the J. R. Peters farm and Finnegan & Co., on the Dawson farm, are sufferers. The most serious trouble happened to Le Comete & Co., drilling No. 3, on the Dawson farm. At a depth of 540 feet, with only a possible 150 feet to go, the tools stuck in the casing. The stem broke in the hole, and the well, which had indications of being a good one, will have to be adandoned. The well was to have been shot this week. Kirk & Critchlow, operating on the Frank Laughlin farm, have been forced to suspend operations on account of a scarcity of water. The concern drilled down 120 feet with an eight inch pipe and struck water, but after it had been bailed out twice the supply of water was exhausted. They will go deeper as this is the only way of getting a supply of water.

The National Transit company has commenced putting down three-inch pipe in Dry Run and Beaver creek. These are all gravity lines and the three inch pipes gives better satisfaction and enables the gaugers to get the oil from the fields in short time. All of the oil in the Georgetown field is pumped to Turkeyfoot, thence to McDonald, Pa. The work of laying pipes, replacing the smaller ones is an indication that oil in large quantities is expected from the field.

NEW SCHOOL HOUSE

Kensington Will Move Its Schools From the Hill to the Village.

The school board of Kensington has been successful in securing a grant from the township board for building of a new school house. The site selected for the structure is that of the George Cox Meat Packing house, which was burned about 18 months ago.

The present building is located on the hill north of the village and was considered not a suitable place because of the hardship incurred by the children in the climbing of the hill, especially in winter when the roads were icy and drifted. The new site is a splendid location for the school. Arrangements have been made whereby Mr. Cox becomes the owner of the old school building. What disposition he will make of it is not known. Kensington schools are graded ones and consist of two rooms.

Mr. Cox is a resident of this city.

After a most pleasant day all reprired to their homes wishing Mr. and Mrs. Williams a prosperous and happy future.

TOOL THAT ALMOST TALKS

Yet Its Complicated Mechanism Can Be Yerded by a Girl.

The most highly developed of machine tools is the automatic screw machine, and, like many another contrivance for saving labor, its home is New England. It is a development of the ordinary steel working lathe, the intermediate step being the monitor lathe, in which the various cutting tools protrude from the side of a steel turret like thirteen inch guns from a battleship turret. In the nonautomatic screw machine the turret is revolved by the operator so as to bring each tool into play, just as the turret on the old Monitor was revolved to bring one gun after another into action. But in the automatic machine the work is done without human guidance.

In making screws, nuts, bolts, studs and other small pieces that must be turned, drilled or threaded for watches, clocks, typewriters, electrical instruments and other mechanisms all the operator has to do is to feed the "stock"—a long, thin rod of steel or brass—to the machine. The feeding mechanism carries the rod slowly forward into the field of action. The turret advances and puts its first tool at work on the end of the rod. When this tool has done its task, the turret withdraws it, turns and advances a second tool into action. Each cutting tool around the turret has its distinct work to perform—one cutting a thread, another shaping a head, another putting on a point, another drilling a hole, still another putting on knurling. The turret automatically brings each of perhaps six tools into action, and when the work is finished the completed screw drops into a pan, while the "stock" is automatically fed forward to begin the complex operation again. A stream of machine oil pours continuously on the work to carry away the heat, and the little metal cuttings collect in a heap under the machine.

Hour after hour this wonderful automaton goes through its cycle of operations, the turret clicking every moment as it brings a new tool forward. Small brass pieces, on which but one tool cuts, are dropped at the rate of four a second. Large screws of complicated design upon which a whole turretful of tools must work are cut from a steel rod at the rate of one or two a minute. So perfectly are these screw machines constructed that an unskilled workman can operate a row of them. All he is required to do is to keep them fed with "stock." In some shops girls tend the machines.—Success.

Effective, but Dangerous.

To cleanse glass vases, carafes or bottles of any sort nothing is better than a little muriatic acid. A tablespoonful rinsed slowly around in a vase or decanter will cleanse it thoroughly, removing from the glass every particle of foreign matter. The acid can then be poured into another vase to perform the same office and even then returned to the bottle of supply for service on another occasion. After the acid is out of the vase or bottle the latter must be rinsed inside thoroughly first with hot soapsuds and then in several clear waters. Muratic acid is a deadly poison and must be used with great caution and only by an intelligent adult. A child or servant should never be intrusted with its use.—New York Post.

Paper Hunting.

One of the most exciting of all riding games is paper hunting, or following a trail made by dropping pieces of paper. It can be made as dangerous as steeplechasing or no more so than an ordinary gallop over the fields. The danger is in the fences to be ridden over, says Country Life In America. There is no limit to the pace but the speed of the leading horse and the necessity of keeping the trail. The "hare," as the man a-horseback who lays the trail is called, is expected to foil his pursuers, the "hounds," as often as he can by the arts of the fox or by his own ingenuity, only restricted by certain rules of the game.

Beauty depends more upon the condition of the liver and blood than anything else. A bad liver means a yellow, dark, muddy complexion, and bad blood means pimples, black heads and other skin eruptions which always detracts from otherwise pretty features. THE PUBLICATION OF MODERN ELOQUENCE (Ten Handsome Library Volumes) is an event of premier importance. For the first time the best After-Dinner Speeches, Lectures, Addresses, Anecdotes, Reminiscences and Repartee of America's and England's most brilliant men have been selected—edited—arranged—by an editorial board of men, themselves eloquent with word and pen—men who have achieved eminence in varied fields of activity.

These gems of spoken thought were fugitive from lack of proper preservative means, until the Hon. Thomas B. Reed, upon voluntarily retiring from the Speakership of the House of Representatives, gathered about him these men of mark and experience in literature, his friends and co-workers in other fields, and began the task of preparing this great work.

North, East, South and West, and the Mother Country as well, have been searched for gems in every field of eloquence.

Here was a lecture that had wrought upon the very souls of great audiences; there an after-dinner speech, which "between the lines" was freighted with the destinies of nations. Here was an eulogy expressing in few but virile words the love, the honor and the tears of millions, and there an address pregnant with the fruits of a strenuous life's work. Or, perchance, a reminiscence, keen, scintillant repartee, or a story, potent in significance, and aflame with human interest. Matter there was in abundance, for English-speaking peoples are eloquent, but the best, only the best, the great, the brilliant, the worthy to endure, has been the guiding rule of Mr. Reed and his colleagues. Their editorial labors have been immense.

While libraries and musty files were being delved into in a hundred places—while famous men were putting into manuscript their brain children—while reminiscence, repartee and story were being reduced to type, and speeches, addresses, and lectures, which money could not buy, were in friendship's name being offered, Mr. Reed was preparing for this work, his most ambitious contribution to literature—his piece de resistance—"The Influence and the History of Oratory." Prof. Lorenzo Sears, beloved and honored in many lands for his critical and contributory work in literature, was writing "The History of After-Dinner Speaking." So with Champ Clark, Edward Everett Hale, Senator Dolliver, and Hamilton Wright Mabie—each was producing a special contribution, which of itself is a gem of thought, a monument to research, study, and observant experience.

Whatever the viewpoint, this work is without precedent. It has no predecessor, no competitor. Speeches that have been flashed across continents, lectures that have been repeated over and over again to never-tiring audiences (but never published), addresses that made famous the man, the time, and the place—these are brought together for the first time, and with them a large number of the wittiest sayings of the wittiest men of the nineteenth century.

For an hour—for a whole evening in the easy chair at home—for the study of style and diction that have electrified brilliant assemblies, for the man ambitious to become a successful or popular public speaker, and for the one who has to prepare a toast or an address, this work is a never-failing source of charm and inspiration. Nor is this solely "a man's work." "The tenderest tribute to woman I have ever read," said Senator Dolliver when he read the manuscript of Joseph Choate's after-dinner speech, "The Pilgrim Mothers."

DON'T REPEAT RUIN.

Yet Ohio Democracy Demand Destruction.

ASK AGAIN FREE TRADE TRIAL.

Their Present Platform Most Radical Ever Advocated and Their Leader Wants All Custom Houses Wiped Out, Destroying Protection.

It is just ten years ago that the Democratic party persuaded the people of the United States to put their foot in it. Under the Harrison administration and the McKinley tariff the country was prosperous as never before that time. Business was in such full tide as to persuade many that it would stand any kind of tampering, and so the talk began about the need for a change as the reason for defeating Harrison and electing Cleveland and a congress that would carry out his recommendations in favor of the freest trade that any president had ever advocated in any of his public messages.

The election went for free trade and notice was thus served on that November night to every industrial interest that it was in peril. In consequence, every man in charge of an enterprise who was at all prudent and looked forward to the possibilities of the coming months, began to set his house in order for the troubles that were threatened by the Democratic platform and campaign speeches and newspapers. The contracting current of trade grew more and more constricted month after month until less than six months after Cleveland's election the effect was so fully felt in financial circles that the terrible currency panic of 1893 held the entire country in its grasp. This is the actual sequence of events. The threat of free trade stopped the factories, the stoppage of the factories affected the banks, and the disaster to the banks paralyzed every interest. It is true, just as Democrats state, that their free trade tariff bill did not get upon the statute book until many months afterward, but they were elected pledged to its passage, and it was the bounden duty of every manufacturer and business man of every kind to get ready for trouble from the first, and not wait until the storm burst upon him.

At that time there had been 30 years of almost uninterrupted Republican rule, for on no previous occasion had the Democrats been in power in all branches of the government at once, so that they could put into the statute book unhindered their free trade heresies. Almost the first act of the first Republican congress was a protective tariff law, to undo the mischief of the Democratic panic of 1857, just as the first act of the first congress of the United States under the constitution, when George Washington first was president, was a law for the protection and encouragement of American industries. The Morrill tariff carried the United States through the Civil war, and the marvelous progress of the succeeding years, and in consequence an entire generation had come and gone in the 35 years after the Democratic times of 1857 of "ten cents a day no roast beef," until the election of 1892, and the cry for a "change" sounded very plausible to the millions who never knew of the sufferings of their fathers, and to the other millions who had come upon these shores since those days.

Ten years, however, is not so long a period, and there are too many Americans, both among the women as well as among the men, who remember the troubles of the free trade panic precipitated by the election of Cleveland and a congress of his kind, to care to risk anything else of the sort. And yet that very question is before us today more truly than it has been at any time in the past ten years. Nor is it as much in evidence in any other state as it is in Ohio in the shape that the campaign is taking.

Tom Johnson, who has suddenly become the "ME" of the Democracy here, in the hope of equally being the "ME" of his party everywhere, is an out and out free trader. The Henry George doctrines, which he declares to be the "moving spirit of whatever I do," explicitly demand the abolition of every form of tax except that upon "land values." The single land tax would not leave the least room for even "incidental protection."

Mr. Johnson at Lima declared that he believed "Mr. George's proposition to abolish custom houses." Consequently, not one Democrat in Ohio, who has been with his party in the past when it favored even "incidental protection," as it has often done in this state, especially in certain districts, has left the slightest footing for his faith in the platform of his party or its candidate this year, because that candidate is himself a Henry George man, thrust upon his party for that reason and no other.

Free trade is in the fight in Ohio, and it is up to every man who cares to protect his own employment, or to get good prices from the produce of his fields, from the workers in the factories, to vote against the Johnson party—"horse, foot and dragoons."

BASEBALL GOSSIP

Record of Mercer and Carey in the Big Clubs of the American League.

Now that the American League baseball season has closed, baseball fans in this city will read with interest the work that was done by Win Mercer, who was pitching for the Detroit team during the season, and of George Carey, who looked after the initial bag for the Washington, D. C., club. There has just been prepared a semi-official batting average of all the players of this league, coupled with other interesting statistics, which is here given.

During the season 123 players were used by all the clubs in the league. In the list of fielding averages Carey held 12th place. His record in them was as follows: Games 120; A. B. 455; R. 45; B. H. 143; S. B. 0; S. 8; Pct. 314. Mercer is close to the bottom of the long list, holding 112th place. His record was: Games 33; A. B. 98; R. 7; B. H. 17; S. B. 1; S.H. 4; Pct. 173. Carey has the best average in the outfield of any first baseman in the American League with but one exception, that being McGann, of Baltimore, who has an average of 990. Carey's average was one point less. The official record gives Carey the following: Games 120; P. O. 196; A. 66; Errors 14; Pct. 989. Among the pitchers of this league, Mercer holds sixth place. He has to his credit 33 games; P. O. 18; A. 98; E. 6; Pct. 951. In the pitcher's average the following record is given Mercer: Games 33; B. B. 84; W. P. 2; H. P. B. 8; S. O. 36; Won 15 games; lost 15; T. O.; Pct. 500. In the number of shut out games that Mercer has won and lost during the season was Won 4, Lost 4.

Sporting papers issued this week contain among other things the following about "Win Mercer:"

Detroit has released pitcher McMackin. The team has this season used twelve pitchers—Mercer, Mullin, Miller, Yeager, Siever, Cronin, McCarthy, Kissinger, Egan, Terry, Fisher and McMackin.

It is said that Mercer some time ago signed to manage the Detroit team next season.

To punish Pitcher Tannehill for deserting the Pittsburg team, he has been ordered to report at the home grounds every day until October 15. This prevents him from taking any part in the exhibition games, the proceeds of which go to the players, and it will also keep him from joining the Cantillion Stars which is managed by "Win Mercer," of East Liverpool.

'TIS TRUE

The Proof Lies In East Liverpool Testimony.

It is not hard to prove the claims made for Doan's Kidney Pills. Scores of people in East Liverpool testify to their merit. Surely the evidence from friends and neighbors, plain statements of their experience, is better proof than the testimony of people residing in some far-away place. Read the following:

Mr. William Torrence, fireman at engine house No. 1 says: "For some time I was annoyed with symptons of either weakened or over-excited kidneys. I had noticed more than one recommendation made byp eople living in East Liverpool about Doan's Kidney Pills, and thinking that if the medicine performed half what it promised it might help me, I bought a box at Larkins' Drug Store. The treatment cured me."

Sold for 50 cents per box by all dealers. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

BEAVER OIL FIELD

Drillers in the Vicinity of Georgetown Are Having Troubles of Their Own.

Drillers in the Georgetown oil fields are having trouble. Tools in three wells are stuck and this has delayed operations somewhat.

Gailey & Co., on the J. R. Peters farm and Finnegan & Co., on the Dawson farm, are sufferers. The most serious trouble happened to Le Comete & Co., drilling No. 3, on the Dawson farm. At a depth of 540 feet, with only a possible 150 feet to go, the tools stuck in the casing. The stem broke in the hole, and the well, which had indications of being a good one, will have to be adandoned. The well was to have been shot this week. Kirk & Critchlow, operating on the Frank Laughlin farm, have been forced to suspend operations on account of a scarcity of water. The concern drilled down 120 feet with an eight inch pipe and struck water, but after it had been bailed out twice the supply of water was exhausted. They will go deeper as this is the only way of getting a supply of water.

The National Transit company has commenced putting down three-inch pipe in Dry Run and Beaver creek. These are all gravity lines and the three inch pipes gives better satisfaction and enables the gaugers to get the oil from the fields in short time. All of the oil in the Georgetown field is pumped to Turkeyfoot, thence to McDonald, Pa. The work of laying pipes, replacing the smaller ones is an indication that oil in large quantities is expected from the field.

NEW SCHOOL HOUSE

Kensington Will Move Its Schools From the Hill to the Village.

The school board of Kensington has been successful in securing a grant from the township board for building of a new school house. The site selected for the structure is that of the George Cox Meat Packing house, which was burned about 18 months ago.

The present building is located on the hill north of the village and was considered not a suitable place because of the hardship incurred by the children in the climbing of the hill, especially in winter when the roads were icy and drifted. The new site is a splendid location for the school. Arrangements have been made whereby Mr. Cox becomes the owner of the old school building. What disposition he will make of it is not known. Kensington schools are graded ones and consist of two rooms.

Mr. Cox is a resident of this city.

FIRST REUNION

Was Held by the Williams-Gavers Family, at Gavers, on Wednesday.

The home of George Williams, Sr., at Gavers, was a joyous place Wednesday. The Williams family decided to hold their first reunion this year, and all their children except Harvey Williams were present together with seventeen grandchildren. The meeting of the entire family was a most joyous occasion, and after the bountiful dinner was served, Mr. Marietta, of Salineville, made a picture of the group.

After a most pleasant day all reprired to their homes wishing Mr. and Mrs. Williams a prosperous and happy future.

TOOL THAT ALMOST TALKS

Yet Its Complicated Mechanism Can Be Tended by a Girl.

The most highly developed of machine tools is the automatic screw machine, and, like many another contrivance for saving labor, its home is New England. It is a development of the ordinary steel working lathe, the intermediate step being the monitor lathe, in which the various cutting tools protrude from the side of a steel turret like thirteen inch guns from a battleship turret. In the nonautomatic screw machine the turret is revolved by the operator so as to bring each tool into play, just as the turret on the old Monitor was revolved to bring one gun after another into action. But in the automatic machine the work is done without human guidance.

In making screws, nuts, bolts, studs and other small pieces that must be turned, drilled or threaded for watches, clocks, typewriters, electrical instruments and other mechanisms all the operator has to do is to feed the "stock"—a long, thin rod of steel or brass—to the machine. The feeding mechanism carries the rod slowly forward into the field of action. The turret advances and puts its first tool at work on the end of the rod. When this tool has done its task, the turret withdraws it, turns and advances a second tool into action. Each cutting tool around the turret has its distinct work to perform—one cutting a thread, another shaping a head, another putting on a point, another drilling a hole, still another putting on knurling. The turret automatically brings each of perhaps six tools into action, and when the work is finished the completed screw drops into a pan, while the "stock" is automatically fed forward to begin the complex operation again. A stream of machine oil pours continuously on the work to carry away the heat, and the little metal cuttings collect in a heap under the machine.

Hour after hour this wonderful automaton goes through its cycle of operations, the turret clicking every moment as it brings a new tool forward. Small brass pieces, on which but one tool cuts, are dropped at the rate of four a second. Large screws of complicated design upon which a whole turretful of tools must work are cut from a steel rod at the rate of one or two a minute. So perfectly are these screw machines constructed that an unskilled workman can operate a row of them. All he is required to do is to keep them fed with "stock." In some shops girls tend the machines.—Success.

Effective, but Dangerous.

To cleanse glass vases, carafes or bottles of any sort nothing is better than a little muriatic acid. A tablespoonful rinsed slowly around in a vase or decanter will cleanse it thoroughly, removing from the glass every particle of foreign matter. The acid can then be poured into another vase to perform the same office and even then returned to the bottle of supply for service on another occasion. After the acid is out of the vase or bottle the latter must be rinsed inside thoroughly first with hot soapsuds and then in several clear waters. Muratic acid is a deadly poison and must be used with great caution and only by an intelligent adult. A child or servant should never be intrusted with its use.—New York Post.

Paper Hunting.

One of the most exciting of all riding games is paper hunting, or following a trail made by dropping pieces of paper. It can be made as dangerous as steeplechasing or no more so than an ordinary gallop over the fields. The danger is in the fences to be ridden over, says Country Life In America. There is no limit to the pace but the speed of the leading horse and the necessity of keeping the trail. The "hare," as the man a-horseback who lays the trail is called, is expected to foil his pursuers, the "hounds," as often as he can by the arts of the fox or by his own ingenuity, only restricted by certain rules of the game.

Ivory and Climate.

The American climate, with its extremes of heat and cold, is very trying upon ivory, and ivory backed mirrors of European manufacture almost invariably crack across the back after a few months of use upon this side of the Atlantic. The American manufacturers have hit upon the expedient of leaving a space between glass and frame in order to allow for contraction and expansion.

Beauty is More Than Skin Deep.

Beauty depends more upon the condition of the liver and blood than anything else. A bad liver means a yellow, dark, muddy complexion, and bad blood means pimples, black heads and other skin eruptions which always detracts from otherwise pretty features. Without a healthy liver and good blood beauty is impossible. Wright's Celery Tea, a harmless, vegetable compound from natures own store house which acts directly upon the blood, nerves, liver and stomach, promoting a healthy digestion, creating new, rich, red corpuscles in the blood and stimulating the liver to a healthy activity, will impart a freshness, clearness and brilliancy to the complexion equal to that of youth. THE PUBLICATION OF MODERN ELOQUENCE (Ten Handsome Library Volumes) is an event of premier importance. For the first time the best After-Dinner Speeches, Lectures, Addresses, Anecdotes, Reminiscences and Repartee of America's and England's most brilliant men have been selected—edited—arranged—by an editorial board of men, themselves eloquent with word and pen—men who have achieved eminence in varied fields of activity.

These gems of spoken thought were fugitive from lack of proper preservative means, until the Hon. Thomas B. Reed, upon voluntarily retiring from the Speakership of the House of Representatives, gathered about him these men of mark and experience in literature, his friends and co-workers in other fields, and began the task of preparing this great work.

North, East, South and West, and the Mother Country as well, have been searched for gems in every field of eloquence.

Here was a lecture that had wrought upon the very souls of great audiences; there an after-dinner speech, which "between the lines" was freighted with the destinies of nations. Here was an eulogy expressing in few but virile words the love, the honor and the tears of millions, and there an address pregnant with the fruits of a strenuous life's work. Or, perchance, a reminiscence, keen, scintillant repartee, or a story, potent in significance, and aflame with human interest. Matter there was in abundance, for English-speaking peoples are eloquent, but the best, only the best, the great, the brilliant, the worthy to endure, has been the guiding rule of Mr. Reed and his colleagues. Their editorial labors have been immense.

While libraries and musty files were being delved into in a hundred places—while famous men were putting into manuscript their brain children—while reminiscence, repartee and story were being reduced to type, and speeches, addresses, and lectures, which money could not buy, were in friendship's name being offered, Mr. Reed was preparing for this work, his most ambitious contribution to literature—his piece de resistance—"The Influence and the History of Oratory." Prof. Lorenzo Sears, beloved and honored in many lands for his critical and contributory work in literature, was writing "The History of After-Dinner Speaking." So with Champ Clark, Edward Everett Hale, Senator Dolliver, and Hamilton Wright Mabie—each was producing a special contribution, which of itself is a gem of thought, a monument to research, study, and observant experience.

Whatever the viewpoint, this work is without precedent. It has no predecessor, no competitor. Speeches that have been flashed across continents, lectures that have been repeated over and over again to never-tiring audiences (but never published), addresses that made famous the man, the time, and the place—these are brought together for the first time, and with them a large number of the wittiest sayings of the wittiest men of the nineteenth century.

For an hour—for a whole evening in the easy chair at home—for the study of style and diction that have electrified brilliant assemblies, for the man ambitious to become a successful or popular public speaker, and for the one who has to prepare a toast or an address, this work is a never-failing source of charm and inspiration. Nor is this solely "a man's work." "The tenderest tribute to woman I have ever read," said Senator Dolliver when he read the manuscript of Joseph Choate's after-dinner speech, "The Pilgrim Mothers."

OPERATORS SAID "NO" TO MITCHELL'S OFFER

He Proposed, if Parties Couldn't Agree, to Have a Tribunal Appointed by the President Settle the Strike.

Suggestion Was Made In Administration Circles, Though Not Coming From the President, That Result of Conference Would AROUSE AND CONCENTRATE PUBLIC SENTIMENT—Operators Called Upon the President to Interfere by SENDING TROOPS to the Anthracite Region, if the Governor of Pennsylvania Failed to Suppress Lawlessness. Also Asked the President to INVOKE ACTION OF THE UNITED STATES COURTS—Made Fearful Charges of Lawlessness and Crime Against United Mine Workers—REFUSED TO TREAT WITH MITCHELL—Wanted COMMON PLEAS JUDGES In Pennsylvania Districts Where Collieries Are Located to ARBITRATE — MITCHELL DECLINED—DENIED MINERS ENTIRELY TO BLAME FOR LAWLESSNESS.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The suggestion was made in administration circles last night, though not as coming from the president, that the result of the coal conference had been to AROUSE AND CONCENTRATE PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

One of the president's advisers who was seen intimated that some consideration had been given before the conference to the question of the future course of the administration in the event either party refused absolutely to do anything toward a settlement. He intimated that there was a possibility the INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION MIGHT BE ABLE TO TAKE SOME STEPS WITH RESPECT TO CARRYING CHARGES ON THE ANTHRACITE COAL ROADS. STILL PUBLIC SENTIMENT, HE ADDED, WAS THE CHIEF RESOURCE OF THE PRESIDENT AS TO BOTH PARTIES TO THE STRIKE.

It was anounced at the White House last night that the PRESIDENT HAD NO COMMENT TO MAKE on yesterday's conference.

Operators Said Would Retard.

Stipulating that they should not be quoted the operators talked quite freely of the conference after leaving the White House.

Several of them declared the interference of the president had resulted in retarding rather than forwarding the settlement. They asserted that no progress had been made and said they would return to continue the contest. They declared that the situation was most serious as to coal supply, but said that coal would be furnished to the public, and that if given protection they could get men to mine coal to at least 70 per cent of their capacity. They declared there would be no compromise and that the strike would continue until the MINERS SUCCUMB. They asserted their determination to make no concessions further than the offers already made.

Mitchell Said Strike Would Continue.

During last evening President Mitchell, of the mine workers' union, dictated a formal statement concerning the proceedings of the conference and its results, in which he announced that the STRIKE WOULD CONTINUE AS A RESULT OF THE FAILURE OF THE CONFERENCE.

He concluded his statement as follows:

THE PRESIDENT EXPRESSED THE HOPE THAT THERE WOULD BE NO LAWLESSNESS IN THE COAL FIELDS AND THE REPRESENTATIVES OF THE MINERS ASSURED HIM THAT THEIR EVERY EFFORT WOULD BE EXERTED TO MAINTAIN PEACE.

The conference yesterday was a failure.

Apparently the rock upon which the conference split was recognition of the miners' union. The president had urged the contending parties to cease strife in the interests of the public welfare; the miners, through the president of their union, expressed a willingness to submit differences to arbitration of a tribunal to be named by the president and to enter into an agreement to abide by terms fixed by the arbitration for a period of from one to five years, and the employers, through the presidents of the railroad and coal companies and a leading independent mine operator, had squarely refused arbitration, had DENOUNCED THE MINERS' LABOR ORGANIZATION AS A LAWLESS AND ANARCHISTIC BODY, with which they could and would have no dealings; had DEMANDED FEDERAL TROOPS to insure complete protection to workers and their families in the mining region and court proceedings against the miners' union, and had offered if the men returned to work to SUBMIT GRIEVANCES AT INDIVIDUAL COLLIERIES TO THE DECISION OF THE JUDGES OF THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS for the districts of Pennsylvania in which the collieries are located. There the matter closed.

Each said at a late hour last night that the STRUGGLE WILL CONTINUE.

A statement was issued at the temporary White House last night, which, in part, named those present, who, besides the president, operators and miners' representatives, were Attorney General Knox, Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of labor, and Secretary Cortelyou.

The president made a statement, as follows:

President Appeals For Settlement.

I wish to call your attention to the fact that there are three parties affected by the situation in the anthracite trade: The operators, the miners and the general public. I speak for neither the operators nor the miners, but for the general public. The questions at issue which led to the situation affect immediately the parties concerned—the operators and the miners—but the situation itself vitally affects the public. As long as there seemed to be a reasonable hope that these matters could be adjusted between the parties, it did not seem proper to me to intervene in any way. I disclaim any right or duty to intervene in this way upon legal grounds or upon any official relation that I bear to the situation; but the urgency and the terrible nature of the catastrophe impending over a large portion of our people in the shape of a winter fuel famine impel me after much anxious thought to believe that my duty requires me to use whatever influence I personally can to bring to an end a situation which has become literally intolerable. I wish to emphasize the character of the situation and to say that its gravity is such that I am constrained urgently to insist that each one of you realize the heavy burden of responsibility upon him. We are upon the threshold of winter, with an already existing coal famine, the future terrors of which we can hardly yet appreciate.

Evil Possibilities Appalling.

The evil possibilities are so far-reaching, so appalling, that it seems to me that you are not only justified in sinking, but required to sink, for the time being, any tenacity as to your respective claims in the matter at issue between you. In my judgment the situation imperatively requires that you meet upon the common plane of the necessities of the public. With all the earnestness there is in me I ask that there be an immediate resumption of operations in the coal mines in some such way as will without a day's unnecessary delay meet the crying needs of the people.

I do not invite a discussion of your respective claims and positions. I appeal to your patriotism, to the spirit that sinks personal considerations and makes individual sacrifices for the general good.

Mr. Mitchell then said:

Would Accept Tribunal's Decision.

Mr. President, I am much impressed with what you say. I am much impressed with the gravity of the situation. We feel that we are not responsible for this terrible state of affairs. We are willing to meet the gentlemen representing the coal operators to try to adjust our differences among ourselves. If we cannot adjust them that way, Mr. President, we are willing that you shall name a tribunal who shall determine the issues that have resulted in the strike, and if the gentlemen representing the operators will accept the award or decision of such a tribunal, the miners will willingly accept it, even if it is against their claims.

The president said:

Before considering what ought to be done I think it only just to both of you—both sides—and desirable from my standpoint, that you should have time to consider what I have stated as to the reasons for my getting you together, and I shall trespass so far upon your good nature as to ask that this interview cease now and that you come back at 3 o'clock. I should like you to think over what I have stated, not to decide now, but give it careful thought and return at 3 o'clock.

The conference then adjourned until 3 o'clock. Upon reassembling, Mr. Baer spoke as follows:

Mr. President, do we understand you correctly that we will be expected to answer the proposition submitted by Mr. Mitchell this morning?

The President—It will be a pleasure to me to hear any answer that you are willing to make.

Mr. Baer—I have prepared an answer.

Mr. Baer made the following statement:

Statement by Mr. George F. Baer, president of the Reading railroad:

To the President of the United States:

We understand your anxiety as forcibly expressed in the statement you read to us this morning to bring about "an immediate resumption of operations in the coal mines in some such was as will, without a day's unnecessary delay meet the crying needs of the people." We infer that you desired us to consider the offer of Mr. Mitchell, verbally made this morning, expressing and speaking for the United Mine Workers, to go back to work if you would appoint a commission to determine the questions at issue.

You distinctly say that you "do not invite a discussion of your respective claims and positions." But we assume that a statement of what is going on in the coal regions will not be irrelevent. We represent the owners of coal mines in Pennsylvania. There are from 15,000 to 20,000 men at work mining and preparing coal. They are abused, assaulted, injured and maltreated by the United Mine Workers. They can only work under the protection of armed guards. Thousands of other workmen are deterred from working by the intimidation, violence and crimes inaugurated by the United Mine Workers, over whom John Mitchell, whom you invited to meet you, is chief.

Reign of Lawlessness In Region.

I need not picture the daily crimes committed by the members of this organization. The "domestic tranquility" which every constitution declares is the chief object of government does not exist in the coal regions. There is a terrible reign of lawlessness and crime there. Only the lives and property of the members of the secret oath bound order which declared that the locals should have "full power to suspend operations at collieries" until the non-union men joined their order, are safe. Every effort is made to prevent the mining of coal, and when mined, Mitchell's men dynamite bridges and tracks, mob train men and by all manner of violence try to prevent its shipment to relieve the public.

The constitution of Pennsylvania guarantees "protection to life and property." In express terms it declares the right of acquiring, possessing and defending property "to be inalienable." When riot and anarchy too great to be appeased by the civil power occur, the governor of Pennsylvania is bound to call out the state troops to suppress it. He must fearlessly use the whole power of the state to protect life and property and to establish peace—not an armed truce, but the peace of the law which protects every man at work and going to and from work. He has sent troops to the coal regions. Gradually the power of the law is asserting itself. Unless encouraged by false hopes, order will soon be restored, and then we can mine coal to meet the public wants. If the power of Pennsylvania is insufficient to re-establish the reign of law, the constitution of the United States requires the president, when requested by the legislature and the government, "to suppress domestic violence." You see there is a lawful way to secure coal for the public.

Shouldn't Treat With Fomenters.

The duty of the hour is not to waste time negotiating with the fomenters of this anarchy and insolent defiance of law, but to do as was done in the war of the rebellion, restore the majesty of law, the only guardian of a free people, and to re-establish order and peace at any cost.

The government is a contemptible failure if it can only protect the lives and property, and secure the comfort of the people by compromising with the violators of law and the instigators of violence and crime.

Just now it is more important to teach ignorant men, dwelling among us, misled and used as tools by citizens of other states, that at whatever cost and inconvenience to the public Pennsylvania will use the whole power of government to protect not only the man who wants to work, but his wife and children while he is at work, and to punish every man who by instigation or by overt acts attempts to deprive any man of his liberty to work.

Propose Local Judges as Arbitrators.

Under these conditions we decline to accept Mr. Mitchell's considerate offer to let our men work on terms he names. He has no right to come from Illinois to dictate terms, on the acceptance of which anarchy and crime shall cease in Pennsylvania. He must stop his people from killing, maiming and abusing Pennsylvania citizens and from destroying property. He must stop it because it is unlawful and not because of any bargain with us.

We will tdd to our offer "to continue the wages existing at the time of strike and to take up at each colliery and adjust any grievance," this further condition—if the employers and employes at any particular colliery cannot reach a satisfactory adjustment of any alleged grievances, it shall be referred to the judges of the court of common pleas of the district in which the colliery is situated for final determination.

(Signed) GEORGE F. BAER,
President Philadelphia and Reading Iron and Coal Company and Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal and Iron Company and Temple Iron Company.

The following is the text of the statement made to the president by the official representatives of the miners' union:

Mr. President:

He has no right to come from Illinois to dictate terms, on the acceptance of which anarchy and crime shall cease in Pennsylvania. He must stop his people from killing, maiming and abusing Pennsylvania citizens and from destroying property. He must stop it because it is unlawful and not because of any bargain with us.

We will tdd to our offer "to continue the wages existing at the time of strike and to take up at each colliery and adjust any grievance," this further condition—if the employers and employes at any particular colliery cannot reach a satisfactory adjustment of any alleged grievances, it shall be referred to the judges of the court of common pleas of the district in which the colliery is situated for final determination.

(Signed) GEORGE F. BAER,
President Philadelphia and Reading Iron and Coal Company and Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal and Iron Company and Temple Iron Company.

The following is the text of the statement made to the president by the official representatives of the miners' union:

Statement of Miners' Leader.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3, 1902.

Mr. President:

At the conference this morning, we, the accredited representatives of the anthracite coal mine workers, were much impressed with the views you expressed and the dangers to the welfare of our country from a prolongation of the coal strike that you so clearly pointed out. Conscious of the responsibility resting upon us, conscious of our duty to society, conscious of our obligatins to the 150,000 mine wrkers whom we have the honor to represent, we have, after most careful consideration and with the hope of relieving the situation and averting the sufferings and hardship which would inevitaoly follow in the wake of a coal famine, decided to propose a resumption of coal mining upon the lines hereinafter suggested.

Before doing so, Mr. President, we desire to say that we are not prompted to suggest this course because of any doubts of justice of our claims. In deferring to your wishes we are prompted by no fear on our part of our ability to continue the contest to a successful issue, thanks to the generous assistance rendered us by our fellow workers in this and other lands; thanks to the justice loving American public, whose sympathies are always on the side of right, we are able to continue the struggle indefinitely. But, confident of our ability to demonstrate to any impartial tribunal the equity of our demands for higher wages and improved environment, we propose that the issues culminating in this strike shall be referred to you and a tribunal of your own selection, and agree to accept our award upon all or any of the questions involved. If you will accept this responsibility, and if the representatives of the coal operators will signify their willingness to have your decision incorporated in an agreement for not less than one year or more than five years, as may be mutually determined by themselves and the anthracite coal mine workers, and will pay the scale of wages which you and the tribunal appointed by you shall award, we will immediately call a convention and recommend a resumption of work, upon the understanding that the wages which shall be paid are to go into effect from the day upon which work is resumed.

Very respectfully yours,
JOHN MITCHELL,
President U. M. W. of A.
JOHN FAHY,
THOMAS DUFFY,
D. D. NICHOLLS,
District Presidents U. M. W. of A.

The statement of President Thomas followed much the same lines as that of Mr. Baer, as did that of Mr. Markle. In part, the latter said:

Markle Demands President Interfere.

I fully endorse these remarks from you, and as an American citizen and a citizen of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, I now ask you to perform the duties vested in you as the president of the United States, to at once squelch the anarchistic condition of affairs existing in the anthracite regions by the strong arm of the military at your command. A record of 21 murders, a long list of brutal assaults, houses and bridges dynamited, daily acts of violence now taking place, and several washeries burned down, are actual evidence of this condition of lawlessness existing there. Are you asking us to deal with a set of outlaws? I can hardly conceive of such a thought.

Please remember, Mr. President, that there is a large idle class of men now in the anthracite coal fields, taking every kind of unlawful act to prevent those who desire to work to relieve the situation in the anthracite coal market. Please remember that in the field now are only 3,000 national guard; please remember that the total national guard of the state of Pennsylvania is only about 10,000

Mr. President, a condition exists, not a theory, in the anthracite coal fields between a set of professional agitators and their co-workers on the one side (anarchistic in their acts) and the operators and a majority of the working men on the other, who are endeavoring to relieve the seriousness of the anthracite coal situation. You, Mr. President, I believe, can relieve the situation at once. Will you do it?

Truesdale Asks Government Action.

Mr. Truesdale said in part:

It is first and foremost our duty, and we take this occasion to state and press it upon your consideration and through you upon that of the authorities of the state of Pennsylvania, to insist upon it that the existing conditions of anarchy and lawlessness, of riot and rapine, a condition which has been raging with more or less violence throughout the anthracite regions during the past five months, be immediately and permanently suppressed. That to this end we ask that the entire authority and power of the state of Pennsylvania, civil and military, and, if needs be, that of the United States government as well, be exercised forthwith.

Second, we ask that the civil branch of the United States government, taking cognizance of and following the decisions of its courts rendered in litigation growing out of previous similar conditions, at once institute proceedings against the illegal organization known as the United Mine Workers' organization, its well known officers, agents and members, to enjoin and restrain permanently it and them from continuing this organization and requiring them to desist immediately from conspiracy, conniving, aiding or abetting the outlawry and intolerable conditions in the anthracite regions, for which they, and they alone, are responsible. We are advised by our counsel that such civil action will lie on the part of the United States government, as it is well known that United States statutes are daily, openly and grossly violated; that previous decisions of the courts justify fully such action being taken at this time; and that ample remedy can be given immediately and effectively for existing conditions.

Serious Charges Against Strikers.

Third—Then, Mr. President, there is a great, a pressing, duty imposed upon us at this time to thousands of true loyal citizens of Pennsylvania, who have been lawfully pursuing their various avocations or professions under great difficulties, and who, with great sacrifice, have been abused, villified, boycotted and in many cases almost ruined, because they had the manhood to raise their voices against the illegal acts and violences of this illegal organization and its officers and agents. No step can be taken by us, Mr. President, which can possibly result in placing those good citizens of Pennsylvania at the further mercy of this illegal organization, its officers and members. Think of it, Mr. President, physicians have been threatened and boycotted because they saw fit to minister to the dying child of some poor worker, because he was exercising his God-given right to labor for his family and to provide for the wants of his dying child. Members of the clergy have been treated likewise for performing the offices of the dead to the member of a family of a non-union worker.

Fourth—Another duty, Mr. President, and we regard it as the most supreme. One-sixth of the membership of this illegal organization is composed of young men and boys between the ages of 14 and 20, the future citizens and lawmakers of the great state of Pennsylvania. These young men and boys during the past two years have had their young, immature minds poisoned with the most dangerous, anarchistic, distorted, wicked views and errors concerning the rights of citizenship and property that any one can possibly conceive of, all through the teachings and practice of the officers, organizers and apostles of the United Mine Workers' association. Mr. President, no adjustment of this matter can be thought of which by any possibility can result in further strengthening and fixing in the minds of this youthful element in the anthracite coal fields the belief that the teachings of this organization and its officers, with their acts and doings in support thereof, constitute the ethics and objects of American citizenship frequently referred to during the past weeks in proclamations issued in behalf of this illegal organization.

His Duty to Fight Its Teachings.

Fifth and finally, Mr. President, as a plain citizen of these United States, looking at the whole question broadly and with reference to its possible effect on our future welfare and prosperity, I think it my bounden duty to resist and combat with every power and faculty, both paysical and mental, the avowed and evident object and purpose of this United Mine Workers' association, as exemplified in the anthracite district of Pennsylvania today and as taught and defended by its officers and other exponents of its well-known and so-called purposes and principles.

Mr. David Wilcox, vice president and general counsel of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad company, said in part:

The United Mine Workers of America is an association composed of a large number of miners and laborers engaged throughout the country in mining anthracite and bituminous coal and employed by the owners of the mines. It has divided the whole country into various districts, each of which is represented by a so-called president and embraces local unions, and it seeks to compel every one engaged in the industry to join the organization. The affairs of the organization are managed by an executive commiteee having its headquarters in Indianapolis and by conventions called from time to time representing the entire organization. The object and practice of the association are so far as possible to regulate the supply of labor engaged in the occupation of coal mining through the country and the terms of employment thereof. It thus consists of one central organization, which restrains and controls the production of fuel everywhere throughout the country and monopolizes the labor engaged therein. These are its purposes and results. Its ultimate object is to control the entire fuel supply of the country. At this hearing it is represented by one person, while six persons represent but a part of the production of anthracite coal. It is therefore the most extensive combination and monopoly which the country has ever known

Court Decisions Against Its Acts.

It habitually enforces its orders and directions by whatever means may be most effectual, including strikes, boycotts, picketing, besetting and the like, not confined to its own members alone, but in which are compelled to join as far as possible all other persons similarly employed. Its violent methods have already received the condemnation of the circuit court of the United States (Reinecke Co. vs Wood, 112 Fed rep. 478; United States vs Weber, 114 Fed rep. 950; United States vs Haggerty, 116 Fed rep. 510).

In accordance with these objects last May the United Mine Workers ordered a strike in the anthracite coal region, which extended to all the workings therein. Since that time it has been so far as possible forcing all persons who are willing to work to cease doing so. Within a few days one or more miners who had returned to work, having been formerly connected with the mine workers' association have been murdered by those acting in sympathy with the strike.

These facts show that the mine workers' association is not within the rules regarding ordinary local labor organizations. On the contrary, the association and all of its members constitute a combination or conspiracy, not only at common law, but also in restraint of trade and commerce among the several states, and also an attempt to monopolize the labor necessary in supplying coal found in one state to the markets of other states, and thus to monopolize this part of the commerce among the several states. The action had by said United Mine Workers has greatly injured the interstate business originating in the anthracite coal fields.

Restraining Interstate Commerce.

The courts have already many times held that such a combination is unlawful within the act of congress of July 2, 1890, passed for the purpose of preventing restraints of interstate commerce and known as the "Sherman act" (United States vs Counsil, 54 Fed. Rep. 994; 157 Fed. Rep. 85; Thomas vs Cincinnati Co., 62 Fed. Rep. 802, 803; United States vs Agler, 62 Fed. Rep. 824; U. S. vs Elliot, 62 Fed. Rep. 801; 64 Fed Rep. 27; Arthur vs Oakes, 63 Fed Rep. 310; in re Debs, 64 Fed. Rep. 724; Affd. 158 U. S. 564, 600; U. S. vs Trans-Missouri association, 166 U. S. 280, 343, 356). In addition to the circuit court of the United States for the western district of Virginia, upon March 25 last, held that this identical United Mine Workers' association was illegal (U. S. vs Weber, 114 Fed. Rep. 950). The case comes clearly within the Debs case. That was an effort to organize a universal association of railroad employes, covering the whole country, for the purpose of controlling interstate commerce. The government instituted suit by injunction, and when the injunction was disobeyed enforced the same by the use of the United States army. This quickly disposed of the matter, and the action of the government was upheld by the courts (in re Debs, 64 Fed. Rep. 724, affd. 158 U. S. 564, 600).

The true couse for the national government is, therefore, to proceed in accordance with the precedent in the Debs case. These considerations were called to the attention of the president and the attorney general last June.

The anthracite coal companies are making every effort to mine coal as rapidly as possible. They are obstructed by the failure of the state authorities to fully protect those who desire to work for them and by the failure of the national government to enforce the statute under which the mine workers' association has been already held to be illegal. As soon as action of that sort is effectively taken there can be no doubt that the supply of coal will be ample.

Thomas P. Fowler, president New York, Ontario and Western Railway company, briefly stated that he supported the statements of the other operators, but later on would make a statement.

The president asked Mr. Mitchell if he had anything further to say.

Mr. Mitchell said:

Mitchell Denies Operators' Charges.

The charge made by the gentlemen that 20 murders have been committed in the anthracite coal regions during the present strike is untrue. If they will name the men and will show that they have committed the murders I will resign my position. That is a fair proposition. Mr. President, that is a fair example of how our organization and our people are maligned. The truth of the matter is, as far as I know, there have been seven deaths unfortunately. No one regrets them more than I do. Three of them were committed by the coal and iron police, and no one else has been charged with them. Goo knows the miners do not escape being charged with everything done there. They speak about burnings. There was a reward offered for burnings. I can bring affidavits of a hundred people if necessary that the lightning caused one burning that they charged to the United Mine Workers. Mr. President, I have admitted on more than one occasion that there has been some lawlessness, but I will say that a large portion of such lawlessness has been provoked by criminals who have been brought into the anthracite regions to recruit the coal and iron police. I want to say, Mr. President, that I feel very keenly the attacks made upon me and my people, but I came here with the intention of doing nothing and saying nothing that would affect reconciliation.

The Operators Said "NO."

The president then asked the representatives of the anthracite companies whether they would accept Mr. Mitchell's proposition. They answered "No." In response to a further question from the president they stated that they would have no dealings whatever with Mr. Mitchell looking toward a settlement of the question at issue, and that they had no other proposition to make save what was contained in the statement of Mr. Baer, which, in effect, was that if any man chose to resume work and had a difficulty with his employer, both should leave the settlement of the question to the judge of the court of common pleas in the district in which the mine was located.

At about 5 o'clock the conference was brought to a close without agreement.

The Burmese Game of Chess.

The Burmese game seems to be rather a heavy variety of chess, the peculiarity of it being that a pawn "queens" when it strikes an imaginary diagonal line drawn from the player's left hand corner to the right hand corner in front of him—his opponent's left hand corner. The pieces are massed on the player's right hand, but the three privileged pawns—there are only three allowed to "queen"—can only "queen" when the queen has been taken. We should say here that no piece equivalent to our queen really exisits in eastern chess, the most powerful piece being equivalent to our rook or castle.

In the Burmese game the privilege of translation confers no higher hand on a piece than that of "chekoy"—called queen in European equivalence by virtue of its being unique—a piece possessing scarcely more power than a pawn. The usual move of the piece called "queen" in all oriental varieties of chess is one square diagonally and it is never one of the superior pieces.—London Spectator.

A Plant 1,000 Years Old.

In the town of Hildersheim, Germany, is probably the most unique plant in the world. It is a rosebush 1,000 year old and sprouts from its branches have realized fabulous sums. Some years ago a rich Englishman offered $250,000 for this entire tree, but the sum was indignantly refused. This wonderful plant clings amid thickly grown moss against the side of the famous old Church of St. Michael. It is claimed that it has bloomed perennially since the days of King Alfred, and this statement has never been disputed, for its record has been as carefully kept as the pedigree of the bluest blooded family in the kingdom. It is supposed to have been discovered by some mysterious means through the medium of King Louis of Hildersheim as far back as 1032.

How to Get Ahead.

The best way to get ahead of the other fellow is to advertise oftener and better and pay better attention to your business.—White's Sayings.

Abuse Doesn't Pay.

Do not abuse your rival in your advertisements. The majority of people always favor the abused.

A DOMESTIC DIFFICULTY.

The Solution Was Original, Though the Result Was Unhandy.

"Every time I tell this story," a bright society matron remarked, "somebody accuses me of making it up, but it is a true story nevertheless.

"Up in the Virginia mountains David and I took a long walk to explore the wild country road near our hotel. Away up on the rough mountain side was a little cabin, and as I have a most fervent human interest in the home life of all peoples remote from cities I proposed that we visit the cabin, with the wayfarers' usual pretext, to ask for a drink of water. In the one room of the small house were the usual furnishings, a few chairs, many dogs lying about, guns on the wall, a high bed in each corner and a homely table spread with homely crockery in the center of the household picture. A plain little woman, worn and aged, but very neat in calico frock and gingham apron, met us at the door and asked us in, while one of the rough boys lounging on the porch was dispatched to the spring for fresh water.

"Instead of the usual mountaineer's open fireplace, with iron crane and kettles, was a surprising arrangement of a cooking stove mounted on a kitchen table. My glance reverted to this curious sight so often that our mountain hostess seemed constrained to explain.

"'You uns ain't used to seein' cook stoves fixed up that way, I reckon,' she said apologetically. 'Pap, he got the cook stove down in town way las' May, and he didn' think 'bout the stovepipe, and he didn' git 'nuff to reach up to that there hole in the chimbly, so we uns jes' h'isted the cook stove up on that there table till he gits time to go to town and git some more stovepipe. 'Tain't handy to climb up on a cheer to cook, and I wish to the land pap'd hurry hisself and git to town arter that there stovepipe. It'd be a heap handier to hev that there cook stove down on the groun'.'

"Of course 'we uns' agreed with the good woman that her complaint was well based, but we praised her cleverness and originality in utilizing the kitchen table. Probably not one woman in 10,000,000 would have ever suggested that way out of the domestic difficulty."—Detroit Free Press.

Much In a Name.

An Englishman who has just returned from an extensive tour through the east tells a good story in which he was one of the principals.

He was one of a party at a banquet tendered to the maharajah of Patiala, at which nearly a hundred guests, representing nearly every branch of Indian life, were present. As a special guest he was seated on the left of the Indian potentate.

During the meal he noticed that the latter partook of some fine Cumberland ham, and, knowing that it was contrary to the Indian caste rules to eat any portion of a pig, he without a thought asked his highness how it was he was eating ham.

The maharajah looked at his plate, then, turning round to his body servant standing at the back of his chair, said:

"What am I eating?"

The servant instantly replied:

"Mutton, sahib." And without referring to the incident again the maharajah continued his meal.

After the banquet the Englishman related the incident to an Indian judge, and the latter said:

"If that servant had said 'ham,' he would have been headless before tomorrow morning. It is advisable not to notice caste rules when you are with natives of rank."—Pearson's.

What Answer Could She Make?

Mother—Elsie, your sister tells me you took a second helping of pudding at Mrs. Brown's today.

Little Elsie—So I did, mamma.

"Do you think that was right, Elsie?"

"Yes. You know you have often told me not to contradict any one, and Mrs. Brown said, 'I know Elsie will have a second helping to pudding,' and I couldn't contradict her, could I?"—Washington Star.

scious of our duty to society, conscious of our obligatins to the 150,000 mine wrkers whom we have the honor to represent, we have, after most careful consideration and with the hope of relieving the situation and averting the sufferings and hardship which would inevitaoly follow in the wake of a coal famine, decided to propose a resumption of coal mining upon the lines hereinafter suggested.

Before doing so, Mr. President, we desire to say that we are not prompted to suggest this course because of any doubts of justice of our claims. In deferring to your wishes we are prompted by no fear on our part of our ability to continue the contest to a successful issue, thanks to the generous assistance rendered us by our fellow workers in this and other lands; thanks to the justice loving American public, whose sympathies are always on the side of right, we are able to continue the struggle indefinitely. But, confident of our ability to demonstrate to any impartial tribunal the equity of our demands for higher wages and improved environment, we propose that the issues culminating in this strike shall be referred to you and a tribunal of your own selection, and agree to accept our award upon all or any of the questions involved. If you will accept this responsibility, and if the representatives of the coal operators will signify their willingness to have your decision incorporated in an agreement for not less than one year or more than five years, as may be mutually determined by themselves and the anthracite coal mine workers, and will pay the scale of wages which you and the tribunal appointed by you shall award, we will immediately call a convention and recommend a resumption of work, upon the understanding that the wages which shall be paid are to go into effect from the day upon which work is resumed.

Very respectfully yours,

The statement of President Thomas followed much the same lines as that of Mr. Baer, as did that of Mr. Markle. In part, the latter said:

Markle Demands President Interfere.

I fully endorse these remarks from you, and as an American citizen and a citizen of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, I now ask you to perform the duties vested in you as the president of the United States, to at once squelch the anarchistic condition of affairs existing in the anthracite regions by the strong arm of the military at your command. A record of 21 murders, a long list of brutal assaults, houses and bridges dynamited, daily acts of violence now taking place, and several washeries burned down, are actual evidence of this condition of lawlessness existing there. Are you asking us to deal with a set of outlaws? I can hardly conceive of such a thought.

Please remember, Mr. President, that there is a large idle class of men now in the anthracite coal fields, taking every kind of unlawful act to prevent those who desire to work to relieve the situation in the anthracite coal market. Please remember that in the field now are only 3,000 national guard; please remember that the total national guard of the state of Pennsylvania is only about 10,000.

Mr. President, a condition exists, not a theory, in the anthracite coal fields between a set of professional agitators and their co-workers on the one side (anarchistic in their acts) and the operators and a majority of the working men on the other, who are endeavoring to relieve the seriousness of the anthracite coal situation. You, Mr. President, I believe, can relieve the situation at once. Will you do it?

Truesdale Asks Government Action.

Mr. Truesdale said in part:

It is first and foremost our duty, and we take this occasion to state and press it upon your consideration and through you upon that of the authorities of the state of Pennsylvania, to insist upon it that the existing conditions of anarchy and lawlessness, of riot and rapine, a condition which has been raging with more or less violence throughout the anthracite regions during the past five months, be immediately and permanently suppressed. That to this end we ask that the entire authority and power of the state of Pennsylvania, civil and military, and, if needs be, that of the United States government as well, be exercised forthwith.

Second, we ask that the civil branch of the United States government, taking cognizance of and following the decisions of its courts rendered in litigation growing out of previous similar conditions, at once institute proceedings against the illegal organization known as the United Mine Workers' organization, its well-known officers, agents and members, to enjoin and restrain permanently it and them from continuing this organization and requiring them to desist immediately from conspiracy, conniving, aiding or abetting the outlawry and intolerable conditions in the anthracite regions, for which they, and they alone, are responsible. We are advised by our counsel that such civil action will lie on the part of the United States government, as it is well known that United States statutes are daily, openly and grossly violated; that previous decisions of the courts justify fully such action being taken at this time; and that ample remedy can be given immediately and effectively for existing conditions.

Serious Charges Against Strikers.

Third—Then, Mr. President, there is a great, a pressing, duty imposed upon us at this time to thousands of true loyal citizens of Pennsylvania, who have been lawfully pursuing their various avocations or professions under great difficulties, and who, with great sacrifice, have been abused, villified, boycotted and in many cases almost ruined, because they had the manhood to raise their voices against the illegal acts and violences of this illegal organization and its officers and agents. No step can be taken by us, Mr. President, which can possibly result in placing those good citizens of Pennsylvania at the further mercy of this illegal organization, its officers and members. Think of it, Mr. President, physicians have been threatened and boycotted because they saw fit to minister to the dying child of some poor worker, because he was exercising his God-given right to labor for his family and to provide for the wants of his dying child. Members of the clergy have been treated likewise for performing the offices of the dead to the member of a family of a non-union worker.

Fourth—Another duty, Mr. President, and we regard it as the most supreme. One-sixth of the membership of this illegal organization is composed of young men and boys between the ages of 14 and 20, the future citizens and lawmakers of the great state of Pennsylvania. These young men and boys during the past two years have had their young, immature minds poisoned with the most dangerous, anarchistic, distorted, wicked views and errors concerning the rights of citizenship and property that any one can possibly conceive of, all through the teachings and practice of the officers, organizers and apostles of the United Mine Workers' association. Mr. President, no adjustment of this matter can be thought of which by any possibility can result in further strengthening and fixing in the minds of this youthful element in the anthracite coal fields the belief that the teachings of this organization and its officers, with their acts and doings in support thereof, constitute the ethics and objects of American citizenship frequently referred to during the past weeks in proclamations issued in behalf of this illegal organization.

His Duty to Fight Its Teachings.

Fifth and finally, Mr. President, as a plain citizen of these United States, looking at the whole question broadly and with reference to its possible effect on our future welfare and prosperity, I think it my bounden duty to resist and combat with every power and faculty, both paysical and mental, the avowed and evident object and purpose of this United Mine Workers' association, as exemplified in the anthracite district of Pennsylvania today and as taught and defended by its officers and other exponents of its well-known and so-called purposes and principles.

Mr. David Wilcox, vice president and general counsel of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad company, said in part:

The United Mine Workers of America is an association composed of a large number of miners and laborers engaged throughout the country in mining anthracite and bituminous coal and employed by the owners of the mines. It has divided the whole country into various districts, each of which is represented by a so-called president and embraces local unions, and it seeks to compel every one engaged in the industry to join the organization. The affairs of the organization are managed by an executive commiteee having its headquarters in Indianapolis and by conventions called from time to time representing the entire organization. The object and practice of the association are so far as possible to regulate the supply of labor engaged in the occupation of coal mining through the country and the terms of employment thereof. It thus consists of one central organization, which restrains and controls the production of fuel everywhere throughout the country and monopolizes the labor engaged therein. These are its purposes and results. Its ultimate object is to control the entire fuel supply of the country. At this hearing it is represented by one person, while six persons represent but a part of the production of anthracite coal. It is therefore the most extensive combination and monopoly which the country has ever known.

Court Decisions Against Its Acts.

It habitually enforces its orders and directions by whatever means may be most effectual, including strikes, boycotts, picketing, besetting and the like, not confined to its own members alone, but in which are compelled to join as far as possible all other persons similarly employed. Its violent methods have already received the condemnation of the circuit court of the United States (Reinecke Co. vs Wood, 112 Fed rep. 478; United States vs Weber, 114 Fed rep. 950; United States vs Haggerty, 116 Fed rep. 510).

In accordance with these objects last May the United Mine Workers ordered a strike in the anthracite coal region, which extended to all the workings therein. Since that time it has been so far as possible forcing all persons who are willing to work to cease doing so. Within a few days one or more miners who had returned to work, having been formerly connected with the mine workers' association have been murdered by those acting in sympathy with the strike.

These facts show that the mine workers' association is not within the rules regarding ordinary local labor organizations. On the contrary, the association and all of its members constitute a combination or conspiracy, not only at common law, but also in restraint of trade and commerce among the several states, and also an attempt to monopolize the labor necessary in supplying coal found in one state to the markets of other states, and thus to monopolize this part of the commerce among the several states. The action had by said United Mine Workers has greatly injured the interstate business originating in the anthracite coal fields.

Restraining Interstate Commerce.

The courts have already many times held that such a combination is unlawful within the act of congress of July 2, 1890, passed for the purpose of preventing restraints of interstate commerce and known as the "Sherman act" (United States vs Counsil, 54 Fed. Rep. 994; 157 Fed. Rep. 85; Thomas vs Cincinnati Co., 62 Fed. Rep. 802, 803; United States vs Agler, 62 Fed. Rep. 824; U. S. vs Elliot, 62 Fed. Rep. 801; 64 Fed Rep. 27; Arthur vs Oakes, 63 Fed Rep. 310; in re Debs, 64 Fed. Rep. 724; Affd. 158 U. S. 564, 600; U. S. vs Trans-Missouri association, 166 U. S. 280, 343, 356). In addition to the circuit court of the United States for the western district of Virginia, upon March 25 last, held that this identical United Mine Workers' association was illegal (U. S. vs Weber, 114 Fed. Rep. 950). The case comes clearly within the Debs case. That was an effort to organize a universal association of railroad employes, covering the whole country, for the purpose of controlling interstate commerce. The government instituted suit by injunction, and when the injunction was disobeyed enforced the same by the use of the United States army. This quickly disposed of the matter, and the action of the government was upheld by the courts (in re Debs, 64 Fed. Rep. 724, affd. 158 U. S. 564, 600).

The true couse for the national government is, therefore, to proceed in accordance with the precedent in the Debs case. These considerations were called to the attention of the president and the attorney general last June.

The anthracite coal companies are making every effort to mine coal as rapidly as possible. They are obstructed by the failure of the state authorities to fully protect those who desire to work for them and by the failure of the national government to enforce the statute under which the mine workers' association has been already held to be illegal. As soon as action of that sort is effectively taken there can be no doubt that the supply of coal will be ample.

Thomas P. Fowler, president New York, Ontario and Western Railway company, briefly stated that he supported the statements of the other operators, but later on would make a statement.

The president asked Mr. Mitchell if he had anything further to say.

Mr. Mitchell said:

Mitchell Denies Operators' Charges.

The charge made by the gentlemen that 20 murders have been committed in the anthracite coal regions during the present strike is untrue. If they will name the men and will show that they have committed the murders I will resign my position. That is a fair proposition. Mr. President, that is a fair example of how our organization and our people are maligned. The truth of the matter is, as far as I know, there have been seven deaths unfortunately. No one regrets them more than I do. Three of them were committed by the coal and iron police, and no one else has been charged with them. God knows the miners do not escape being charged with everything done there. They speak about burnings. There was a reward offered for burnings. I can bring affidavits of a hundred people if necessary that the lightning caused one burning that they charged to the United Mine Workers. Mr. President, I have admitted on more than one occasion that there has been some lawlessness, but I will say that a large portion of such lawlessness has been provoked by criminals who have been brought into the anthracite regions to recruit the coal and iron police. I want to say, Mr. President, that I feel very keenly the attacks made upon me and my people, but I came here with the intention of doing nothing and saying nothing that would affect reconciliation.

The Operators Said "NO."

The president then asked the representatives of the anthracite companies whether they would accept Mr. Mitchell's proposition. They answered "No." In response to a further question from the president they stated that they would have no dealings whatever with Mr. Mitchell looking toward a settlement of the question at issue, and that they had no other proposition to make save what was contained in the statement of Mr. Baer, which, in effect, was that if any man chose to resume work and had a difficulty with his employer, both should leave the settlement of the question to the judge of the court of common pleas in the district in which the mine was located.

At about 5 o'clock the conference was brought to a close without agreement.

The Burmese Game of Chess.

The Burmese game seems to be rather a heavy variety of chess, the peculiarity of it being that a pawn "queens" when it strikes an imaginary diagonal line drawn from the player's left hand corner to the right hand corner in front of him—his opponent's left hand corner. The pieces are massed on the player's right hand, but the three privileged pawns—there are only three allowed to "queen"—can only "queen" when the queen has been taken. We should say here that no piece equivalent to our queen really exisits in eastern chess, the most powerful piece being equivalent to our rook or castle.

In the Burmese game the privilege of translation confers no higher hand on a piece than that of "chekoy"—called queen in European equivalence by virtue of its being unique—a piece possessing scarcely more power than a pawn. The usual move of the piece called "queen" in all oriental varieties of chess is one square diagonally and it is never one of the superior pieces.—London Spectator.

A Plant 1,000 Years Old.

In the town of Hildersheim, Germany, is probably the most unique plant in the world. It is a rosebush 1,000 year old and sprouts from its branches have realized fabulous sums. Some years ago a rich Englishman offered $250,000 for this entire tree, but the sum was indignantly refused. This wonderful plant clings amid thickly grown moss against the side of the famous old Church of St. Michael. It is claimed that it has bloomed perennially since the days of King Alfred, and this statement has never been disputed, for its record has been as carefully kept as the pedigree of the bluest blooded family in the kingdom. It is supposed to have been discovered by some mysterious means through the medium of King Louis of Hildersheim as far back as 1032.

How to Get Ahead.

The best way to get ahead of the other fellow is to advertise oftener and better and pay better attention to your business.—White's Sayings.

Abuse Doesn't Pay.

Do not abuse your rival in your advertisements. The majority of people always favor the abused.

A DOMESTIC DIFFICULTY.

The Solution Was Original, Though the Result Was Unhandy.

"Every time I tell this story," a bright society matron remarked, "somebody accuses me of making it up, but it is a true story nevertheless.

"Up in the Virginia mountains David and I took a long walk to explore the wild country road near our hotel. Away up on the rough mountain side was a little cabin, and as I have a most fervent human interest in the home life of all peoples remote from cities I proposed that we visit the cabin, with the wayfarers' usual pretext, to ask for a drink of water. In the one room of the small house were the usual furnishings, a few chairs, many dogs lying about, guns on the wall, a high bed in each corner and a homely table spread with homely crockery in the center of the household picture. A plain little woman, worn and aged, but very neat in calico frock and gingham apron, met us at the door and asked us in, while one of the rough boys lounging on the porch was dispatched to the spring for fresh water.

"Instead of the usual mountaineer's open fireplace, with iron crane and kettles, was a surprising arrangement of a cooking stove mounted on a kitchen table. My glance reverted to this curious sight so often that our mountain hostess seemed constrained to explain.

"'You uns ain't used to seein' cook stoves fixed up that way, I reckon,' she said apologetically. 'Pap, he got the cook stove down in town way las' May, and he didn' think 'bout the stovepipe, and he didn' git 'nuff to reach up to that there hole in the chimbly, so we uns jes' h'isted the cook stove up on that there table till he gits time to go to town and git some more stovepipe. 'Tain't handy to climb up on a cheer to cook, and I wish to the land pap'd hurry hisself and git to town arter that there stovepipe. It'd be a heap handier to hev that there cook stove down on the groun'.'

"Of course 'we uns' agreed with the good woman that her complaint was well based, but we praised her cleverness and originality in utilizing the kitchen table. Probably not one woman in 10,000,000 would have ever suggested that way out of the domestic difficulty."—Detroit Free Press.

Much In a Name.

An Englishman who has just returned from an extensive tour through the east tells a good story in which he was one of the principals.

He was one of a party at a banquet tendered to the maharajah of Patiala, at which nearly a hundred guests, representing nearly every branch of Indian life, were present. As a special guest he was seated on the left of the Indian potentate.

During the meal he noticed that the latter partook of some fine Cumberland ham, and, knowing that it was contrary to the Indian caste rules to eat any portion of a pig, he without a thought asked his highness how it was he was eating ham.

The maharajah looked at his plate, then, turning round to his body servant standing at the back of his chair, said:

"What am I eating?"

The servant instantly replied:

"Mutton, sahib." And without referring to the incident again the maharajah continued his meal.

After the banquet the Englishman related the incident to an Indian judge, and the latter said:

"If that servant had said 'ham,' he would have been headless before tomorrow morning. It is advisable not to notice caste rules when you are with natives of rank."—Pearson's.

Little Elsie—So I did, mamma.

"Do you think that was right, Elsie?"

"Yes. You know you have often told me not to contradict any one, and Mrs. Brown said, 'I know Elsie will have a second helping to pudding,' and I couldn't contradict her, could I?"—Washington Star.

UP TO LAND OWNERS.

All Their Property Is Put In Jeopardy.

FARM AND TOWN ALIKE IN PERIL.

Tom Johnsonism Thrusts an Issue Into This Campaign Conflicting With All Past Democracy and Hostile to That Party's Antecedents.

Every farm owner in Ohio,, every holder of the least little lot of land for his humble home, finds himself confronted in this campaign with his right to that land threatened with a platform and leaders that would take it away altogether.

Private ownership in land is a crime, according to the doctrine that these men declare to be their real aim and ultimate purpose. The state must own and possess every particle of it, and no man, woman or child ever can or shall again own a single iota of land. Such is the thing actually aimed at.

Confiscation of it all would be the quickest way to get the land away from its present proprietors, who are only usurpers, according to the Henry George Theory, that Tom Johnson openly boasts to be the one thing that he aims at and is working for in the present campaign.

But, since confiscation would be too raw and radical a thing to try, or even to talk about openly yet, there are other ways of getting at the same result, that may prolong tne agony, yet deprive private owners of their property. One sure way is to tax them to the full income value of the land, its rental, as George calls it. It would then revert to the state mighty quick, and that is just what Johnson and Bigelow are driving at under the disguise of the Democratic party in Ohio.

The Democracy as a party have not adopted this doctrine, but their Ohio leaders in the present campaign are working for it. They deny that it is "the single land tax," to use the universal phrase descriptive of the Henry George theory. With a quibble and a quirk they say that what they propose is "a tax upon land values," just as if the man whose real estate would thus be taken from him would care one whit whether it was a tax on the land, or a tax on the value of the land, or a tax that took away his entire income from it, or its rental, as they call it.

Just as Tom Johnson has dodged his tax to the tune of hundreds of thousands of dollars by tying up the Cuyahoga county auditor with an injunction from the United States court, so he dodges behind the Democratic party in this thing, and denies the principles that he professes. The most conspicuous supporter of Henry Georgeism, Johnson wiggles away from the plain words of Henry George, and denies them as brazenly as Peter denied his Master. But the exact words of George himself best tell the real, the undeniable, the ultimate outcome of the theories that Johnson does confess are the things that he aims at above all beside, and those words he can not dodge.

Nor can the Democratic party of Ohio dodge what Johnson wants. They brought him back from Brooklyn to be their mayor of Cleveland, when thousands of Cleveland Democrats refused to vote for him on the ground that he was a non-resident of Ohio. They have since by formal action of their state convention made him master of their party machinery. At that convention they acclaimed him as their next nominee for governor of Ohio, and their favorite son for the presidential nomination in 1904. All this time the party managers knew perfectly well that Henry Georgeism was Tom Johnson's only known fixed principle, for his absolute free trade ideas are part of that. They knew that they had no other excuse even for nominating H. S. Bigelow to head their state ticket this year than that Tom Johnson discovered him because they are both socialists and single taxers together.

Individual Democrats may express their disgust and dismay at this prostitution of their party platform and machinery by refusing their votes for these strange doctrines. Thousands of them will bolt Bigelow because of it. But the party managers went into this thing with their eyes wide open. They can not escape the lash when Johnson cracks the party whip, as he has been doing in Democratic counties in a way that Ohio never knew before. Such a surrender to socialism will arouse the resentment of every owner of the property that is jeopardized, and the multitudes whose homes are their all will be the men most angered by this attack.

We Will Stand by Our Soldiers and Our Flag.

General C. H. Grosvenor, in his speech to the Buckeye club at Columbus, said on the Philippine question: "Speaking for the Republicans in congress, I can say that we utterly refuse to abandon our obligations in those islands or to pledge ourselves what we will ultimately do with them. We will not run away from them; we will not cease to make war in them until in every one of them the American flag floats free and unvexed by a foe. We do not condemn the American soldier for the work he has done in them, but we will stand by the old army and the new army, the flag and the country, and fear not the puny assaults of the Democratic minority."

The Practice Was Instituted by the Early Roman Rulers.

The practice of kissing the hands was instituted by the early Roman rulers as a mark of subjection as much as one of respect, and under the first Cæsar the custom was kept up, but only for a time.

These worthies conceived the idea that the proper homage due to their exalted station called for less familiar modes of obeisance, so the privilege of kissing the emperor's hand was reserved as a special mark of condescension or distinction for officers of high rank.

No such restriction, however, was placed on the emperors themselves, who, if they wished to confer signal honor on any of their subjects, kissed either the mouths or the eyes of those they wished specially to favor, the kiss generally intimating some promotion or personal satisfaction for some achievement.

Roman fathers considered the practice of kissing of so delicate a nature that they never kissed their wives in the presence of their daughters.

Then, too, only the nearest relatives were allowed to kiss their kindred of the gentler sex on the mouth, for in those days, as now, kissing was not a mere arbitrary sign, but it was the spontaneous language of the affections, especially that of love.

Under the Romans if a lover kissed his betrothed before marriage she inherited half of his worldly goods in the event of his death before the marriage ceremony, and if she died her heritage descended to her nearest relatives.

A PANTHER'S DEN.

Clean and Bright, In Decided Contrast to the Popular Idea.

It was my good fortune to discover the newly abandoned lair of a cougar family and further and to me new evidence of that fastidious cleanliness which is a marked characteristic of the animal. This retreat was not at all the typical "panther's den" of tradition, but a bush grown harborage under the edge of a rock with just enough of shelf to keep off the rain. I should not have found this breeding place but for a certain well gnawed array of bones scattered over a little smooth bench above a creek channel. From this boneyard there was a very traceable path leading through grass and brush to the retreat where the dam had housed her young. The evidence here told plainly of the cougar's long immunity from annoyance and attack and of a thoroughly cleanly habit of life. There was no bone or other sign of feasting about the lair. The dam had carried her kill to the creek bench in every instance, and the children had been called to the dining room. As bones which would have been crunched or eaten by grown animals had been perfectly cleaned by the kits I was able to judge of their summer's diet. This had consisted mostly of minor game, rabbits, marmots, grouse and the like, with an occasional small deer. At least one whole family of badgers, old and young, had been served, pussy having probably lain for them at their hole until they were all in.—Franklin Welles Calkins in Outing.

The Horse Is Useful Even If Dead.

The whale can be put to a great number of uses when dead, as can also the horse, the various parts of which are utilized as follows: Hair of mane and tail for haircloth, stuffing mattresses and making bags for crushing seed in oil mills, etc.; hide and skin tanned for leather for covering tables, etc.; tendons used for glue and gelatin; flesh for food for dogs, poultry and man; fat used for lamps, etc.; intestines used for covering sausages, making gut strings, etc.; heart and tongue for food; hoofs for gelatin, prussiate, fancy snuffboxes, etc.; bones for knife handles, phosphorus, superphosphate of lime and manure; blood for manure and shoes for reuse or for old iron.—Spare Moments.

"So you don't know whether you want to go to work or not?"

"Well, suh," answered Mr. Erastus Pinkley, "I'd like de refusal ob de job a little while."

The Time Honored Spanker.

Once my sister Floy was sent on an errand for some things for my mother.

There was a traveling man there who was selling carpet spankers, and he asked her:

"Has your mother got one of these spankers?"

"No, sir," she replied.

"What does she use?" he asked.

"Her hand," was the prompt reply.—Chicago Chronicle.

"Why do you ask, my boy?"

"I thought I'd like to catch it," said Tommy.

THE CHAMBERLAINS

FATHER AND SON, WHO ARE NOW IN BRITISH CABINET.

Many Points of Resemblance Between These Two—How They Have Created a Precedent In English Politics—Distinct Personalities.

When Mr. Balfour, premier of England, appointed J. Austen Chamberlain, son of Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, British secretary of state for the colonies, to the cabinet post of attorney general, he created a precedent in British politics. It is the first time in English history that father and son have sat in the cabinet simultaneously.

Joseph Austen Chamberlain is the eldest son of Joseph Chamberlain by his first wife and is now thirty-nine years old. His father first sent him to Rugby to make a man of him, then to Trinity college, Cambridge, to round off the corners, and after that to Paris and Berlin, so that he might learn the world. He was then made private secretary to his father. Thus he was able to get an inside view of British politics, so that ten years ago he was ready to represent the eastern division of Worcestershire in parliament. He made a good name as Liberal-Unionist whip and later as a civil lord of the admiralty. He was made financial secretary to the treasury in 1900.

In political circles in England it is said that the younger man's appointment to the post of attorney general was dictated by his father at the time Lord Salisbury turned over the reins of government to his nephew, Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, and that the new premier made the concession in order to gain the good will of the elder chamberlain.

Be that as it may, the younger Chamberlain is a pleasant, agreeable fellow of much real ability and of acknowledged great promise. He is a fluent speaker, with much of his father's sound common sense and all of his straightforwardness. His enemies accuse him of trading on his father's name. With his smooth shaven face, his monocle and his orchid in buttonhole, after the precise manner of his father, such a criticism is no more than natural. But he is really a man of strong individuality and quite unaffected. On the occasion of his maiden speech in the house of commons he was warmly congratulated by Mr. Gladstone.

In England today there is probably no one more conspicuous in politics

than Joseph Chamberlain, colonial secretary and the man who was responsible for the Boer war. Joe Chamberlain, as he is called, was born in London in 1836 of middle class parentage and left school when he was sixteen years of age to enter his father's business. The elder Chamberlain had established a manufactory of screws at Birmingham, and to this business the young man gave such close attention that twenty years later he was able to retire with a fortune of $200,000 a year. Since 1874 Joe Chamberlain has devoted his time to politics.

In 1888 he was sent to this country to negotiate a settlement of the fisheries complication. He became acquainted with Miss Endicott, daughter of Cleveland's secretary of war, and later in the same year he returned to marry her. Since then he has made several visits to this country.

His home is in the suburbs of Birmingham, where on an estate of seventy acres he has built a large and homelike residence. The notable feature of this place is the extensive orchid house, in which between 5,000 and 6,000 species of this rare and beautiful plant are grown.

Orchids are indeed Mr. Chamberlain's one weakness. He always appears in his seat in the house with an orchid in his buttonhole. He has no other particular amusement, is not fond of literature and takes no interest in horse racing or like sports. He is essentially a serious, hardworking man.

Austen Chamberlain's mother was the daughter of the late Archbishop Kenrick of Birmingham. Like his father, he takes life rather seriously, devoting his time to politics. As he is unmarried he makes his home with his father and his American stepmother.

His Sheepish Actions.

"Again," complains the devoted wife, "I have been told that you have been flirting with that odious Miss Mashem on the piazza."

"Bah!" retorts the gay husband, thinking to ridicule the suspicions of his wife. "Bah!" he repeats.

"It isn't so bad," asserts the wife, "for a man to be guilty, but what I detest is when he acts so sheepish about it."—Baltimore American.

Advertising Beats Salesmen.

J. B. Brooks, manager of the Blood Balm company of Atlanta, Ga., says:

"We do not employ traveling men, believing that newspaper advertising is more valuable than personal solicitation. We create a demand for our goods by advertising them extensively. The salaries we would have to pay traveling men we put into increased appropriations for advertising and find the results are more satisfactory."

Results From Advertising.

The benefit of advertising in the newspapers in a way to attract attention has been demonstrated anew in the case of a weekly publication in New York. Four years ago the subscribers did not number 50,000. Chiefly by means of display advertisements in the leading daily newspapers its circulation has been increased to 300,000. The ads. were striking and convincing.—Philadelphia Record.

The Community's Pulse.

The newspaper is the pulse of the community, and there isn't a better method for reaching the public than through its columns.—Saginaw (Mich.) News.

Big Ads., Big Sales.

The Sterling Remedy company is using 12,000 publications to advertise Cascarets, and the sales this year will, it asserts, exceed 10,000,000 boxes.

Persistence Brings Success.

Not every advertiser meets with success, yet the most successful merchant in any locality is always one who advertises.—Printers' Ink.

GIRL WOMEN.

The general standard of measurement for womanhood is "grown-up-ness." When a girl is emancipated from school and arrives at the dignity of trailing skirts and elaborate hair dressing she is looked upon as a young woman. But nature knows nothing of such standards. When the womanly function is established womanhood is attained according to her standards, and there is need of womanly care and caution. It is girlish ignorance or neglect at this critical time which often results in long years of after misery.

Mothers who perceive the evidences of functional derangement in young girls should promptly have them begin the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, tranquilizes the nerves and tones up the whole system.

"My troubles started during my girlhood," writes Miss Flora I. Greer, of 107 Howe Street, Akron, O., "but did not prove serious until 1893. From that time I did not see a well day. I suffered at every monthly period with terrible headache, irritation of the spine and pains in my heels. I had soreness through my hips and ovaries all the time and constant backache. One doctor would tell me one thing ailed me, another would say something altogether different, but they only relieved me. I then wrote you and followed your advice. I took five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and five vials of 'Pellets.' Have not had a single symptom of my old trouble so far. Can sleep good, work hard, and eat solid and substantial food without distress."

UP TO LAND OWNERS.

All Their Property Is Put In Jeopardy.

FARM AND TOWN ALIKE IN PERIL.

Tom Johnsonism Thrusts an Issue Into This Campaign Conflicting With All Past Democracy and Hostile to That Party's Antecedents.

Every farm owner in Ohio,. every holder of the least little lot of land for his humble home, finds himself confronted in this campaign with his right to that land threatened with a platform and leaders that would take it away altogether.

Private ownership in land is a crime, according to the doctrine that these men declare to be their real aim and ultimate purpose. The state must own and possess every particle of it, and no man, woman or child ever can or shall again own a single iota of land. Such is the thing actually aimed at.

Confiscation of it all would be the quickest way to get the land away from its present proprietors, who are only usurpers, according to the Henry George Theory, that Tom Johnson openly boasts to be the one thing that he aims at and is working for in the present campaign.

But, since confiscation would be too raw and radical a thing to try, or even to talk about openly yet, there are other ways of getting at the same result, that may prolong the agony, yet deprive private owners of their property. One sure way is to tax them to the full income value of the land, its rental, as George calls it. It would then revert to the state mighty quick, and that is just what Johnson and Bigelow are driving at under the disguise of the Democratic party in Ohio.

The Democracy as a party have not adopted this doctrine, but their Ohio leaders in the present campaign are working for it. They deny that it is "the single land tax," to use the universal phrase descriptive of the Henry George theory. With a quibble and a quirk they say that what they propose is "a tax upon land values," just as if the man whose real estate would thus be taken from him would care one whit whether it was a tax on the land, or a tax on the value of the land, or a tax that took away his entire income from it, or its rental, as they call it.

Just as Tom Johnson has dodged his tax to the tune of hundreds of thousands of dollars by tying up the Cuyahoga county auditor with an injunction from the United States court, so he dodges behind the Democratic party in this thing, and denies the principles that he professes. The most conspicuous supporter of Henry Georgeism, Johnson wiggles away from the plain words of Henry George, and denies them as brazenly as Peter denied his Master. But the exact words of George himself best tell the real, the undeniable, the ultimate outcome of the theories that Johnson does confess are the things that he aims at above all beside, and those words he can not dodge.

Nor can the Democratic party of Ohio dodge what Johnson wants. They brought him back from Brooklyn to be their mayor of Cleveland, when thousands of Cleveland Democrats refused to vote for him on the ground that he was a non-resident of Ohio. They have since by formal action of their state convention made him master of their party machinery. At that convention they acclaimed him as their next nominee for governor of Ohio, and their favorite son for the presidential nomination in 1904. All this time the party managers knew perfectly well that Henry Georgeism was Tom Johnson's only known fixed principle, for his absolute free trade ideas are part of that. They knew that they had no other excuse even for nominating H. S. Bigelow to head their state ticket this year than that Tom Johnson discovered him because they are both socialists and single taxers together.

Individual Democrats may express their disgust and dismay at this prostitution of their party platform and machinery by refusing their votes for these strange doctrines. Thousands of them will bolt Bigelow because of it. But the party managers went into this thing with their eyes wide open. They can not escape the lash when Johnson cracks the party whip, as he has been doing in Democratic counties in a way that Ohio never knew before. Such a surrender to socialism will arouse the resentment of every owner of the property that is jeopardized, and the multitudes whose homes are their all will be the men most angered by this attack.

We Will Stand by Our Soldiers and Our Flag.

General C. H. Grosvenor, in his speech to the Buckeye club at Columbus, said on the Philippine question: "Speaking for the Republicans in congress, I can say that we utterly refuse to abandon our obligations in those islands or to pledge ourselves what we will ultimately do with them. We will not run away from them; we will not cease to make war in them until in every one of them the American flag floats free and unvexed by a foe. We do not condemn the American soldier for the work he has done in them, but we will stand by the old army and the new army, the flag and the country, and fear not the puny assaults of the Democratic minority."

The practice of kissing the hands was instituted by the early Roman rulers as a mark of subjection as much as one of respect, and under the first Cæsar the custom was kept up, but only for a time.

No such restriction, however, was placed on the emperors themselves, who, if they wished to confer signal honor on any of their subjects, kissed either the mouths or the eyes of those they wished specially to favor, the kiss generally intimating some promotion or personal satisfaction for some achievement.

Roman fathers considered the practice of kissing of so delicate a nature that they never kissed their wives in the presence of their daughters.

Then, too, only the nearest relatives were allowed to kiss their kindred of the gentler sex on the mouth, for in those days, as now, kissing was not a mere arbitrary sign, but it was the spontaneous language of the affections, especially that of love.

Under the Romans if a lover kissed his betrothed before marriage she inherited half of his worldly goods in the event of his death before the marriage ceremony, and if she died her heritage descended to her nearest relatives.

THE CHAMBERLAINS

FATHER AND SON, WHO ARE NOW IN BRITISH CABINET.

Many Points of Resemblance Between These Two—How They Have Created a Precedent In English Politics—Distinct Personalities.

When Mr. Balfour, premier of England, appointed J. Austen Chamberlain, son of Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, British secretary of state for the colonies, to the cabinet post of attorney general, he created a precedent in British politics. It is the first time in English history that father and son have sat in the cabinet simultaneously.

Joseph Austen Chamberlain is the eldest son of Joseph Chamberlain by his first wife and is now thirty-nine years old. His father first sent him to Rugby to make a man of him, then to Trinity college, Cambridge, to round off the corners, and after that to Paris and Berlin, so that he might learn the world. He was then made private secretary to his father. Thus he was able to get an inside view of British politics, so that ten years ago he was ready to represent the eastern division of Worcestershire in parliament. He made a good name as Liberal-Unionist whip and later as a civil lord of the admiralty. He was made financial secretary to the treasury in 1900.

In political circles in England it is said that the younger man's appointment to the post of attorney general was dictated by his father at the time Lord Salisbury turned over the reins of government to his nephew, Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, and that the new premier made the concession in order to gain the good will of the elder chamberlain.

Be that as it may, the younger Chamberlain is a pleasant, agreeable fellow of much real ability and of acknowledged great promise. He is a fluent speaker, with much of his father's sound common sense and all of his straightforwardness. His enemies accuse him of trading on his father's name. With his smooth shaven face, his monocle and his orchid in buttonhole, after the precise manner of his father, such a criticism is no more than natural. But he is really a man of strong individuality and quite unaffected. On the occasion of his maiden speech in the house of commons he was warmly congratulated by Mr. Gladstone.

In England today there is probably no one more conspicuous in politics

than Joseph Chamberlain, colonial secretary and the man who was responsible for the Boer war. Joe Chamberlain, as he is called, was born in London in 1836 of middle class parentage and left school when he was sixteen years of age to enter his father's business. The elder Chamberlain had established a manufactory of screws at Birmingham, and to this business the young man gave such close attention that twenty years later he was able to retire with a fortune of $200,000 a year. Since 1874 Joe Chamberlain has devoted his time to politics.

In 1888 he was sent to this country to negotiate a settlement of the fisheries complication. He became acquainted with Miss Endicott, daughter of Cleveland's secretary of war, and later in the same year he returned to marry her. Since then he has made several visits to this country.

His home is in the suburbs of Birmingham, where on an estate of seventy acres he has built a large and homelike residence. The notable feature of this place is the extensive orchid house, in which between 5,000 and 6,000 species of this rare and beautiful plant are grown.

Orchids are indeed Mr. Chamberlain's one weakness. He always appears in his seat in the house with an orchid in his buttonhole. He has no other particular amusement, is not fond of literature and takes no interest in horse racing or like sports. He is essentially a serious, hardworking man.

Austen Chamberlain's mother was the daughter of the late Archbishop Kenrick of Birmingham. Like his father, he takes life rather seriously, devoting his time to politics. As he is unmarried he makes his home with his father and his American stepmother.

His Sheepish Actions.

"Again," complains the devoted wife, "I have been told that you have been flirting with that odious Miss Mashem on the piazza."

"Bah!" retorts the gay husband, thinking to ridicule the suspicions of his wife. "Bah!" he repeats.

"It isn't so bad," asserts the wife, "for a man to be guilty, but what I detest is when he acts so sheepish about it."—Baltimore American.

Advertising Beats Salesmen.

J. B. Brooks, manager of the Blood Balm company of Atlanta, Ga., says: "We do not employ traveling men, believing that newspaper advertising is more valuable than personal solicitation. We create a demand for our goods by advertising them extensively. The salaries we would have to pay traveling men we put into increased appropriations for advertising and find the results are more satisfactory."

Results From Advertising.

The benefit of advertising in the newspapers in a way to attract attention has been demonstrated anew in the case of a weekly publication in New York. Four years ago the subscribers did not number 50,000. Chiefly by means of display advertisements in the leading daily newspapers its circulation has been increased to 300,000. The ads. were striking and convincing.—Philadelphia Record.

The Community's Pulse.

The newspaper is the pulse of the community, and there isn't a better method for reaching the public than through its columns.—Saginaw (Mich.) News.

Big Ads., Big Sales.

The Sterling Remedy company is using 12,000 publications to advertise Cascarets, and the sales this year will, it asserts, exceed 10,000,000 boxes.

Persistence Brings Success.

GIRL WOMEN.

The general standard of measurement for womanhood is "grown-up-ness." When a girl is emancipated from school and arrives at the dignity of trailing skirts and elaborate hair dressing she is looked upon as a young woman. But nature knows nothing of such standards. When the womanly function is established womanhood is attained according to her standards, and there is need of womanly care and caution. It is girlish ignorance or neglect at this critical time which often results in long years of after misery.

Mothers who perceive the evidences of functional derangement in young girls should promptly have them begin the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, tranquilizes the nerves and tones up the whole system.

"My troubles started during my girlhood," writes Miss Flora I. Greer, of 107 Howe Street, Akron, O., "but did not prove serious until 1893. From that time I did not see a well day. I suffered at every monthly period with terrible headache, irritation of the spine and pains in my heels. I had soreness through my hips and ovaries all the time and constant backache. One doctor would tell me one thing ailed me, another would say something altogether different, but they only relieved me. I then wrote you and followed your advice. I took five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and five vials of 'Pellets.' Have not had a single symptom of my old trouble so far. Can sleep good, work hard, and eat solid and substantial food without distress."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the bowels and stimulate the sluggish liver.

Little Creatures About Our Homes

By LE ROY WELD

IV.—Frogs and Toads.

SINCE the people of this country have begun to imitate the French in that they have taken to eating frogs' legs as among the daintiest of morsels, a new interest has been manifested in the study of this cold blooded batrachian. The frog is an amphibious animal and during the early part of its life lives entirely in the water, and by means of gills obtains from the water the oxygen for the purification of its blood. Later in life it becomes an air breather, with lungs resembling those of the higher warm blooded animals.

In early spring frogs resort to some pool, where the female lays a great number of eggs, a thousand or more, each about the size of a common pin head and all enveloped in an albuminous substance which serves in a measure to protect them. Through this the dark brown eggs are seen as little dots, quite evenly distributed. As the eggs are laid by the female they are arranged in irregular masses by the male. Frogs are ordinarily rather solitary in their lives, but at the breeding season they frequently congregate in large numbers in some sequestered pond. Frogs and toads do not gather at the same place for breeding. The eggs of the toad are arranged by the male in long spirals. The frogs and the toads of this country leave their eggs to be hatched by the warmth of the sun and give their progeny no further attention. If the weather is warm, the eggs hatch in a few days, but in cool weather they frequently require four or even six weeks.

Before leaving the albuminous substance which surrounds the egg the baby frog, which is called a tadpole, resembles a fish and has no appendages except the tail. The embryo frog is then about half an inch long. External gills are very rapidly developed. Water is drawn into the mouth and passed out through these branching gills to furnish air for the purification of the blood. These gills are absorbed in a few days, and the external gills, resembling those of a fish, are formed. About this time the hind legs make their appearance near the root of the tail and grow rapidly, the tail being absorbed quite as fast. The front limbs are now added, and lungs are substituted for the gills, and the little "polliwog" becomes a frog. It has changed from a water breathing to an air breathing animal, and its diet has changed from vegetable to animal.

The largest of the frogs in the United States is the bullfrog, though several other species are common in this country. All of them resemble one another both in appearance and habits. The hind legs are much longer than the front legs, which fact renders walking nearly impossible, but the frog is peculiarly adapted to leaping, not only by the great size and strength of the hind legs, but by the peculiar manner in which it folds them when at rest. It is these large, muscular hind legs that are so much sought after by the epicure, and well they may be, for they are as much more delicate than chicken as that is more delicate than beef. The hind legs are the only parts of the frog usually eaten. The flesh is much more delicate and nutritious in the fall of the year than in the spring, when the frog has just come out of its winter quarters. In some places frogs are now being raised for food. Across the bay from San Francisco is a large ranch upon which several ponds are kept constantly stocked with frogs intended for the city market. The frog has a smooth, moist skin, which readily absorbs oxygen and aids the lungs materially in aerating the blood, so that the frog, though he has lost the gills of his babyhood, can still plunge into the water and bury himself in soft mud and exist for a long time without seeking the open air.

The frog swallows air through a slit in the floor of his mouth much in the same way that we swallow water. He has no ribs to expand his chest and no diaphragm, except a rudimentary one, to be depressed for the enlargement of the chest. In fact, he has no chest, for the whole body cavity is but one. Hence if his mouth were kept open he would suffocate, even while surrounded by an abundance of pure air, especially if his skin were to become dry. The tadpole, being a water breather, has no voice; but, as every one knows, in the frog the vocal chords are well developed, particularly in the male, which has such a complete control over them that his voice varies from a loud croak to a tone so soft that it seems to come from a great distance, even when produced within a few yards of us. The frog is therefore a model ventriloquist.

Frogs have many enemies which prey upon them throughout their lives. It is estimated that not more than one-tenth of 1 per cent live to go into their first winter quarters. If they escape being captured by some enemy, they live twenty years or more.

Among reptiles the serpents are the worst enemies of frogs; among fishes, the pickerel and bass; among birds, the vultures and storks. It is said that frogs breed so rapidly in the pools left by the receding Nile that were it not for the storks, which are there very numerous, they would overrun the whole valley of that historic river.

Frogs are themselves voracious feeders, preying upon insects and their larvæ, worms and other small animals in great numbers and sometimes devouring their own species. The tongue of both the frog and the toad, attached to the front angle of the lower jaw, is several inches long, points backward when not in use and is the instrument used in capturing insects. With its tongue the frog or toad lassoes an insect somewhat as a cowboy lassoes an untamed steer.

These batrachians can live for a long time without food and with but little air, but not for a great number of years, as some would have us believe. After these long fasts they will eat almost fabulous numbers of insects. One writer speaks of having fed a captive toad twenty-three squash bugs and ninety-four caterpillars, each an inch and a half in length, before it turned away to digest its meal. Certain it is that an animal which will devour so many insects in so short a time must be of value to the gardener.

As stated above, each female frog or toad may produce a thousand young in a single season. We need not look far, therefore, to find an explanation of the appearance of such vast numbers of those young creatures occasionally just after a warm shower in the late spring or early summer. We need not accept the impossible statement that they have fallen from the clouds, though it has come down to us from the early Grecian times. The writer when a boy was wandering through the sparsely timbered woods of southern Michigan on a warm day in early May when he came to one of the numerous shallow ponds that dot the whole region, and his attention was attracted by the great number of toads assembled in and about the margin of the quiet pool. It was their breeding season, and many of them were laying their eggs. It seemed that there must be millions of eggs in that pond. I attempted to count the toads, but after getting well along in the hundreds and seeing that I had gone but a short distance around the pond I became discouraged and gave up the attempt. As the pond was thirty or forty rods in circumference, there must have been 4,000 or 5,000 toads.

The five long toes on the hind foot of the frog are connected by a thin membrane, which aids the frog very much in swimming, but the toes on the front foot are neither webbed nor clawed. None of the toes of the toad is webbed. The toad differs from the frog also in living on land except during the egg laying time. The skin of the toad is dry, rough and covered with warts, and its legs are much more nearly equal in size than those of the frog. The toad has been known to live thirty-five years. The frog is well supplied with teeth in the upper jaw, while the toad has none. Both are inoffensive and harmless creatures, and both, the toad especially, are very useful to man in destroying garden pests. Handling toads does not produce warts, as some suppose, nor are these little creatures poisonous. There is a slight exudation from the skin which, if transferred to the eyes, will make them smart temporarily. The toad frequently sheds its outer skin. When it has entirely freed itself from the old coat, it rolls it up in a ball and swallows it. Both frogs and toads crawl into holes or crevices when cold weather comes and sleep quietly there until spring, when they come out very hungry and are soon as active as ever.

The tree frog is a small species which lives an arboreal life. But in the spring it takes to the water, where its eggs are deposited and where the young pass through the tadpole stage. Their toes are supplied with little sucking disks, which aid them in clinging to the underside of leaves and stems.

The "horned toads" are not in the least related to the toads, but are true lizards.

There is a large toad, called the Surinam toad, living in the northern part of South America, which ought to be mentioned, though none of the species lives in the United States. The peculiar breeding habits of this toad make it one of the most remarkable of the entire order. With the female deposits her eggs, the male immediately places them on the mother's back, to which they adhere. A cell, which is covered by a little lid, soon forms over each. In this cell the tadpole passes through all its changes, and when it finally bursts from its prison house it is a complete specimen, much larger than the eggs from which it came. This shows that it must have received some nourishment from the mother while in its temporary home.

The Skin.

Bathing to many persons is a term embodying an expenditure of time and considerable trouble. It is probably because they do not cleanse the skin until it gives visible signs of its needs. Now, the skin is everlastingly throwing off impurities which you cannot always see with the naked eye, but which will be readily found in the appearance of the bathwater even when one bathes each day. When you can wear a white collar a few hours without marring its spotlessness where it comes in contact with the skin, you may have some excuse for thinking that you are perfectly clean and not before. The neatest person I ever saw could not boast of such an achievement, for the thing is well nigh impossible. Nature has provided the pores for drainage purposes, and in health they work without ceasing.—Boston Traveler.

The Singing Mouse.

The power of song among the brute creation has so long been associated in our minds with the feathered tribe alone that we do not think of it as belonging to any four footed animals. Yet there is a mouse that sings—why, nobody knows. It is a small animal, with very large ears, which are moved about much while singing, as if that were necessary to the success of the vocal performance. The song is not, as you think, a prolonged squeak with variations, but a succession of clear, warbling notes, with trills, not unlike the song of a canary, and quite as beautiful, though some of the notes are much lower. One great peculiarity is a sort of double song, an air with accompaniment quite subdued. Upon first hearing this one believes that he is listening to more than one mouse, so perfect is the illusion.

The Louis Styles.

It was the French King Louis XI. who invented gold lace, and it was Louis XIV. who ordered all the silk upholsteries of the palace done in white with figures of gold and blue and a touch of red. The louisine silks are named after him, and all the French kings of the name of Louis have had their names brought down to posterity through the invention of some article of dress, whether it be a Louis Quinze heel or a Louis Seize coat, while to Louis Quatorze belongs the honor of a cuff and a hat.

THE BUGS.

See the many, many bugs—
  Buggy bugs!
How they flutter through the twilight,
  causing us excited shrugs!
  How they rustle, rustle, rustle,
  In the dreamy air of night,
Flipping, flapping on the highway,
Booming, buzzing on the byway,
  Under each electric light!
  How they dip, dip, dip!
  How they zip, zip, zip,
Till they whisk about our whiskers and
  go mugging at our mugs!
  Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs!
Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs,
  bugs, bugs!
Oh, the night is two shades darker from
  the bugs!

All sorts and kinds of bugs!
  Fuzzy bugs—
Bugs that humbly beg your pardon; bugs
  that proudly throw on lugs!
  How they flutter, flutter, flutter,
  Till some lady gives a shriek,
Till she clutches at her bonnet,
Shouting that a bug's upon it,
  For she felt it climb her cheek!
  How they wing, wing, wing!
  How they sing, sing, sing!
The mosquitoes and the beetles and each
  buzzy, buggy thing!
  Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs!
Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs
  bugs, bugs!
There's a million miles of breeze containing bugs.

There are June and lady bugs!
  Whiskered bugs!
There are bats and fleas and locusts;
  there are moths in search of rugs;
Bugs that hurtle like a missile,
Bugs that roar and bugs that whistle,
Bugs in many colors tinted;
Bed—let that one be but hinted—
  Bugs with faces like a pug!
And they hold a big convention under
  each electric light.
  Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs!
Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs,
  bugs, bugs!
What a buzzy, buggy, bumping bunch of bugs!

Little Creatures About Our Homes

IV.—Frogs and Toads.

SINCE the people of this country have begun to imitate the French in that they have taken to eating frogs' legs as among the daintiest of morsels, a new interest has been manifested in the study of this cold blooded batrachian. The frog is an amphibious animal and during the early part of its life lives entirely in the water, and by means of gills obtains from the water the oxygen for the purification of its blood. Later in life it becomes an air breather, with lungs resembling those of the higher warm blooded animals.

In early spring frogs resort to some pool, where the female lays a great number of eggs, a thousand or more, each about the size of a common pin head and all enveloped in an albuminous substance which serves in a measure to protect them. Through this the dark brown eggs are seen as little dots, quite evenly distributed. As the eggs are laid by the female they are arranged in irregular masses by the male. Frogs are ordinarily rather solitary in their lives, but at the breeding season they frequently congregate in large numbers in some sequestered pond. Frogs and toads do not gather at the same place for breeding. The eggs of the toad are arranged by the male in long spirals. The frogs and the toads of this country leave their eggs to be hatched by the warmth of the sun and give their progeny no further attention. If the weather is warm, the eggs hatch in a few days, but in cool weather they frequently require four or even six weeks.

Before leaving the albuminous substance which surrounds the egg the baby frog, which is called a tadpole, resembles a fish and has no appendages except the tail. The embryo frog is then about half an inch long. External gills are very rapidly developed. Water is drawn into the mouth and passed out through these branching gills to furnish air for the purification of the blood. These gills are absorbed in a few days, and the external gills, resembling those of a fish, are formed. About this time the hind legs make their appearance near the root of the tail and grow rapidly, the tail being absorbed quite as fast. The front limbs are now added, and lungs are substituted for the gills, and the little "polliwog" becomes a frog. It has changed from a water breathing to an air breathing animal, and its diet has changed from vegetable to animal.

The largest of the frogs in the United States is the bullfrog, though several other species are common in this country. All of them resemble one another both in appearance and habits. The hind legs are much longer than the front legs, which fact renders walking nearly impossible, but the frog is peculiarly adapted to leaping, not only by the great size and strength of the hind legs, but by the peculiar manner in which it folds them when at rest. It is these large, muscular hind legs that are so much sought after by the epicure, and well they may be, for they are as much more delicate than chicken as that is more delicate than beef. The hind legs are the only parts of the frog usually eaten. The flesh is much more delicate and nutritious in the fall of the year than in the spring, when the frog has just come out of its winter quarters. In some places frogs are now being raised for food. Across the bay from San Francisco is a large ranch upon which several ponds are kept constantly stocked with frogs intended for the city market. The frog has a smooth, moist skin, which readily absorbs oxygen and aids the lungs materially in aerating the blood, so that the frog, though he has lost the gills of his babyhood, can still plunge into the water and bury himself in soft mud and exist for a long time without seeking the open air.

The frog swallows air through a slit in the floor of his mouth much in the same way that we swallow water. He has no ribs to expand his chest and no diaphragm, except a rudimentary one, to be depressed for the enlargement of the chest. In fact, he has no chest, for the whole body cavity is but one. Hence if his mouth were kept open he would suffocate, even while surrounded by an abundance of pure air, especially if his skin were to become dry. The tadpole, being a water breather, has no voice; but, as every one knows, in the frog the vocal chords are well developed, particularly in the male, which has such a complete control over them that his voice varies from a loud croak to a tone so soft that it seems to come from a great distance, even when produced within a few yards of us. The frog is therefore a model ventriloquist.

Frogs have many enemies which prey upon them throughout their lives. It is estimated that not more than one-tenth of 1 per cent live to go into their first winter quarters. If they escape being captured by some enemy, they live twenty years or more.

Among reptiles the serpents are the worst enemies of frogs; among fishes, the pickerel and bass; among birds, the vultures and storks. It is said that frogs breed so rapidly in the pools left by the receding Nile that were it not for the storks, which are there very numerous, they would overrun the whole valley of that historic river.

Frogs are themselves voracious feeders, preying upon insects and their larvæ, worms and other small animals in great numbers and sometimes devouring their own species. The tongue of both the frog and the toad, attached to the front angle of the lower jaw, is several inches long, points backward when not in use and is the instrument used in capturing insects. With its tongue the frog or toad lassoes an insect somewhat as a cowboy lassoes an untamed steer.

These batrachians can live for a long time without food and with but little air, but not for a great number of years, as some would have us believe. After these long fasts they will eat almost fabulous numbers of insects. One writer speaks of having fed a captive toad twenty-three squash bugs and ninety-four caterpillars, each an inch and a half in length, before it turned away to digest its meal. Certain it is that an animal which will devour so many insects in so short a time must be of value to the gardener.

As stated above, each female frog or toad may produce a thousand young in a single season. We need not look far, therefore, to find an explanation of the appearance of such vast numbers of those young creatures occasionally just after a warm shower in the late spring or early summer. We need not accept the impossible statement that they have fallen from the clouds, though it has come down to us from the early Grecian times. The writer when a boy was wandering through the sparsely timbered woods of southern Michigan on a warm day in early May when he came to one of the numerous shallow ponds that [illegible] the whole region, and his attention was attracted by the great number of toads assembled in and about the margin of the quiet pool. It was their breeding season, and many of them were laying their eggs. It seemed that there must be millions of eggs in that pond. I attempted to count the toads, but after getting well along in the hundreds and seeing that I had gone but a short distance around the pond I became discouraged and gave up the attempt. As the pond was thirty or forty rods in circumference, there must have been 4,000 or 5,000 toads.

The five long toes on the hind foot of the frog are connected by a thin membrane, which aids the frog very much in swimming, but the toes on the front foot are neither webbed nor clawed. None of the toes of the toad is webbed. The toad differs from the frog also in living on land except during the egg laying time. The skin of the toad is dry, rough and covered with warts, and its legs are much more nearly equal in size than those of the frog. The toad has been known to live thirty-five years. The frog is well supplied with teeth in the upper jaw, while the toad has none. Both are inoffensive and harmless creatures, and both, the toad especially, are very useful to man in destroying garden pests. Handling toads does not produce warts, as some suppose, nor are these little creatures poisonous. There is a slight exudation from the skin which, if transferred to the eyes, will make them smart temporarily. The toad frequently sheds its outer skin. When it has entirely freed itself from the old coat, it rolls it up in a ball and swallows it. Both frogs and toads crawl into holes or crevices when cold weather comes and sleep quietly there until spring, when they come out very hungry and are soon as active as ever.

The tree frog is a small species which lives an arboreal life, but in the spring it takes to the water, where its eggs are deposited and where the young pass through the tadpole stage. Their toes are supplied with little sucking disks, which aid them in clinging to the underside of leaves and stems.

The "horned toads" are not in the least related to the toads, but are true lizards.

There is a large toad, called the Surinam toad, living in the northern part of South America, which ought to be mentioned, though none of the species lives in the United States. The peculiar breeding habits of this toad make it one of the most remarkable of the entire order. With the female deposits her eggs, the male immediately places them on the mother's back, to which they adhere. A cell, which is covered by a little lid, soon forms over each. In this cell the tadpole passes through all its changes, and when it finally bursts from its prison house it is a complete specimen, much larger than the eggs from which it came. This shows that it must have received some nourishment from the mother while in its temporary home.

The Skin.

Bathing to many persons is a term embodying an expenditure of time and considerable trouble. It is probably because they do not cleanse the skin until it gives visible signs of its needs. Now, the skin is everlastingly throwing off impurities which you cannot always see with the naked eye, but which will be readily found in the appearance of the bath water even when one bathes each day. When you can wear a white collar a few hours without marring its spotlessness where it comes in contact with the skin, you may have some excuse for thinking that you are perfectly clean and not before. The neatest person I ever saw could not boast of such an achievement, for the thing is well nigh impossible. Nature has provided the pores for drainage purposes, and in health they work without ceasing.—Boston Traveler.

The Singing Mouse.

The power of song among the brute creation has so long been associated in our minds with the feathered tribe alone that we do not think of it as belonging to any four footed animals. Yet there is a mouse that sings—why, nobody knows. It is a small animal, with very large ears, which are moved about much while singing, as if that were necessary to the success of the vocal performance. The song is not, as you think, a prolonged squeak with variations, but a succession of clear, warbling notes, with trills, not unlike the song of a canary, and quite as beautiful, though some of the notes are much lower. One great peculiarity is a sort of double song, an air with accompaniment quite subdued. Upon first hearing this one believes that he is listening to more than one mouse, so perfect is the illusion.

The Louis Styles.

It was the French King Louis XI. who invented gold lace, and it was Louis XIV. who ordered all the silk upholsteries of the palace done in white with figures of gold and blue and a touch of red. The louisine silks are named after him, and all the French kings of the name of Louis have had their names brought down to posterity through the invention of some article of dress, whether it be a Louis Quinze heel or a Louis Seize coat, while to Louis Quatorze belongs the honor of a cuff and a hat.

YOUNG MARRIED WOMAN SWALLOWED POISON AFTER FAMILY TROUBLE

It Is Alleged She Quarreled With Her Husband and Then Took a Dose of Carbolic Acid.

Sorrowing over a quarrel with her husband early this morning and because she was tired of life, according to report, Mrs. Sadie Craig, boarding at the home of Mrs. Cupp, on Third street, near Jackson street, attempted to commit suicide at about 9 o'clock by taking a dose of carbolic acid.

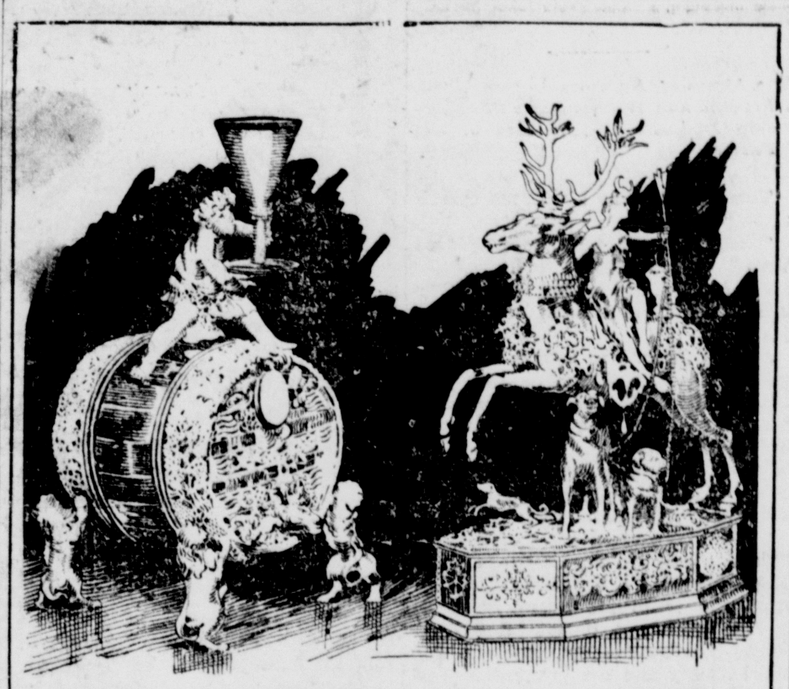
Immediately after applying a bottle of the deadly poison to her lips she commenced screaming loudly. In a moment Mrs. Cupp was at her side. Seeing the bottle on the floor at the side of the woman, Mrs. Cupp quickly realized the situation and hurried to the nearest telephone, summoning Dr. Hobbs.

The physician soon arrived and upon an examination pronounced the woman in no serious condition.

Mrs. Craig is beautiful and only 20 years of age. She is reported not to seem in the least repentent over her rash act, and states that unless she and her husband live more peaceably together hereafter that she will undoubtedly make another attempt to end her days.

Mr. Craig is employ in a local pottery and has only been in the city a short time. It is said that he and his wife have quarreled for months and that her act this morning was only what she threatened to do long ago.

A big crowd of neighbors surrounded the house upon learning of the woman's actions and many exaggerated stories were sent abroad as to her condition. She will undoubtedly recover, but will likely carry a scarred face.



PRICELESS TREASURES OWNED BY J. PIERPONT MORGAN.

At a recent exhibition of silver work, at which the value of the exhibits was estimated at $10,000,000, the specimens which attracted most attention were the two shown in the illustration. These are the property of J. Pierpont Morgan. Each is said to be worth many thousands of dollars. One of them dates from the sixteenth and one from the seventeenth century.

OFFICERS KEPT BUSY HUNTING WITNESSES WHO ARE UNWILLING

Numerous Warrants Out For Those Who Failed to Obey Their Summons—Lively Experience.

Bench warrants galore are being issued in Lisbon for the arrest of subpoenaed witnesses who have failed to appear at the appointed time before the grand jury. Several residents of the East End have been made aware of the fact only to their sorrow. Armed with three warrents of the kind, Deputy Sheriff Porter of Lisbon, and Constable Powell started out last night at 10 o'clock for the purpose of apprehending Samuel Sellers, Benjamin Day and Chris Krafft. The trio had been subpoenaed and not only failed to put in their appearance but failed to present a plausible excuse. The trio live in the East End and are well known pottery workers.

After a search of more than two hours the officers gave up their hunt for Sellers and Day but they got a clew as to the whereabouts of Krafft and had an amusing time in landing him. Going to the house where he resides they knocked for admission. For a moment all was still but when Constable Powell applied the butt of his revolver with great force against the flimsy door panel chirps from all parts were heard. "Is Chris Krafft there?" asked the constable, "No, he isn't," was the reply, "and if he were we would not let you know it."" The officers had had too much experience to be run off in a manner like that and again applied the harsh knocks.

Fearing that there would be trouble the members of the household decided to open, and cautiously Mrs. Krafft thrust her head out of a window to see the cause of the disturbance.

SOCIALIST PARTY IS ON THE TICKET

Petition Filed at Columbus Bears 50 to 60 Columbiana County Names.

PLEDGE TO SUPPORT PARTY

Is Carried in the Document Signed—Salineville Furnished Half the Petitioners Hereabout And This City And Wellsville the Rest.

Columbus, October 4.—(Special)—The Socialist party has filed a petition with the secretary of state for a place on the state ticket this fall. Something like 10,000 signatures were secured, about 1,500 more than necessary. Between 50 and 60 signers were secured in Columbiana county, 30 of these being from Salineville, the balance being supplied by East Liverpool and Wellsville. Every person who signs the petition of the party gives pledge to support its candidates, but a great many who signed were probably not aware they were signing a pledge.

Appended are the names of the East Liverpool and Wellsville signers:

East Liverpool:—Leslie Trump, Bassil avenue; Charles M. Morgan, Jethro; John Menoforth, 191 Pennsylvania avenue; Samuel Hindman, Hague avenue; J. C. Brooks, Pleasant Heights; Charles Kontiner, Boyce street; Fred R. Martindale, Third street; Carl H. Gigax, Sixth street, Lewis Lake, Jethro; E. Smith, 247 Jackson street; Herman Webber, 314 rear of Fifth street; J. Q. Boring, J. T. Smith, C. M. J. Brocks, F. M. Demuth.

Wellsville:—T. J. Boring, B. Meekim, C. A. Bradley, G. M. Roberts, W. V. Roberts, J. B. Roberts, G. E. Mendel, J. W. Wilson.

The Socialist ticket is as follows: For secretary of state, Max S. Hayes, Cleveland; judge of the supreme court, George P. Maxwell, Lexington; dairy and food commissioner George Flummerfelt, Fremont; member of board of public works, William C. Edwards, Portsmouth.

The time for the filing of petitions for places on the state ticket closed today. The Prohibitionists are the only minor party which will not have to get on by petition, they having secured the necessary number of votes last fall. The Socialist Labor party filed its petition today. It has 8,650 signatures, none of which were secured in Columbiana county.

FOLEY CHOSEN

DEMOCRATS SELECTED SALINEVILLE MAYOR FOR PLACE.

Nomination For Congress Tendered Him by the Committee at Alliance Today.

Alliance, Oct. 4.—(Special)—The Democratic congressional committee in session here this morning nominated W. J. Foley, mayor of East Palestine, to fill the vacant place upon the party ticket.

The letter declination presented to the committee by T. J. Duffy, was read, and voted by those present to contain good, sound Democratic doctrines.

A resolution was adopted providing that inasmuch as the nomination tendered Mr. Duffy, September 16, had been rejected by him, the name of W. J. Foley, be substituted.

Clerk Clark, of the committee, was ordered to at once certify the name of Mr. Foley to the officers of the three counties.

The entire committee was present, and the meeting was devoid of enthusiasm, the members being disappointed at the decision of Mr. Duffy.

Knights of Labor of Trenton Confer With Manufacturing Potters.

Is Given at a Joint Conference on Uniform Scale—Brotherhood And the Operating Potters on a Very Friendly Footing.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Trenton, N. J., October 4.—The Knights of Labor organization, which has been running in opposition to the National Brotherhood of Operative potters for two years, is making strenuous efforts to obtain recognition from the manufacturers. Last week it sent a special committee to wait upon several prominent members of the Trenton Manufacturing Potters' association, with the object of forcing the adoption of the uniform list which was submitted to the manufacturers last April. A joint meeting of representatives of both organizations was held and from all accounts, the insurgents were given little encouragement. The list is confined solely to the jiggermen and it is said that many of the articles which it embraces were objected to by the manufacturers. Behind their objections is a refusal to deal with the Knights of Labor, which, by the way, as far as the influence it exercises is concerned, is on its last legs. The Brotherhood has on several occasions during the past year received requests in person from operators to settle shop disputes which is evidence that it is recognized as the controlling body.

The question of installing a uniform price list in the local plants, was the platform over which the jiggermen broke away from the Brotherhood and formed an independent organization which afterwards become a part of the Knights of Labor.

The friendly feeling which at present exists between the Brotherhood and the manufacturers grew out of the conference last June, when a uniform price list was adopted for the sanitary plants. The Brotherhood has for its stannchest supporter the Trenton Potteries company, which has been instrumental during the past few months in settling several shop disputes with the men themselves and in one instance discharged a foreman because he insisted in applying his version to some provisions in the list.

The board of directors of the Trenton Free Public library is in receipt of a communication from the heads of the Carnegie library, East Liverpool, asking for a list of the books on pottery subjects which were installed a short time ago.

The first kiln at the new plant of William Clayton & Co., manufacturers of porcelain goods will be fired this week. The firm reports that it has several large orders ahead.

Will Probated.

Lisbon, October 4.—(Special)—The will of the late Elizabeth McIntosh, of Madison township, has been admitted to probate, and Samuel M. Smith, was appointed executor, William Bailey, John Bailey, and Samuel Connell, were made appraisers.

A CROWDED HOUSE AT FIRST LECTURE

University Extension Course in This City Starts Off Auspiciously.

THE TALK OF DR. SPARKS

Dealt With America in the Days of Benjamin Franklin And Presented a Most Entertaining Picture of the Dawn of Our History.

Every seat in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium was occupied last evening by those who had assembled, eager and enthusiastic, to hear Dr. Sparks, of the Chicago university, an excellent scholar, an able speaker, a man of national repute, deliver his lecture on "Benjamin Franklin."

Prof. R. E. Rayman, who introduced the speaker, first made a few preliminary remarks, saying: "For two years I have been watching with great interest the university extension work and this evening I am glad to see that so many others are interested in it. It also affords me pleasure to see the majority of the high school students here tonight. I am sure you will all receive great benefit from the lecture this evening. On the 17th and 18th of this month there will be a Tri-State Round Table meeting, at which there will be representatives from West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Ohio. At this time Dr. W. O. Thompson, of the Ohio State university, will be with us and will lecture on the subject, 'Why We Educate.' I now take great pleasure in introducing Dr. Sparks."

Dr. Sparks spoke in part as follows: "I do not come as a lecturer, but rather as a teacher of American history that we may see the cause and effect the decentralizing as well as the uniting influences which affect so materially the growth of our country. These lectures will cover a period from 1760 to 1800, but from 1760 to 1766 the period was distinguished by one predominant man, Benjamin Franklin, who figured largely in the making of America.

"Let us look at the America of 1760. What were we, and what had we? We will have to take away many of our conveniences and necessities of today for we had no electric lights, no telephones, no telegraphs, no printing presses, and we would have to haul down the stars and stripes, for in 1760 there was no America.

"Step by step, a slow process has been going on until the principle of union, our great defense, has made us the America of today. Who were the Americans of 1760? Why, the red men whose race is now almost run. Since then we have built up the nation.

"The Dutch settled on the Hudson river, the Germans in Pennsylvania and that vicinity. The French established themselves in the Carolinas. Thus, could we have lived peaceably together, a thrifty element would have been a great impetus to the growth of our country. But not so, for a race prejudice arose, which interfered with America's unity.

"Secondly, sectarian prejudice arose and the Puritans, Quakers and Catholics would persecute each other whenever opportunity afforded. A third de

In the Code, According to House Vote—Bribery to Be Punished.

Columbus, October 4.—(Special)—The house yesterday voted to let the merit system stay in the code. An amendment by Hypers, of Springfield, providing for the removal of all officers for bribery, was adopted. The mayor is given authority to suspend an officer for such a charge. The personnel of the conference committee which will try to settle the code question is the subject of much gossip.

The house is through with the bill, save that part which the committee on repeals is examining, but it will be voted upon not later than Tuesday. The only important point of difference between the two bodies is over the matter of organization of cities. The house favors single headed boards and the seate the multiple headed boards.

THE COUNTY JAIL AGAIN CONDEMNED

Have Added Something to the Comfort of Inmates, But More Are Necessary—The Jail Population Reduced to 22 Today.

Lisbon, October 4. — (Special.) — The grand jury this morning made its regular inspection and condemnation of the old rookery known as the county jail. Sheriff Leonard and wife are keeping the premises in as good order as is possible, under the circumstances, and were highly complimented by the jury. The inspecting officials first went through the upper part of the building, originally designed as the residence part exclusively, but later partly equipped with cells to accommodate more prisoners.

The cell rooms, although freshly whitewashed and cleaned, with lossened plastering, presented an uninviting appearance. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard have made a great improvement in the kitchen, by putting in a fine new range. In the basement, originally intended for all the prisoners, the jurors lined up along the corridors and witnessed the transfer of all the prisoners from their lounging corridor to the cells and back, showing how the turnkey is handicapped in handling them. The basement is in as good a condition as it can be made, but the air is rather foul, though not as bad as a few weeks ago when filth from an old cesspool seeped through into the front corridor to a depth of two inches in a night, causing most unhealthy conditions. This trouble has been remedied. The stables were found in good shape. Sheriff Leonard has five horses and several carriages.

The grand jury, as usual, decided the old structure a disgrace to the county. The number of inmates will be reduced to 22 this afternoon when the sheriff will take William Daugherty, of Salem, to the Canton work house.

CONTEMPT OF COURT

Charged Against an East Liverpool Man Arrested And Taken to Lisbon.

Lisbon, October 4. — (Special.) — Chris Krafft, of East Liverpool, was arrested there last night by Sheriff Leonard for contempt of court. He was cited before the grand jury and failed to appear. He was brought here at 3 o'clock this morning.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE THIS.

Space has been given in this newspaper from time to time relative to the shortage of kilnmen and other workmen in the potteries of this district, and as was to be expected, steps have been taken at last to relieve the present depleted ranks of the operatives. In order that the ranks of the operatives might be swelled at the earliest possible moment, a tour of the local potteries was made yesterday afternoon by representatives of the Brotherhood and also of the Western Manufacturing Potters' association The committee representing the manufacturers was composed of H. P. Knoblock, of the Dresden Pottery company, and S. M. Ferguson, general manager of the East Liverpool Potteries company. The interests of the Brotherhood were looked after by John T Wood, a kilnman at the Diamond, and Andwerw Brennan, a member of local No. 24, of Wellsville. At each plant visited statistics were obtained relative to the shortage of workmen in the kiln department, and it will be some days before the complete report will be finished and presented to the heads of both sides. A meeting with this end in view will be held within a few days, and the task of compiling the report will no doubt be a tedious one. There is a shortage in all departments and not alone in the kiln department There is a shortage of dippers and a shortage of pressers. Vacant benches may be found in other departments, as well as those mentioned. It has been given out from a most reliable source that there is at least a shortage of 100 kilnmen in the city. Taking other departments into consideration, it is fair to presume that permanent employment could be given at the present time to not less than 200 skilled pottery workmen in this district. There is also a shortage of workmen in the out-of-town potteries, and reckoning the vacancies in these shops, another hundred vacant positions may be added to the list. The subject of "shortage" has become of such moment that both manufacturers and representatives of the Brotherhood have taken it up jointly. That the depressed condition will be relieved there is not the slightest doubt. There is also a shortage of small help, but of course very little can be done to offset this condition. On this account many jiggermen are compelled to remain idle several days during a week, and cannot draw a full week's pay. According to the action of the last convention neither national officers nor the executive board have power to act. Whatever might be done to relieve the shortage will have to be submitted to a referendum vote of the locals. There is little doubt but the members at large will see the necessity of taking such action as will supply the number of kilnmen necessary to operate the potteries.

SEEKS AN INJUNCTION.

Hulsey M. Barrett, counsel for William R. Wilcox, a heavy holder of preferred stock in the Trenton Potteries company, otherwise the Trenton pottery trust, who brought suit in the court of chancery, at Trenton, N. J., before Vice Chancellor Stevens to restrain that corporation from executing a proposition for a funding plan has submitted argument opposing the contention of the defendant firm that the funding plan was designed to operate advantageously to all of the stockholders and averring that not only was this not so, but that the minority stockholders who dissented from the proposition were harmfully discriminated against in favor of the assenting majority. Mr. Barrett was opposed by former Attorney General John W. Griggs and R. V. Lindabury, representing the Trenton Potteries company. What was asked by the defendant company, Mr. Barrett said, was legal permission to unconstitutionally alter the relations existing between the directors in order to liquidate an obligation occasioned by several years' poor business when dividends could not be paid. A request for an injunction concluded M. Barrett's argument. Decision was reserved till later.

AN ADDITIONAL PRESS.

The additional printing press that is to be installed at the Wallace & Chetwynd pottery by the East Liverpool Potteries company has been completed and a few days ago was delivered at the plant. It is now in the packing shed, and will be installed in that part of the plant which was formerly used as a decorated warehouse. By doing this the company will greatly increase its capacity for decorating ware.

DEIDRICK WAS WRATHY.

By reason of the pipe line running from the city mains to Dresden pottery in construction at Salineville work will be delayed not less than sixty days. The making of moulds was to have started Monday morning, but the water works trustees have neglected to order the pipe for the line. When Mr. Deidrick found that the line could not be placed in for four weeks, he turned over a car of plaster of paris to East Liverpool parties. A Salineville writer says Deidrick is very wrathy about the line not being in place before this.

BUSINESS IS GOOD.

The Chelsea, at New Cumberland, is shipping large quantities of ware in cars, not using barrels or casks. At least 58,000 dozens of teas were shipped last month, a large amount going to Chicago. It was scheme ware. A kiln a day is being turned out, and it is said that it will take more than a year to fill the present order, with the plant running to its full capacity. The Chelsea's pay for two weeks ending last Saturday was $7,600. This is said to be the largest pay ever made by an eight kiln pottery in the valley.

HEAVYWEIGHT PLAYERS.

New Castle will be represented on the gridiron by two finest teams, the Shenango Athletics and the New Castle High school team. The latter has already games scheduled with Westminster, Grove City and other colleges The former team comprises employes of the Shenango pottery, who expect to have a full schedule of games with teams of 140 or 145 pounds in weight within a few days. A number of former East Liverpool players are said to be in the Shenango team.

HIGHWAYMEN AT SEBRING.

John Murray, a presser at the Oliver pottery at Sebring, had a thrilling experience near home a few nights ago. He got off a car about 9 o'clock and was crossing the railroad tracks on his way home when he was grasped by a man who told him emphatically that he wanted what he had. Murray jerked away and gave him a sledge hammer blow with his fist. The assailant was knocked down, and Murray, glad of his success, hurriedly passed on.

COING TO CROOKSVILLE.

While Will Tritt, general manager of the new Crooksville pottery, was in the city last week, he hired among other help a mouldmaker, who will take charge of the new shop at that new plant, Harry Fisher, who is at present employed at Brunt's. Louis Cochrane, whose time expires this evening, will also go to Crooksville, it is said. Commencing Monday Brunt's mould shop will be in charge of Lawrence Maley.

ALTOGETHER DIFFERENT.

Several papers published in the northern part of the county, in commenting upon the new dinner set that is to be placed in the White House, claim that Mrs. Roosevelt declined to have East Liverpool ware in the White House. The truth of the matter was that the making of this order was refused by the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles company, it being offered while President McKinley was in office.

KILNDRAWERS' MEETING.

The regular weekly meeting of Kilndrawers' local No. 17 will be held this evening in Brotherhood hall. Several applications for membership are to be considered at this session.

A NEW JIGGERMAN.

William Baker, who has been employed as a jiggerman at the East Palestine pottery, has left that town, and is now located at Canonsburg. He has taken a similar position at that plant.

SEBRING GROWING.

Wednesday morning a son was born to Mrs. and Mrs. George E. Sebring, of the Sebring Pottery company, at Sebring.

Kisses.

An old sea captain, under the impression that he was saying a good thing, asked a lady passenger why men never kiss one another, while ladies waste a world of kisses on feminine faces.

"Because," the lady replied, "the men have something better to kiss and the women haven't."

The Inevitable.

"Do as I tell you," Tommy's mamma cried. "It's about time you realized the futility of struggling against the inevitable. Do you know what that means?"

"Yes'm," replied Tommy. "It means there's no use o' your washin' my hands an' face 'cause they'll only get dirty again."

DIVIDES DEMOCRATS.

Tom Johnson's Circus Tactics Trouble His Party.

HIS RULE AROUSES RESENTMENT.

The Abuse of Auditors Angers Their Friends and His Arrogant Dictatorship Disgusts Decent Men of All Parties.

Tom Johnson, in his circus speech at Delphos said:

"Last night we told the people of Van West how Berry, their Democratic auditor, had robbed them. Berry is not worth having his record repeated."

Auditor Berry has been a life-long, earnest Democratic worker, and the tirade of abuse Johnson heaped upon him will not prompt party harmony in Van Wert county. The Democrats of other counties will have like cause of resentment for their friends, for as the Van Wert Bulletin says:

"Was ever such a piece of bossism before enforced in any county in Ohio? Tom Johnson, a big, bloated aristocrat, who made his money in trusts and railways and bossed the Ohio Democratic convention, comes to Van Wert county and bosses the affairs of the county Democrats. He dictates who shall stay on the ticket and who shall get off. He is the party. In his tent he yelled: "Auditor Berry said he would not vote for ME!" What claim has ME on any man's vote? ME is not a candidate. The Van Wert county Democrats who assembled in convention and nominated a ticket have no rights Tom Johnsonism is bound to respect. Tom brushes them aside like dead flies. Thanks to American manhood, there are Democrats who will not submit to such tyranny —who will not bow their heads and worship Tom Johnson's money bags."

But this was not all the trouble torn up in Van Wert county by Tyrant Tom. He also attacked the Democratic candidate for auditor, Henry Troup, as well as Auditor Berry, and while the new man, for fear of the election, succumbed to the pressure, yet it was with reluctance and humiliation that must make him bitter, after all. This part of the matter is thus told by The Bulletin:

Henry Troup has bowed his head and pledged his support to Tom Johnson and his theories. When Johnson came to Van Wert, Mr. Troup followed the advice of some of his friends and was conveniently absent—out of town and out of reach of Tom and his meeting. Tom was wild with rage. He stormed and threatened. In his speech he was unmercifully abusive.

Tom, who is twenty times a millionaire, is touring the state, at an enormous expense, making an issue of railway taxation. Tom strengthens his cause in close counties, by promising to put up large sums of money to carry the elections. He had his arrangements all made in Van Wert county, but when he arrived here his plans were spoiled. Some shrewd Democrats, who believe in the teachings of the party and do not believe in Tom Johnson, had influenced Henry Troup, the Democratic candidate for county auditor, to turn the cold shoulder to the Johnson circus. Tom raved and swore he would not contribute one cent to the Van Wert county fund unless Troup came to time. The head of the county Democratic committee, who was looking forward with great expectation for the big roll, and the men who revolve around about his orbit were scared. There was a commotion. Something had to be done. What happened at about this time is told by a staff correspondent of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, who is traveling with the Johnson circus, riding in the Johnson automobile, sleeping in the Johnson tent and eating at the Johnson table, and writing up daily accounts of the performances. A dispatch from Delphos to the Sunday Plain Dealer tells all about Mr. Troup and his part in the show. The dispatch says:

"The mayor's attack on these two prominent Democrats, Berry and Troup, was very fierce, and it stirred up an unprecedented turmoil within the Van Wert Democracy. Troup, the candidate, was plainly commanded to come to Delphos tonight and answer Mayor Johnson's questions or else get off the ticket. A number of county committeemen declared their intention of resigning unless Troup came to time. Among these was J. F. Lattanner, chairman of the Van Wert county committee, and formerly a member of the state executive committee.

"Under this pressure Troup hitched up his sorrel mare and drove to Delphos this afternoon. He sought out Mayor Johnson and declared his willingness to answer all questions which the mayor might propound. He explained his unwillingness to answer the mayor's demands at Van Wert in this manner:

"'You demand that I assess the steam railroads at 60 per cent. I would not agree to this because many of the farms in Van Wert county are assessed at only 33 per cent. I am willing to assess railroad property as high as other property, but no higher.'

"Mr. Johnson said that this statement was entirely just, and all that he demanded. Troup therefore came to the tent and repeated this statement. He also promised not to ride on a pass."

The above takes Mr. Troup away from the Democratic nomination and makes him Johnson's man. He was pledged to the Democracy of Van Wert county, but that was not enough. Now he is pledged to Tom Johnson. Tom is constantly changing. Two years ago he pledged himself to the single tax theory, to the Henry George idea that all taxes should be levied on lands. How long will it take Tom to work Troup up to the George standard? If Henry Troup is going to be a crank, he must be a good crank or get off the ticket.

ELECTRIFIED HOUSES.

The Simple Explanation of a Very Ordinary Phenomenon.

An instance of nonfamiliarity with simple scientific facts is illustrated by an article that goes the rounds of the press once or twice annually—namely, the story of the electrified house. The article usually states that some one has discovered that everything he touches in his house—the radiators, picture frames, banquet lamps, etc.—gives him an electric shock; hence he fears there is some connection between the arc light wires and the water pipes near his residence. The electric light inspector is therefore summoned and reports that the wires of his company are intact and that the electricity must come from some other source.

It does not dawn on any of the people consulted that the discoverer of the phenomenon is unconsciously performing one of the simplest and oldest of electrostatic experiments, the shuffling of his shoes over the dry carpet raising the potential of his body to several thousand volts, which discharge at every opportunity. One may even get electric discharges from his knuckles against the brass lock of a handbag which he may be carrying while walking on a stone pavement during cold, dry weather.

But, dismissing newspaper science, it is somewhat astonishing, in view of the many ways in which in cold, dry countries electricity is unintentionally developed and manifested by sparking, that the first knowledge concerning this phenomenon did not come to the ancients in this way rather than by the attraction of light substances by amber. The explanation of this, however, may be that the scientists of bygone days did not reside in cold, dry countries.—Cassier's Magazine.

Perfumes In Ancient Days.

Old as the history of the world itself is that of the queen of flowers. The ancient Greeks and Romans reveled in roses. They were used lavishly at their feasts. In the time of the republic the people had their cups of Falernian wine swimming with blooms, and the Spartan soldiers after the battle of Cirrha refused to drink any wine that was not perfumed with roses, while at the regatta of Baiæ the whole surface of the Lucrine lake was strewn with flowers.

DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE.

Prospects Bright For Continued Activity In Business.

New York, Oct. 4.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade, issued today, said in part:

Distribution of merchandise shows no diminution, and prospects are bright for continued activity. Dealers in many lines are urgent for prompt shipments, calling upon jobbers and manufacturers for goods already overdue. This indication of reduced stocks is a good sign, and tends to sustain quotations. Western reports are especially favorable, and the early marketing of cotton has brought distinct improvement at the south. Voluntary advances in wages have been announced in a number of instances, while the labor situation is more satisfactory, although not entirely free from controversy. Transportation facilities have improved in the coke region, where congestion was becoming severe, and railway earnings thus far reported for September exceed last year's by 94 per cent.

Pig iron furnaces are receiving larger consignments of coke, and there is less interruption because of fuel scarcity. The situation is by no means satisfactory, however, and production of iron and steel would expand considerably if facilities were normal. Much of the relief has come from large imports, the extent of which is not generally appreciated.

Wool averaged slightly higher in sympathy with the London sale, but further declines occurred in hides, and leather has become dull.

PROTESTS POUR IN

From East Enders Against Assessments for Pennsylvania Avenue Improvements.

At the next meeting of council which will be held Tuesday evening, Attorney James Davis, of the East End, will be present to represent several hundred property owners who have been assessed for the improvement of Pennsylvania avenue. Since yesterday morning property owners have called at Attorney Davis' office by the dozens, signed a remonstrance against paying the assessment, and it is believed that by concerted effort many assessments will be cancelled. So far over 100 petitions have been signed by this number, and will be greatly increased before Tuesday evening.

It was stated this morning that the owners of Columbian park had been assessed in the neighborhood of $1,500. The McKinnon estate, which fronts on Pennsylvania avenue, has been assessed over $1,500. This estate is said to be worth at least $2,000 an acre. Notices of assessment have been forwarded to almost every property owner in the East End, and it is most likely that a remonstrance will be filed with council by all of these persons against paying the stated assessments. In the East End the question is the paramount one.

NEVER WILL BE BETTER

Opinion of His Physician About the Injured Dragon Boy.

Will little Michael Dragon, of Virginia avenue, East End, ever be able to arise from his bed, and play again? It is not likely. The boy was visited early this morning by Dr. Walter E. Mowen, and after he came from the humble home he said: "He is just as well now as he ever will be."

The boy is being looked after every day by physicians, and it is the opinion of them that he will never recover. Owing to the fact that the family are foreigners it is quite a hard matter to make them understand. The mother received a letter from her husband who is at Pittsburg, last evening, and he asks that the family pack their goods and come to Pittsburg at once. Dragon says that he has secured a good job. The boy, however, is in no fit condition to be removed, and he will not be, provided Dr. Mowen can prevent it. Much concern is felt over the condition of the boy.

New Social Club.

A social club is to be organized in the East End next week. The preliminary steps have been taken, and it is the intention to secure quarters in the Ferguson & Larkins building on First avenue. A meeting to complete the organization is to be held early next week. The following young men are at the head of the movement: William White, Earl Myers, James White, Herman Supplee, Charles Harris, Fred McCain, Harry Meanor, Roger Hill, Paul Andrews. The club is to be for social purposes only.

NEXT MEETING AT CANTON

The State W. C. T. U. at Salem Elects Officers And Adjourns.

Salem, October 4.—The State Women's Christian Temperance Union convention closed last evening with a public meeting of "Y.s" The convention elected these officers: Mrs. Annie Woods Clark, Columbus, president; Mrs. Sarah M. Perkins, Cleveland, vice-president; Miss Frances Hamilton, Madison, corresponding secretary; Miss Olivia Annette Thomas, Bloomdale, recording secretary; Mrs. Florence Jaite, Cleveland, treasurer. It resolved to send a delegate to the world's Women's Christian Temperance Union convention, at Geneva, Switzerland, next summer, and Mrs. Clark, the president, was chosen delegate. The next annual meeting will be held in Canton.

A matter was taken up yesterday which later developed into quite a controversy. It has been the rule that all funds of the various departments, in fact, all moneys of any kind whatever, shall pass only through the hands of the state treasurer. Mrs. E. J. Gray, of Medina, state superintendent of contests, has heretofore been permitted to handle her own funds, independent of the treasurer. Yesterday it was ordered that all be handled only by the state treasurer.

The executive committee recommended that the convention adopt the motion, and when it came up in the convention a warm debate ensued. Mrs. Gray made a determined plea to be allowed to handle the funds of her own department, but the motion was adopted. Mrs. Gray then tendered to the executive committee her resignation as superintendent of the contest department.

Cruelly Crushed.

William Bliss when president of the Boston and Albany railroad was once called before the railroad committee of the Massachusetts legislature to testify on traffic matters, and a young member who was serving his first term undertook to examine him.

"I want you to tell me how much it costs to haul a freight car from Boston to Springfield," said the member.

"I don't know," replied Mr. Bliss.

"You don't know?"

"That was the answer I gave."

"What are you, anyway?"

"President."

"Of what?"

"The Boston and Albany railroad."

"Well, sir," began the legislator in rising voice, "if you are William Bliss, president of the Boston and Albany railroad, and you don't know what it costs to haul freight from Boston to Springfield, who in the name of heaven does know?"

"No one that I know unless it is a member of the Massachusetts legislature who is serving his first term."

Another member continued the examination.

A Plea For Courtesy.

We have lost the old flowery forms of politeness, and now we never waste "Thank you!" on a fellow creature who is not of our own immediate circle. A tradesman does, but he knows it will be charged in the bill. I wonder what will bring us back to the old sweetness of manner? Why should not the customer in the teashop or the customer in the postoffice say "Please" when he gives his order and the other spare a "Thank you!" when he has paid his bill? It makes life run so much more easily.—Girl's Realm.

A STRONG, VIGOROUS MAN

Is Liable to Break Down—Pe-ru-na is Sure to Restore.

Hon. Frank Dunn, Alderman Twenty-Fourth District, writes from 232 East Fifty-Eighth Street, New York City:
The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen: "There is no remedy for a broken-down system that I know of which will so effectually restore health as Peruna.

"Whenever I am overworked or suffer from the consequences of a cold a few doses of Peruna builds me up again more quickly than anything I ever tried. I find it especially valuable for catarrh. Three bottles cured me three years ago of catarrh of the stomach and I have never had the least symptoms of it since."

Very truly,
FRANK DUNN, Alderman 24th Dist., N. Y. City.

A TONIC is a medicine that gives tone to some part of the system. There are different kinds of tonics, but the tonic most needed in this country, where catarrh is so prevalent, is a tonic that operates on the mucous membranes.

Peruna is a tonic to the mucous membranes of the whole body. It gives tone to the capillary circulation which constitutes these delicate membranes.

Peruna is a specific in its operation upon the mucous membrane. It is a tonic that strikes at the root of all catarrhal affections. It gives tone to the minute blood vessels and the terminal nerve fibres. Catarrh cannot exist long where Peruna is used intelligently. Peruna seeks out catarrh in all the hidden parts of the body.

Paul Landrum writing from Atlanta, Ga., says:

"In January last I began the use of your Peruna and Manalin for what was termed organic heart trouble. At that time I could scarcely walk to my place of business without stopping to rest and on arrival felt completely exhausted. Had severe pains in my heart and general dizziness. After using the first bottle of Peruna I began to improve and today I feel that I am a sound man and I work fourteen hours a day without any bad feeling."—Paul Landrum.

A. M. Ikerd, an employee of the C. B. & Q. R. R., West Burlington, Ia., writes:

"I had catarrh of the stomach and small intestines for a number of years. I went to a number of doctors and got no relief. Finally one of my doctors sent me to Chicago and I met the same fate. They said they could do nothing for me, that I had cancer of the stomach and there was no cure. I almost thought the same, for my breath was something awful. I could hardly stand it, it was so offensive. I could not eat anything without great misery, and I gradually grew worse.

"Finally I got one of your books, and concluded I would try Peruna, and thank God, I found a relief and a cure for that dreadful disease. I took five bottles of Peruna and two of Manalin, and I now feel like a new man. There is nothing better than Peruna, and I keep a bottle in my house all the time."—A. M. Ikerd.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

When to Eat Fruit.

The question is often asked, At what time of day should fruit be eaten? In tropical countries, where fruit is the chief article of food, the rule appears to be that the earlier in the day it is taken the better and the later the worse. In hot weather many wise people will eat none after noon, alleging that the digestion then declines in power with the decline of the day and the fruit, instead of digesting, decomposes owing to the presence of the saccharine matter. The objection to fruit and certain kinds of vegetables late in the day, be the explanation what it may, is certainly justified by an ample experience, though some persons can eat fruit at all hours without feeling any inconvenience.—Table Talks.

TWELVE PAGES.

The whole country will regret that the conference on the miners' strike, held at the White House in Washington, did not reach a more satisfactory conclusion. The president did all in his power to bring about a peaceful settlement of existing difficulties; but his appeals, both to patriotism and manhood, apparently fell on deaf ears. The coal operators exhibit the same obstinacy and stubborness that has characterized their course from the beginning of the struggle. The offer of President Mitchell, of the Mine Workers' union, to submit the whole controversy to a tribunal of arbitration of President Roosevelt's own selestion and to abide by the result will strike the public generally as being fair and just. How the operators can quarrel with it, if they are conscious of having the right on their side, passes comprehension. The proposition of the other side, to let the judges of the local courts settle the problem, while it may be approved in some quarters, has less to commend it. Such struggles inevitably arouse bitter local feeling, and for the ends of justice it is but natural that something in the nature of a change of venue be desired. The real aim and purpose of the operators is to reject all plans for a settlement that will compel them to recognize the miners' union and its right to treat with them. The owners of the mines and railroads, representing hundreds of millions of capital, band together to aid each other, and yet would deny the same privilege to the men they employ, the men who create their wealth. Here is the inconsistent and inexcusable feature of their course. They retaliate by saying some of the men on strike have been disorderly. But they cannot hold the whole organization responsible for the acts of a few individuals, especially as lawbreaking is not countenanced by the miners' union as a whole, and as its officers have at all times endeavored to discourage it. There would have been no strike and no disorder had the operators shown a disposition to listen to the men and make an honest effort to settle the dispute to the interests of both parties concerned. The situation is indeed grave, but the effort to put all responsibility for it on the shoulders of the men who toil will not be countenanced by the general public. The anthracite miners, considering the hardships and dangers they incur, are among the most poorly paid laborers in the country, and the sympathy of the whole people is with them in the battle they are fighting for living wages.

The Republican county executive committee, in its session at Lisbon, performed most excellent work. The selection of A. E. Swearingen, of Hanover township, as a candidate for the office of infirmary director, is one that will be hailed with the highest satisfaction by the people of Columbiana county. Mr. Swearingen is a man of the highest standing in the community where he resides, and eminently qualified for the office for which he has been nominated. The addition of his name renders the Republican county ticket strong from top to bottom, and ensures its triumphant election as a whole.

Massachusetts Republicans fall in line approving President Roosevelt in one administration and in the intention to support him in another. The anti-administration forces in the Bay state have been noisy, but not influential, and there is going to be a grand Republican victory this fall right in the heart of Edward Atkinson's stronghold.

Tom L. Johnson is on the hunt for local issues. He ought to find one in Cleveland, where he is reported to be worth $10,000,000 to $14,000,000, but where, in five years, he has returned for taxation only $33,900.

The university extension movement has been universally commended. Its inauguration in this city is worthy of all encouragement as a stimulus to educational growth.

Carnes was a mill employe. He leaves a wife.

AT THE THEATER

Manager J. A. Norris offers to the patrons of the new Grand opera house on Saturday afternoon and evening Mr. Frank Burt's famous scenic revival of that great emotional play, "East Lynne," with Miss Rebecca Warren in the character of Lady Isabelle. Without a doubt more people have cried and laughed with Lady Isabelle than any other character known to the American stage. No novel in the English langauge has had a larger sale than "East Lynne" and no drama in the English speaking tongue has been heard by more people.

A large house greeted "Our New Minister" at the Grand Opera House last evening. The same players that appeared here last year compose the company this season and judging from the way the play was received, much better satisfaction was given. Some parts of the play have been revised and with the company this season is a complete new set of scenery. Several new parts have been added, all of which improve the production which is one of the best on the road.

The Bennett-Moulton company, that commence their week's engagement next Monday, promise their many patrons superb productions. This season the company is the largest, strongest and most complete ever seen at 10, 20 and 30 cents, and will put to shame many of the high-priced companies now upon the road, having the best vaudeville artists between the acts that money can procure.

centralizing element was the competition which arose between the ports. The fourth and most serious decentralizing element was the overlapping territory, which was caused largely by reason of disputes in measuring. For years a great debate went on in this country, during which period William Penn and the Calverts figured conspicuously.

"But, let us look at another phase in the growth of our country. Were there not elements which tended to unite as well as decentralize the nation's people? The colonists finally came to the conclusion that God must have ordered this fair land for us, and they began to talk about a 'destiny.' Was Patrick Henry not the first one to use this word in his stirring speeches?

"When England began to press the crown of oppression upon young America's brow, this had a tendency to unite the colonies in sympathy. England issued writs, smuggling took place, and it was at this time that James Otis made that great speech of which John Adams said: 'When Otis made that speech, at that very time, the child of liberty was born.'

"Then came the stamp act with tyranical laws, and it was about this period that Benjamin Franklin figured most conspicuously.

"He spent 10 long years in the service of America, and when he returned the snows of many winters had laid upon his beloved wife's grave, for she had long since passed through those gates, whose portals we call Death."

A GOOD PRESCRIPTION.

Laughter as a Stomach Cure and an Aid to Health.

Worry is but one of the many forms of fear, so that worry tends to the production of indigestion. Indigestion tends to put the body of the subject in a condition that favors worry. There is thus established a vicious circle which tends to perpetuate itself, each element augmenting the other.

It is necessary to secure a cheerful, wholesome atmosphere for the dyspeptic. He should eat his meals at a table where there is good fellowship and where funny stories are told. He should himself make a great effort to contribute his share of this at the table, even if it be necessary, as it was in one case under my care, for him to solemnly and seriously collect funny paragraphs from the press, and at first interject them spasmodically during lulls in the conversation at the table. The very efforts and determination of the man to correct his own silent habits at table, to correct his feelings of discouragement and worry, were in themselves a promise of success. The effort made was adequate to the obstacles to be overcome. He succeeded, and the spectacle of that man trying to be funny at table when he felt thoroughly discouraged and blue is one we shall never forget.

Laughing is in itself also a useful exercise from the standpoint of digestion. It stirs up all the abdominal organs, it increases the circulation of the blood, it increases peristalsis, it increases the secretion of gastric juices. Five minutes' deliberate laughing after each meal would be an excellent prescription for some people.—Family Doctor.

THE BIRTH OF JAPAN.

Curious Legend of the Creation Handed Down by the Japanese.

The following is the curious legend of the creation as it is told in Japan: Clouds formed the bridge on which once god Yzanaghi and his spouse Yzanuma stood pondering on the riddle of existence, whether the beginnings of worlds and the beginnings of life lay slumbering in that sea of chaos. Yzanaghi, apparently more enterprising than philosophically inclined, seized his shimmering spear and plunged it into the black and seething flood. Pulling it up again, he discovered seven salt drops on its diamond point, which, dropping, condensed and formed the island of Cusokorosima.

Thereupon Yzanaghi and his spouse selected the spot of earth which had thus been created as their permanent dwelling place and peopled it with innumerable genii of animal and plant life and spirits of the elements. And around this "palace of immortality" rose eight other islands—Awadsi, the island of foam; the mountainous Cho, Yamato, blessed with fruit; Yyo, unsurpassed in its beauty; the quinquangular Tsikousi, Sado, rich in copper and gold; Yki, one of the pillars of heaven, and Oko, surrounded by three satellites.

Such was the birth of Japan, of that curious land of Fusiyama, with its amiable population of artist artisans, its graceful teahouses, its glistening silks, its grotesque dwarf trees, its white cranes and dreamy lotus ponds. —Harper's Magazine.

The Man and the Wave.

Once upon a time a man was telling a tale of woe that unveiled his matrimonial experience.

"It was all on account of a little dainty handkerchief," he said. "The first time that I saw the girl and before we had been introduced she waved that bit of lace at me, and I was carried away. It was a fall in love and then matrimony. But, alas, that delicate handkerchief was no index to the girl's nature, and I found myself wrecked on the sea of matrimony."

Moral.—A man may be carried away by a wave and wrecked without going near the water.—New York Herald.

Every Convenience.

There is a dock laborer in Glasgow who is possessed of a great sense of humor. Perhaps it's because he's an Irishman. Pat had been disturbed several times in his single apartment by a well meaning lady missionary. Seeing Pat was rather an exemplary sort of a husband, she suggested that he might be able to afford a room and kitchen soon.

"An' phwat wad Oi want lavin' such a comfortable house as this for?" asked Pat.

"Well," she replied, "you would have more room—more conveniences."

"Convaniences is it?" said Pat, with a smile. "Sure, an' at prisint if Oi want to go to the drawin' room or the dinin' room or the conservatory, begorra, Oi've just got to sit still. Phwat could be handier?"

The lady couldn't say.—London Answers.

Not an Occasion For Haste.

During the Sikh war the late Field Marshal Sir Neville Chamberlain, who then held the rank of colonel, called for volunteers to assist him in blowing up a bastion. Three or four responded, and the colonel led the little party close up to the point where the mine was to be fired. As soon as the explosives were in place and the fuse lighted the volunteers started to run in order to get out of the way of the explosion no less than to effect, as speedily as possible to retreat to the safety of the British lines. They had not gone a dozen yards before Chamberlain shouted: "Come back! There's to be no indecent haste, young men. We'll walk." And walk they did, while the fuse slowly sputtered down to the waiting powder.

A Minor Consideration.

The ambitious young woman was attracted by an advertisement, one line of which read, "How to Become an Author." The advertiser claimed that by his method failure was impossible.

So the ambitious young woman sent on the necessary trifling sum of money, and by return mail she received a slip on which was printed this bit of advice, "Write something."

"But," she protested by letter, "I already have done that, and it hasn't been printed."

"We congratulate you," was the reply. "If you have written something, you already are an author. Publication is a minor consideration, with which we have nothing to do."—Brooklyn Eagle.

NO AGREEMANT

NOW IN FORCE IN THE CITY FOR CLOSING HOURS.

The Old Regulation Expired October 1, And a New One Has Not Been Made.

Speculation is being indulged in just now as to whether the proposed revision of the retail clerk's agreement with the merchants will go through, or whether the ultimate result will be the abandonment of all regulation as to working hours for clerks employed in East Liverpool.

As a matter of fact, no agreement now exists between the merchants and their employes. The closing regulations which have been in force and which were mutual between the clerks and the merchants expired on October 1, and at that time the members of local union No. 133, presented a new and revised agreement. This document contains several changes, the most important among which was the demand that 6 o'clock be adopted as the closing hour on Monday nights. When the agreement was laid before the merchants the only objection made was to the 6 o'clock Monday night clause, all others, of which there were several, were conceded. The claim was made by the merchants in session then, that the paper presented to them was not an official one, since it neither contained the seal of the union, nor the signatures of the officers of No. 133. This point was waived, however, and the answer returned that the merchants could not agree to the early closing hour for Monday nights.

Since no conference has been held, nor no agreement reached since October 1, the business establishments are now relieved from observing any rules whatever.

It is understood that the employes of the local dry goods stores were the ones to propose the changes in the regulations which are now annoying the parties interested, and as the majority of the dry goods clerks are ladies, the real foundation of the trouble can be laid at their door.

At the meeting next Tuesday night it is assured that there will be the largest attendance for months. No action will be taken that will change the clerk's side of the controversy, in the least. The lady members outnumber the men more than two to one, and the demand will stand. It is confidently expected that there will be a few warm debates before adjournment is taken.

Meantime a few of the merchants are taking advantage of the fact that no agreement now exists, and are observing whatever hours suits them best.

Too Gorgeous Books.

The author of "Elizabeth and Her German Garden," writing on the "Giving of Books" in the Century, says:

Gifts of books addressed solely to the spirit should never be editions de luxe. Of what use is a book to me, however much I may want to read it, if it is so gorgeous that it must not be taken anywhere where rain might fall on it, or where it might get muddy, or where a heedless gnat, caught by the quick turning of a leaf, might leave its legs in the pages, angering the owner of the defiled book, who does not want its legs, almost as much as it is itself angered by having to go on being a gnat without them? I can no more take an overgorgeous book to my heart than I can fold my child in my arms when it is dressed for a party.

When she saw two officers staring her in the face up went her hands and she commenced pleading for mercy. She knew, however, that she had done nothing to cause her arrest, and with wonderful assurance invited the officers in to take any or all of the people of the household. Chris was the only one wanted. The officers found him curled up in bed and though they hated to cause him so much inconvenience commanded that he dress immediately and follow. He complied but with reluctance and in a few minutes was on the way to the Lisbon jail in charge of Officer Porter.

Constable Powell has numerous such warrants in his possession and will likely make arrests today.

The Baggage Smasher's Wisdom.

The other day an express wagon filled with trunks rattled up Broadway, and just opposite the postoffice a big Saratoga slid off and came crashing down on the car tracks. Several people ran out from the sidewalk to rescue it, but the trunk proved to be empty, and there was little damage done. "Now, if that had been full," said one old gentleman to the expressman, "you'd have had a fine old time with it." "Huh," replied the baggage charioteer scornfully, "full trunks don't fall off by theirselves. You got to fling them off!"—New York Commercial Advertiser.

AERIAL POLO.

A Queer Kind of Amusement on a Pacific Ocean Island.

Writing on "Our Equatorial Islands" in the Century, James D. Hague says:

It became an amusing diversion to overturn the large flat stones beneath which the rats were hiding in solid masses and watch them as they scampered in all directions, pursued and quickly snatched up by the man-o'-war hawks. These crafty birds were apt to learn that the appearance of a man walking on the island, especially with a dog, meant rats for them, and any one thus going forth was usually followed by a hovering flock, ready and impatient for the sport they had learned to expect. A rat brought to hand by the dog was quickly tossed in air, where the birds were ready to snatch it, sometimes with a contest on the wing for the disputed possession. One form of this sport, a sort of aerial polo, which seemed to be as good fun for the birds as for the observers, consisted in tossing two rats into the air at the same moment, not singly and apart, but tied together with about six feet of strong twine.

Instantly the birds made a dash for the rats, and the successful winner of the first prize went sailing off with one rat in his bill and the other swinging in the air beneath until snatched by the second winner, when, after a quick, sharp struggle and a taut strain on the cord, the bird with the weaker hold was compelled to let go. This then went on as a continuous performance, with somewhat Jonah-like but rapidly repeated disappearances and reappearances of the little rats, swallowed and reluctantly disgorged by the birds in quick succession until the flock, thoroughly exhausted by their impetuous flight and extraordinary exercise, alighted on the ground for a short truce, when the two temporary stakeholders would be found sitting face to face, keenly eying each other from opposite ends of the string still connecting them, each anxiously on the sharp lookout for sudden jerks and unpleasant surprises, while all the other pursuers gathered around in a ring, waiting for the two prize birds to fly. The general aspect of all participants seemed to verify the familiar adage that the pleasure is not in the game, but in the chase.

The Proper Treatment For a Sprained Ankle.

As a rule a man will feel well satisfied if he can hobble around on crutches two or three weeks after spraining his ankle, and it is usually two or three months before he has fully recovered. This is an unnecessary loss of time, for in many cases in which Chamberlain's Pain Balm has been promptly and freely applied, a complete cure has been effected in less than one week's time, and in some cases within three days. Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, men—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous effort to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insiduous consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boschee's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure-all, but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get this reliable remedy at Charles F. Craig's.

ABSOLUTE FREE TRADE

And Nothing Short of That Is Intended.

CUSTOM HOUSES TO BE ABOLISHED.

Tom Johnson Admits That This Is One Thing That He Aims at, and He Is "The Whole Thing" Among Ohio Democrats at This Time.

Always heretofore the Democrats have dodged and denied on the free trade issue, and have stubbornly insisted that they had no purpose or intention of favoring absolute free trade. All kinds of fine phrases, from "tariff revision" on through a long list more or less meaningless, have been used to evade the rugged issue that their opposition to protection to American industries, actually meant the abolition of all taxes upon foreign imports.

But in Ohio, at least, this mask has been stripped off at last. At Lima, O., Tuesday night, Sept. 23, TOM JOHNSON DECLARED OPENLY, as he had done less conspicuously in previous meetings and in congress, THAT HE BELIEVED IN MR. GEORGE'S PROPOSITION TO ABOLISH CUSTOM HOUSES. Our authority for this is "the Democratic paper of Ohio," the Columbus Press.

"Me," as Johnson calls himself, hath said it, and that settles it at this time for the Ohio Democracy, who have chosen him as their supreme dictator, and who wear his button for their party's next nomination for the presidency. The custom houses must go, and absolute, unqualified, undiluted free trade is the party doctrine.

No longer will any readjustment of rates, to lessen possible inequalities, answer for the Ohio Democracy. Mere "revenue reform," once so radical, is not now near deep-rooted enough for the followers of Tom Johnson and the recent Bigelow. Even "the tariff for revenue only" is no longer drastic enough, for in its place comes the tearing down of every custom house, the removal of every tariff collector, the sweeping away of the last scintilla of the least possible protection to the feeblest home industry.

And in their place, what is proposed by ME, Tom Johnson? Why direct taxation; the single tax on land values, and nothing else, doing away with every other form of levy and assessment upon every other form of property. This is the Henry George idea, pure and simple and perfect, and Mr. Johnson declared in that same breath at Lima, in his very words as given by the Columbus Press:

"THE DOCTRINES OF HENRY GEORGE ARE THE MOVING SPIRIT OF WHATEVER I DO, WHETHER AS MAYOR OF CLEVELAND, OR IN THIS TENT, OR IN ANOTHER FIELD OF ACTIVITY."

Keep that in mind. Remember that Henry George was for the uttermost free trade, and that Johnson is, because the single land tax is to take care of everything, local, state or national. Free trade stripped of the least pretense of protection is the Ohio Democratic doctrine today.

LABOR DEMAND EXCEEDS SUPPLY.

Farmers, Contractors and Builders Short of Help.

Prosperity is causing a stringency in the local labor market. There are several new buildings in Troy on which work is stopped temporarily because of the lack of workmen.

Contractors are confronted with a new competition in securing and keeping help. The bumper crops have created an abnormal demand for farm help. Crops must be harvested and housed, and farmers are offering extra inducements in the shape of higher wages for hands.

This happy condition for the workman is the same or "more so" in the skilled labor market, and even clerks are in demand in the cities. This Republican brand of prosperity, aided by good crops, extends through every grade of society and to all parts of the United States.—Troy (O.) Union.

An Ohio Democratic Convention Demands Direct Taxation.

During the Salem Republican convention a delegation of potters called on the Mahoning county leaders and wanted to be assured that Mr. Kennedy would support the McKinley high tariff. They declared that they would have no work if the tariff should be reduced on pottery products. The pottery workers of East Liverpool, Sebring and other parts of the district must be somewhat surprised over the action of the Democratic congressional convention at Alliance in declaring for an abolition of all tariffs and in favor of direct taxation.—Youngstown Telegram.

MRS. HELENA BLAU,

Young Milwaukee Society Woman.

Mrs. Helena Blau.

TEN thousand cured women have written to tell how Wine of Cardui bestows the blessing of health on every woman who takes it, rich and poor alike. Mrs. Helena Blau, No. 123 Seventh Street, Milwaukee, Wis., is one of the young women whom Wine of Cardui has rescued from a life of suffering. She writes:

"Wine of Cardui is certainly 'worn out' women's best friend and I am pleased to give my experience with it. A few months ago I caught a severe cold, having been out in inclement weather, which settled all over me, particularly in the abdomen. I was in almost constant pain. I consulted a physician and took his medicine for a month and without any relief. I then decided I would try your medicine and it was a lucky day for me when I did so. I noticed a change in a few days and felt encouraged to continue taking Wine of Cardui, and my patience was rewarded, for in two weeks my pains had left me and I felt like a new woman."

The woman who has suffered from female weakness should do anything within reason to secure health. Wine of Cardui is the medicine that appeals to reasonable women—women who hold operations and cutting in horror—women who know that Nature is the best physician. Wine of Cardui gives women back their health by giving Nature a chance to build up the wasted and diseased tissue. Wine of Cardui regulates the menstrual flow and Nature, when relieved of the drains or of the poisons in the system, makes the functional organs strong and healthy again.

Any woman who is silently suffering untold pains because she is too sensitive to undergo a physician's examination and treatment can find no excuse for not securing relief when Wine of Cardui is offered to her. There is no publicity to deter her. She can take Wine of Cardui in the privacy of her home, with as much assurance of a final cure as though a dozen doctors recommended it. Many physicians do recommend Wine of Cardui to their patients.

Why not get a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

Their Present Platform Most Radical Ever Advocated and Their Leader Wants All Custom Houses Wiped Out, Destroying Protection.

It is just ten years ago that the Democratic party persuaded the people of the United States to put their foot in it. Under the Harrison administration and the McKinley tariff the country was prosperous as never before that time. Business was in such full tide as to persuade many that it would stand any kind of tampering, and so the talk began about the need for a change as the reason for defeating Harrison and electing Cleveland and a congress that would carry out his recommendations in favor of the freest trade that any president had ever advocated in any of his public messages.

The election went for free trade and notice was thus served on that November night to every industrial interest that it was in peril. In consequence, every man in charge of an enterprise who was at all prudent and looked forward to the possibilities of the coming months, began to set his house in order for the troubles that were threatened by the Democratic platform and campaign speeches and newspapers. The contracting current of trade grew more and more constricted month after month until less than six months after Cleveland's election the effect was so fully felt in financial circles that the terrible currency panic of 1893 held the entire country in its grasp. This is the actual sequence of events. The threat of free trade stopped the factories, the stoppage of the factories affected the banks, and the disaster to the banks paralyzed every interest. It is true, just as Democrats state, that their free trade tariff bill did not get upon the statute book until many months afterward, but they were elected pledged to its passage, and it was the bounden duty of every manufacturer and business man of every kind to get ready for trouble from the first, and not wait until the storm burst upon him.

At that time there had been 30 years of almost uninterrupted Republican rule, for on no previous occasion had the Democrats been in power in all branches of the government at once, so that they could put into the statute book unhindered their free trade heresies. Almost the first act of the first Republican congress was a protective tariff law, to undo the mischief of the Democratic panic of 1857, just as the first act of the first congress of the United States under the constitution, when George Washington first was president, was a law for the protection and encouragement of American industries. The Morrill tariff carried the United States through the Civil war, and the marvelous progress of the succeeding years, and in consequence an entire generation had come and gone in the 35 years after the Democratic times of 1857 of "ten cents a day no roast beef," until the election of 1892, and the cry for a "change" sounded very plausible to the millions who never knew of the sufferings of their fathers, and to the other millions who had come upon these shores since those days.

Ten years, however, is not so long a period, and there are too many Americans, both among the women as well as among the men, who remember the troubles of the free trade panic precipitated by the election of Cleveland and a congress of his kind, to care to risk anything else of the sort. And yet that very question is before us today more truly than it has been at any time in the past ten years. Nor is it as much in evidence in any other state as it is in Ohio in the shape that the campaign is taking.

Tom Johnson, who has suddenly become the "ME" of the Democracy here, in the hope of equally being the "ME" of his party everywhere, is an out and out free trader. The Henry George doctrines, which he declares to be the "moving spirit of whatever I do," explicitly demand the abolition of every form of tax except that upon "land values." The single land tax would not leave the least room for even "incidental protection."

Mr. Johnson at Lima declared that he believed "Mr. George's proposition to abolish custom houses." Consequently, not one Democrat in Ohio, who has been with his party in the past when it favored even "incidental protection," as it has often done in this state, especially in certain districts, has left the slightest footing for his faith in the platform of his party or its candidate this year, because that candidate is himself a Henry George man, thrust upon his party for that reason and no other.

Free trade is in the fight in Ohio, and it is up to every man who cares to protect his own employment, or to get good prices from the produce of his fields, from the workers in the factories, to vote against the Johnson party—"horse, foot and dragoons."

BASEBALL GOSSIP

Record of Mercer and Carey in the Big Clubs of the American League.

Now that the American League baseball season has closed, baseball fans in this city will read with interest the work that was done by Win Mercer, who was pitching for the Detroit team during the season, and of George Carey, who looked after the initial bag for the Washington, D. C., club. There has just been prepared a semi-official batting average of all the players of this league, coupled with other interesting statistics, which is here given.

During the season 123 players were used by all the clubs in the league. In the list of fielding averages Carey held 13th place. His record in them was as follows: Games 120; A. B. 455; R. 45; B. H. 143; S. B. 0; S. 8; Pct. 314. Mercer is close to the bottom of the long list, holding 112th place. His record was: Games 33; A. B. 98; R. 7; B. H. 17; S. B. 1; S.H. 4; Pct. 173. Carey has the best average in the outfield of any first baseman in the American League with but one exception, that being McGann, of Baltimore, who has an average of 990. Carey's average was one point less. The official record gives Carey the following: Games 120; P. O. 196; A. 66; Errors 14; Pct. 989. Among the pitchers of this league, Mercer holds sixth place. He has to his credit 33 games; P. O. 18; A. 98; E. 6; Pct. 951. In the pitcher's average the following record is given Mercer: Games 33; B. B. 84; W. P. 2; H. P. B. 8; S. O. 36; Won 15 games; lost 15; T. O.; Pct. 500. In the number of shut out games that Mercer has won and lost during the season was Won 4, Lost 4.

Sporting papers issued this week contain among other things the following about "Win Mercer:"

Detroit has released pitcher McMackin. The team has this season used twelve pitchers—Mercer, Mullin, Miller, Yeager, Siever, Cronin, McCarthy, Kissinger, Egan, Terry, Fisher and McMackin.

It is said that Mercer some time ago signed to manage the Detroit team next season.

To punish Pitcher Tannehill for deserting the Pittsburg team, he has been ordered to report at the home grounds every day until October 15. This prevents him from taking any part in the exhibition games, the proceeds of which go to the players, and it will also keep him from joining the Cantillion Stars which is managed by "Win Mercer," of East Liverpool.

It is not hard to prove the claims made for Doan's Kidney Pills. Scores of people in East Liverpool testify to their merit. Surely the evidence from friends and neighbors, plain statements of their experience, is better proof than the testimony of people residing in some far-away place. Read the following:

Mr. William Torrence, fireman at engine house No. 1 says: "For some time I was annoyed with symptons of either weakened or over-excited kidneys. I had noticed more than one recommendation made byp eople living in East Liverpool about Doan's Kidney Pills, and thinking that if the medicine performed half what it promised it might help me, I bought a box at Larkins' Drug Store. The treatment cured me."

BEAVER OIL FIELD

Drillers in the Vicinity of Georgetown Are Having Troubles of Their Own.

Drillers in the Georgetown oil fields are having trouble. Tools in three wells are stuck and this has delayed operations somewhat.

Gailey & Co., on the J. R. Peters farm and Finnegan & Co., on the Dawson farm, are sufferers. The most serious trouble happened to Le Comete & Co., drilling No. 3, on the Dawson farm. At a depth of 540 feet, with only a possible 150 feet to go, the tools stuck in the casing. The stem broke in the hole, and the well, which had indications of being a good one, will have to be adandoned. The well was to have been shot this week. Kirk & Critchlow, operating on the Frank Laughlin farm, have been forced to suspend operations on account of a scarcity of water. The concern drilled down 120 feet with an eight inch pipe and struck water, but after it had been bailed out twice the supply of water was exhausted. They will go deeper as this is the only way of getting a supply of water.

The National Transit company has commenced putting down three-inch pipe in Dry Run and Beaver creek. These are all gravity lines and the three inch pipes gives better satisfaction and enables the gaugers to get the oil from the fields in short time. All of the oil in the Georgetown field is pumped to Turkeyfoot, thence to McDonald, Pa. The work of laying pipes, replacing the smaller ones is an indication that oil in large quantities is expected from the field.

NEW SCHOOL HOUSE

Kensington Will Move Its Schools From the Hill to the Village.

The school board of Kensington has been successful in securing a grant from the township board for building of a new school house. The site selected for the structure is that of the George Cox Meat Packing house, which was burned about 18 months ago.

The present building is located on the hill north of the village and was considered not a suitable place because of the hardship incurred by the children in the climbing of the hill, especially in winter when the roads were icy and drifted. The new site is a splendid location for the school. Arrangements have been made whereby Mr. Cox becomes the owner of the old school building. What disposition he will make of it is not known. Kensington schools are graded ones and consist of two rooms.

Mr. Cox is a resident of this city.

The Williams family decided to hold their first reunion this year, and all their children except Harvey Williams were present together with seventeen grandchildren. The meeting of the entire family was a most joyous occasion, and after the bountiful dinner was served, Mr. Marietta, of Salineville, made a picture of the group.

After a most pleasant day all reprired to their homes wishing Mr. and Mrs. Williams a prosperous and happy future.

TOOL THAT ALMOST TALKS

Yet Its Complicated Mechanism Can Be Tended by a Girl.

The most highly developed of machine tools is the automatic screw machine, and, like many another contrivance for saving labor, its home is New England. It is a development of the ordinary steel working lathe, the intermediate step being the monitor lathe, in which the various cutting tools protrude from the side of a steel turret like thirteen inch guns from a battleship turret. In the nonautomatic screw machine the turret is revolved by the operator so as to bring each tool into play, just as the turret on the old Monitor was revolved to bring one gun after another into action. But in the automatic machine the work is done without human guidance.

In making screws, nuts, bolts, studs and other small pieces that must be turned, drilled or threaded for watches, clocks, typewriters, electrical instruments and other mechanisms all the operator has to do is to feed the "stock"—a long, thin rod of steel or brass—to the machine. The feeding mechanism carries the rod slowly forward into the field of action. The turret advances and puts its first tool at work on the end of the rod. When this tool has done its task, the turret withdraws it, turns and advances a second tool into action. Each cutting tool around the turret has its distinct work to perform—one cutting a thread, another shaping a head, another putting on a point, another drilling a hole, still another putting on knurling. The turret automatically brings each of perhaps six tools into action, and when the work is finished the completed screw drops into a pan, while the "stock" is automatically fed forward to begin the complex operation again. A stream of machine oil pours continuously on the work to carry away the heat, and the little metal cuttings collect in a heap under the machine.

Hour after hour this wonderful automaton goes through its cycle of operations, the turret clicking every moment as it brings a new tool forward. Small brass pieces, on which but one tool cuts, are dropped at the rate of four a second. Large screws of complicated design upon which a whole turretful of tools must work are cut from a steel rod at the rate of one or two a minute. So perfectly are these screw machines constructed that an unskilled workman can operate a row of them. All he is required to do is to keep them fed with "stock." In some shops girls tend the machines.—Success.

Effective, but Dangerous.

To cleanse glass vases, carafes or bottles of any sort nothing is better than a little muriatic acid. A tablespoonful rinsed slowly around in a vase or decanter will cleanse it thoroughly, removing from the glass every particle of foreign matter. The acid can then be poured into another vase to perform the same office and even then returned to the bottle of supply for service on another occasion. After the acid is out of the vase or bottle the latter must be rinsed inside thoroughly first with hot soapsuds and then in several clear waters. Muratic acid is a deadly poison and must be used with great caution and only by an intelligent adult. A child or servant should never be intrusted with its use.—New York Post.

Paper Hunting.

One of the most exciting of all riding games is paper hunting, or following a trail made by dropping pieces of paper. It can be made as dangerous as steeplechasing or no more so than an ordinary gallop over the fields. The danger is in the fences to be ridden over, says Country Life In America. There is no limit to the pace but the speed of the leading horse and the necessity of keeping the trail. The "hare," as the man a-horseback who lays the trail is called, is expected to foil his pursuers, the "hounds," as often as he can by the arts of the fox or by his own ingenuity, only restricted by certain rules of the game.

Ivory and Climate.

The American climate, with its extremes of heat and cold, is very trying upon ivory, and ivory backed mirrors of European manufacture almost invariably crack across the back after a few months of use upon this side of the Atlantic. The American manufacturers have hit upon the expedient of leaving a space between glass and frame in order to allow for contraction and expansion.

The Way a Woman Begins.

"Have you finished that new novel yet?" he asked.

"Oh, dear, no. I've hardly begun," she answered. "In fact, I've only read the last chapter."—Chicago Post.

Mark Twain's Cousin,

G. C. Clemens.

G. C. Clemens, of Topeka, Kan., the noted constitutional lawyer, who bears so striking a resemblance to Mark Twain, (Samuel B. Clemens) that he is frequently taken for the original Mark, is a man of deep intellect and wide experience. He is considered one of the foremost lawyers in this country. In a recent letter to the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Mr. Clemens says:

* * "Personal experience and observation have thoroughly satisfied me that Dr. Miles' Nervine contains true merit, and is excellent for what it is recommended."

Mr. Norman Waltrip, Sup. Pres. Bankers' Fraternal Society, Chicago, says:

Dr. Miles' Pain Pills

are invaluable for headache and all pain. I had been a great sufferer from headache until I learned of the efficacy of Dr. Miles' Pain Pills. Now I always carry them and prevent recurring attacks by taking a pill when the symptoms first appear."

Sold by all Druggists. Price, 25c. per Box.

A Genius.

Small Son—I know what I'll be when I grow up—I'm going to be a great inventor.

Papa—That's encouraging, certainly. What makes you think you have inventive genius?

Small Son—Why, I wanted to take a screw out and I couldn't find a screwdriver, so I unscrewed it with your razor.—Short Stories.

A Wonder.

An advertisement was inserted for some one to take charge of the choir and play the organ at a village church. The following was among the replies: "Sir—I noticed your advertisement for an organist and music teacher, either lady or gentleman. Having been both for several years, I offer you my services."

Beauty is More Than Skin Deep.

Beauty depends more upon the condition of the liver and blood than anything else. A bad liver means a yellow, dark, muddy complexion, and bad blood means pimples, black heads and other skin eruptions which always detracts from otherwise pretty features. Without a healthy liver and good blood beauty is impossible. Wright's Celery Tea, a harmless, vegetable compound from natures own store house which acts directly upon the blood, nerves, liver and stomach, promoting a healthy digestion, creating new, rich, red corpuscles in the blood and stimulating the liver to a healthy activity, will impart a freshness, clearness and brilliancy to the complexion equal to that of youth. At all druggists, 25c and 50c.

THE PUBLICATION OF MODERN ELOQUENCE (Ten Handsome Library Volumes) is an event of premier importance. For the first time the best After-Dinner Speeches, Lectures, Addresses, Anecdotes, Reminiscences and Repartee of America's and England's most brilliant men have been selected—edited—arranged—by an editorial board of men, themselves eloquent with word and pen—men who have achieved eminence in varied fields of activity.

These gems of spoken thought were fugitive from lack of proper preservative means, until the Hon. Thomas B. Reed, upon voluntarily retiring from the Speakership of the House of Representatives, gathered about him these men of mark and experience in literature, his friends and co-workers in other fields, and began the task of preparing this great work.

North, East, South and West, and the Mother Country as well, have been searched for gems in every field of eloquence.

Here was a lecture that had wrought upon the very souls of great audiences; there an after-dinner speech, which "between the lines" was freighted with the destinies of nations. Here was an eulogy expressing in few but virile words the love, the honor and the tears of millions, and there an address pregnant with the fruits of a strenuous life's work. Or, perchance, a reminiscence, keen, scintillant repartee, or a story, potent in significance, and aflame with human interest. Matter there was in abundance, for English-speaking peoples are eloquent, but the best, only the best, the great, the brilliant, the worthy to endure, has been the guiding rule of Mr. Reed and his colleagues. Their editorial labors have been immense.

While libraries and musty files were being delved into in a hundred places—while famous men were putting into manuscript their brain children—while reminiscence, repartee and story were being reduced to type, and speeches, addresses, and lectures, which money could not buy, were in friendship's name being offered, Mr. Reed was preparing for this work, his most ambitious contribution to literature—his piece de resistance—"The Influence and the History of Oratory." Prof. Lorenzo Sears, beloved and honored in many lands for his critical and contributory work in literature, was writing "The History of After-Dinner Speaking." So with Champ Clark, Edward Everett Hale, Senator Dolliver, and Hamilton Wright Mabie—each was producing a special contribution, which of itself is a gem of thought, a monument to research, study, and observant experience.

Whatever the viewpoint, this work is without precedent. It has no predecessor, no competitor. Speeches that have been flashed across continents, lectures that have been repeated over and over again to never-tiring audiences (but never published), addresses that made famous the man, the time, and the place—these are brought together for the first time, and with them a large number of the wittiest sayings of the wittiest men of the nineteenth century.

For an hour—for a whole evening in the easy chair at home—for the study of style and diction that have electrified brilliant assemblies, for the man ambitious to become a successful or popular public speaker, and for the one who has to prepare a toast or an address, this work is a never-failing source of charm and inspiration. Nor is this solely "a man's work." "The tenderest tribute to woman I have ever read," said Senator Dolliver when he read the manuscript of Joseph Choate's after-dinner speech, "The Pilgrim Mothers."

ATTRACTIONS MANY AT COMING FAIR

Everything Auspicious For a Successful Exhibition October 13-16.

LARGE PURSES ARE OFFERED

For the Several Races And Other Features Will Make the Event Most Interesting—The Program for the Four Days.

The first tri-state agricultural fair to be held at Columbian park Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, October 13, 14, 15 and 16, is being looked forward to with much interest. There is every reason to believe that it will be a great success.

It follows the four days' fair at Steubenville and much of its success depends on the success of that. If the Steubenville fair draws a big crowd Columbian park will undoubtedly follow suit. The horses entered at Steubenville will be here and the stocks will also be transported to the park. Several thousand dollars are to be given away as premiums and there promises to be much competition. The competition for premiums will be open to the world.

Mayor Davidson states that games of chuck-a-luck, roulette wheels, wheels of fortune, etc., will positively not be allowed to operate in the park. This will meet with the hearty approval of all citizens. It is the exhibition they want to attend and they do not want to be swindled.

The police protection will be of the best. A large number of the blue coats have already been engaged and given their orders. Nearly every local horse of any fame will be entered in the races and numerous horses from abroad have up to date been registered. The running races will bring horses from all parts of the state.

The following is the speed program:

First day.—Gentlemen's road race, purse $25. No horse eligible to this class that has ever won better than entrance money in a race or that has a record better than 2:59½. 2:40 trot, stake $2000; 2:15 pacing, stake $1,000; running race, ½ mile and repeat, $100; 2:40 pacing, $200.

Second day.—2:40 pace, stake $200; 2:25 pacing, stake $500; 2:24 trotting, stake, $1,000; running race, ¾ mile and repeat, $100.

Third day.—2:27 trot, purse, $250; 2:17 trotting, stake $500; 2:22 pacing, stake $1,000; runing race, ¾ mile and repeat, $100.

Fourth day.—Free for all trot, purse, $400; 2:20 pace, $250; 2:30 pacing, stake, $200; 2:11 pacing, stake $1,000; runing race, mile and repeat, $100.

Premiums will be given for the best appearing and best bred draught horses, geldings, mares, and a $10 prize to the man having the largest display of horses of any age.

Cattle, sheep, swine, chickens, turkeys, geese, ducks, guineas, pea fowls, all fruits, grains and vegetables, farming implements, machinery and vehicles, bread, cake, butter, preserves, jellies, floral displays, manufactures, fancy work, and many things under a special department will be exhibited for handsome premiums. Five great attractions are to be given each day of the fair. Max and Rex, the wonderful dog drivers, will drive Nan Wilkes, 2:25, and Humming Bird, 2:22, in a race.

THE PRESIDENT MAY USE CLUB ON COAL ROADS

Intestate Commerce Commission Possibly May Be Able to Take Action as to Carrying Charges.

OPERATORS SAID "NO" TO MITCHELL'S OFFER

He Proposed, if Parties Couldn't Agree, to Have a Tribunal Appointed by the President Settle the Strike.

PUBLIC VIEW PRESIDENT'S CHIEF RESOURCE AS TO BOTH.

Suggestion Was Made In Administration Circles, Though Not Coming From the President, That Result of Conference Would AROUSE AND CONCENTRATE PUBLIC SENTIMENT—Operators Called Upon the President to Interfere by SENDING TROOPS to the Anthracite Region, if the Governor of Pennsylvania Failed to Suppress Lawlessness. Also Asked the President to INVOKE ACTION OF THE UNITED STATES COURTS—Made Fearful Charges of Lawlessness and Crime Against United Mine Workers—REFUSED TO TREAT WITH MITCHELL—Wanted COMMON PLEAS JUDGES In Pennsylvania Districts Where Collieries Are Located to ARBITRATE — MITCHELL DECLINED—DENIED MINERS ENTIRELY TO BLAME FOR LAWLESSNESS.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The suggestion was made in administration circles last night, though not as coming from the president, that the result of the coal conference had been to AROUSE AND CONCENTRATE PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

One of the president's advisers who was seen intimated that some consideration had been given before the conference to the question of the future course of the administration in the event either party refused absolutely to do anything toward a settlement. He intimated that there was a possibility the INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION MIGHT BE ABLE TO TAKE SOME STEPS WITH RESPECT TO CARRYING CHARGES ON THE ANTHRACITE COAL ROADS. STILL PUBLIC SENTIMENT, HE ADDED, WAS THE CHIEF RESOURCE OF THE PRESIDENT AS TO BOTH PARTIES TO THE STRIKE.

It was anounced at the White House last night that the PRESIDENT HAD NO COMMENT TO MAKE on yesterday's conference.

Operators Said Would Retard.

Stipulating that they should not be quoted the operators talked quite freely of the conference after leaving the White House.

Several of them declared the interference of the president had resulted in retarding rather than forwarding the settlement. They asserted that no progress had been made and said they would return to continue the contest. They declared that the situation was most serious as to coal supply, but said that coal would be furnished to the public, and that if given protection they could get men to mine coal to at least 70 per cent of their capacity. They declared there would be no compromise and that the strike would continue until the MINERS SUCCUMB. They asserted their determination to make no concessions further than the offers already made.

Mitchell Said Strike Would Continue.

During last evening President Mitchell, of the mine workers' union, dictated a formal statement concerning the proceedings of the conference and its results, in which he announced that the STRIKE WOULD CONTINUE AS A RESULT OF THE FAILURE OF THE CONFERENCE.

He concluded his statement as follows:

THE PRESIDENT EXPRESSED THE HOPE THAT THERE WOULD BE NO LAWLESSNESS IN THE COAL FIELDS AND THE REPRESENTATIVES OF THE MINERS ASSURED HIM THAT THEIR EVERY EFFORT WOULD BE EXERTED TO MAINTAIN PEACE.

The conference yesterday was a failure.

Apparently the rock upon which the conference split was recognition of the miners' union. The president had urged the contending parties to cease strife in the interests of the public welfare; the miners, through the president of their union, expressed a willingness to submit differences to arbitration of a tribunal to be named by the president and to enter into an agreement to abide by terms fixed by the arbitration for a period of from one to five years, and the employers, through the presidents of the railroad and coal companies and a leading independent mine operator, had squarely refused arbitration, had DENOUNCED THE MINERS' LABOR ORGANIZATION AS A LAWLESS AND ANARCHISTIC BODY, with which they could and would have no dealings; had DEMANDED FEDERAL TROOPS to insure complete protection to workers and their families in the mining region and court proceedings against the miners' union, and had offered if the men returned to work to SUBMIT GRIEVANCES AT INDIVIDUAL COLLIERIES TO THE DECISION OF THE JUDGES OF THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS for the districts of Pennsylvania in which the collieries are located. There the matter closed.

Each said at a late hour last night that the STRUGGLE WILL CONTINUE.

A statement was issued at the temporary White House last night, which, in part, named those present, who, besides the president, operators and miners' representatives, were Attorney General Knox, Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of labor, and Secretary Cortelyou.

The president made a statement, as follows:

President Appeals For Settlement.

I wish to call your attention to the fact that there are three parties affected by the situation in the anthracite trade: The operators, the miners and the general public. I speak for neither the operators nor the miners, but for the general public. The questions at issue which led to the situation affect immediately the parties concerned—the operators and the miners—but the situation itself vitally affects the public. As long as there seemed to be a reasonable hope that these matters could be adjusted between the parties, it did not seem proper to me to intervene in any way. I disclaim any right or duty to intervene in this way upon legal grounds or upon any official relation that I bear to the situation; but the urgency and the terrible nature of the catastrophe impending over a large portion of our people in the shape of a winter fuel famine impel me after much anxious thought to believe that my duty requires me to use whatever influence I personally can to bring to an end a situation which has become literally intolerable. I wish to emphasize the character of the situation and to say that its gravity is such that I am constrained urgently to insist that each one of you realize the heavy burden of responsibility upon him. We are upon the threshold of winter, with an already existing coal famine, the future terrors of which we can hardly yet appreciate.

Evil Possibilities Appalling.

The evil possibilities are so far-reaching, so appalling, that it seems to me that you are not only justified in sinking, but required to sink, for the time being, any tenacity as to your respective claims in the matter at issue between you. In my judgment the situation imperatively requires that you meet upon the common plane of the necessities of the public. With all the earnestness there is in me I ask that there be an immediate resumption of operations in the coal mines in some such way as will without a day's unnecessary delay meet the crying needs of the people.

I do not invite a discussion of your respective claims and positions. I appeal to your patriotism, to the spirit that sinks personal considerations and makes individual sacrifices for the general good.

Mr. Mitchell then said:

Would Accept Tribunal's Decision.

Mr. President, I am much impressed with what you say. I am much impressed with the gravity of the situation. We feel that we are not responsible for this terrible state of affairs. We are willing to meet the gentlemen repregenting the coal operators to try to adjust our differences among ourselves. If we cannot adjust them that way, Mr. President, we are willing that you shall name a tribunal who shall determine the issues that have resulted in the strike, and if the gentlemen representing the operators will accept the award or decision of such a tribunal, the miners will willingly accept it, even if it is against their claims.

The president said:

Before considering what ought to be done I think it only just to both of you—both sides—and desirable from my standpoint, that you should have time to consider what I have stated as to the reasons for my getting you together, and I shall trespass so far upon your good nature as to ask that this interview cease now and that you come back at 3 o'clock. I should like you to think over what I have stated, not to decide now, but give it careful thought and return at 3 o'clock.

The conference then adjourned until 3 o'clock. Upon reassembling, Mr. Baer spoke as follows:

Mr. President, do we understand you correctly that we will be expected to answer the proposition submitted by Mr. Mitchell this morning?

The President—It will be a pleasure to me to hear any answer that you are willing to make.

Mr. Baer—I have prepared an answer.

Mr. Baer made the following statement:

Statement by Mr. George F. Baer, president of the Reading railroad:

To the President of the United States:

We understand your anxiety as forcibly expressed in the statement you read to us this morning to bring about "an immediate resumption of operations in the coal mines in some such was as will, without a day's unnecessary delay meet the crying needs of the people." We infer that you desired us to consider the offer of Mr. Mitchell, verbally made this morning, expressing and speaking for the United Mine Workers, to go back to work if you would appoint a commission to determine the questions at issue.

You distinctly say that you "do not invite a discussion of your respective claims and positions." But we assume that a statement of what is going on in the coal regions will not be irrelevent. We represent the owners of coal mines in Pennsylvania. There are from 15,000 to 20,000 men at work mining and preparing coal. They are abused, assaulted, injured and maltreated by the United Mine Workers. They can only work under the protection of armed guards. Thousands of other workmen are deterred from working by the intimidation, violence and crimes inaugurated by the United Mine Workers, over whom John Mitchell, whom you invited to meet you, is chief.

Reign of Lawlessness In Region.

I need not picture the daily crimes committed by the members of this organization. The "domestic tranquility" which every constitution declares is the chief object of government does not exist in the coal regions. There is a terrible reign of lawlessness and crime there. Only the lives and property of the members of the secret oath bound order which declared that the locals should have "full power to suspend operations at collieries" until the non-union men joined their order, are safe. Every effort is made to prevent the mining of coal, and when mined, Mitchell's men dynamite bridges and tracks, mob train men and by all manner of violence try to prevent its shipment to relieve the public.

The constitution of Pennsylvania guarantees "protection to life and property." In express terms it declares the right of acquiring, possessing and defending property "to be inalienable." When riot and anarchy too great to be appeased by the civil power occur, the governor of Pennsylvania is bound to call out the state troops to suppress it. He must fearlessly use the whole power of the state to protect life and property and to establish peace—not an armed truce, but the peace of the law which protects every man at work and going to and from work. He has sent troops to the coal regions. Gradually the power of the law is asserting itself. Unless encouraged by false hopes, order will soon be restored, and then we can mine coal to meet the public wants. If the power of Pennsylvania is insufficient to re-establish the reign of law, the constitution of the United States requires the president, when requested by the legislature and the government, "to suppress domestic violence." You see there is a lawful way to secure coal for the public.

Shouldn't Treat With Fomenters.

The duty of the hour is not to waste time negotiating with the fomenters of this anarchy and insolent defiance of law, but to do as was done in the war of the rebellion, restore the majesty of law, the only guardian of a free people, and to re-establish order and peace at any cost.

The government is a contemptible failure if it can only protect the lives and property, and secure the comfort of the people by compromising with the violators of law and the instigators of violence and crime.

Just now it is more important to teach ignorant men, dwelling among us, misled and used as tools by citizens of other states, that at whatever cost and inconvenience to the public Pennsylvania will use the whole power of government to protect not only the man who wants to work, but his wife and children while he is at work, and to punish every man who by instigation or by overt acts attempts to deprive any man of his liberty to work.

Propose Local Judges as Arbitrators.

Under these conditions we decline to accept Mr. Mitchell's considerate offer to let our men work on terms he names. He has no right to come from Illinois to dictate terms, on the acceptance of which anarchy and crime shall cease in Pennsylvania. He must stop his people from killing, maiming and abusing Pennsylvania citizens and from destroying property. He must stop it because it is unlawful and not because of any bargain with us.

We will tdd to our offer "to continue the wages existing at the time of strike and to take up at each colliery and adjust any grievance," this further conditfon—if the employers and employes at any particular colliery cannot reach a satisfactory adjustment of any alleged grievances, it shall be referred to the judges of the court of common pleas of the district in which the colliery is situated for final determination.

(Signed) GEORGE F. BAER,
President Philadelphia and Reading Iron and Coal Company and Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal and Iron Company and Temple Iron Company.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3, 1902.

Mr. President:

At the conference this morning, we, the accredited representatives of the anthracite coal mine workers, were much impressed with the views you expressed and the dangers to the welfare of our country from a prolongation of the coal strike that you so clearly pointed out. Conscious of the responsibility resting upon us, con-

ATTRACTIONS MANY AT COMING FAIR

LARCE PURSES ARE OFFERED

For the Several Races And Other Features Will Make the Event Most Interesting—The Program for the Four Days.

The first tri-state agricultural fair to be held at Columbian park Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, October 13, 14, 15 and 16, is being looked forward to with much interest. There is every reason to believe that it will be a great success.

It follows the four days' fair at Steubenville and much of its success depends on the success of that. If the Steubenville fair draws a big crowd Columbian park will undoubtedly follow suit. The horses entered at Steubenville will be here and the stocks will also be transported to the park. Several thousand dollars are to be given away as premiums and there promises to be much competition. The competition for premiums will be open to the world.

Mayor Davidson states that games of chuck-a-luck, roulette wheels, wheels of fortune, etc., will positively not be allowed to operate in the park. This will meet with the hearty approval of all citizens. It is the exhibition they want to attend and they do not want to be swindled.

The police protection will be of the best. A large number of the blue coats have already been engaged and given their orders. Nearly every local horse of any fame will be entered in the races and numerous horses from abroad have up to date been registered. The running races will bring horses from all parts of the state.

The following is the speed program:

First day.—Gentlemen's road race, purse $25. No horse eligible to this class that has ever won better than entrance money in a race or that has a record better than 2:59½. 2:40 trot, stake $2000; 2:15 pacing, stake $1,000; running race, ½ mile and repeat, $100; 2:40 pacing, $200.

Second day.—2:40 pace, stake $200; 2:25 pacing, stake $500; 2:24 trotting, stake, $1,000; running race, ¾ mile and repeat, $100.

Third day.—2:27 trot, purse, $250; 2:17 trotting, stake $500; 2:22 pacing, stake $1,000; runing race, ¾ mile and repeat, $100.

Fourth day.—Free for all trot, purse, $400; 2:20 pace, $250; 2:30 pacing, stake, $200; 2:11 pacing, stake $1,000; runing race, mile and repeat, $100.

Premiums will be given for the best appearing and best bred draught horses, geldings, mares, and a $10 prize to the man having the largest display of horses of any age.

Cattle, sheep, swine, chickens, turkeys, geese, ducks, guineas, pea fowls, all fruits, grains and vegetables, farming implements, machinery and vehicles, bread, cake, butter, preserves, jellies, floral displays, manufactures, fancy work, and many things under a special department will be exhibited for handsome premiums. Five great attractions are to be given each day of the fair. Max and Rex, the wonderful dog drivers, will drive Nan Wilkes, 2:25, and Humming Bird, 2.22, in a race.

THE PRESIDENT MAY USE CLUB ON COAL ROADS

Intestate Commerce Commission Possibly May Be Able to Take Action as to Carrylng Charges.

OPERATORS SAID "NO" TO MITCHELL'S OFFER

He Proposed, if Parties Couldn't Agree, to Have a Tribunal Appointed by the President Settle the Strike.

PUBLIC VIEW PRESIDENT'S CHIEF RESOURCE AS TO BOTH.

Suggestion Was Made In Administration Circles, Though Not Coming From the President, That Result of Conference Would AROUSE AND CONCENTRATE PUBLIC SENTIMENT—Operators Called Upon the President to Interfere by SENDING TROOPS to the Anthracite Region, if the Governor of Pennsylvania Failed to Suppress Lawlessness. Also Asked the President to INVOKE ACTION OF THE UNITED STATES COURTS—Made Fearful Charges of Lawlessness and Crime Against United Mine Workers—REFUSED TO TREAT WITH MITCHELL—Wanted COMMON PLEAS JUDGES In Pennsylvania Districts Where Collieries Are Located to ARBITRATE — MITCHELL DECLINED—DENIED MINERS ENTIRELY TO BLAME FOR LAWLESSNESS.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The suggestion was made in administration circles last night, though not as coming from the president, that the result of the coal conference had been to AROUSE AND CONCENTRATE PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

One of the president's advisers who was seen intimated that some consideration had been given before the conference to the question of the future course of the administration in the event either party refused absolutely to do anything toward a settlement. He intimated that there was a possibility the INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION MIGHT BE ABLE TO TAKE SOME STEPS WITH RESPECT TO CARRYING CHARGES ON THE ANTHRACITE COAL ROADS. STILL PUBLIC SENTIMENT, HE ADDED, WAS THE CHIEF RESOURCE OF THE PRESIDENT AS TO BOTH PARTIES TO THE STRIKE.

It was anounced at the White House last night that the PRESIDENT HAD NO COMMENT TO MAKE on yesterday's conference.

Operators Said Would Retard.

Stipulating that they should not be quoted the operators talked quite freely of the conference after leaving the White House.

Several of them declared the interference of the president had resulted in retarding rather than forwarding the settlement. They asserted that no progress had been made and said they would return to continue the contest. They declared that the situation was most serious as to coal supply, but said that coal would be furnished to the public, and that if given protection they could get men to mine coal to at least 70 per cent of their capacity. They declared there would be no compromise and that the strike would continue until the MINERS SUCCUMB. They asserted their determination to make no concessions further than the offers already made.

Mitchell Said Strike Would Continue.

During last evening President Mitchell, of the mine workers' union, dictated a formal statement concerning the proceedings of the conference and its results, in which he announced that the STRIKE WOULD CONTINUE AS A RESULT OF THE FAILURE OF THE CONFERENCE.

He concluded his statement as follows:

THE PRESIDENT EXPRESSED THE HOPE THAT THERE WOULD BE NO LAWLESSNESS IN THE COAL FIELDS AND THE REPRESENTATIVES OF THE MINERS ASSURED HIM THAT THEIR EVERY EFFORT WOULD BE EXERTED TO MAINTAIN PEACE.

The conference yesterday was a failure.

Apparently the rock upon which the conference split was recognition of the miners' union. The president had urged the contending parties to cease strife in the interests of the public welfare; the miners, through the president of their union, expressed a willingness to submit differences to arbitration of a tribunal to be named by the president and to enter into an agreement to abide by terms fixed by the arbitration for a period of from one to five years, and the employers, through the presidents of the railroad and coal companies and a leading independent mine operator, had squarely refused arbitration, had DENOUNCED THE MINERS' LABOR ORGANIZATION AS A LAWLESS AND ANARCHISTIC BODY, with which they could and would have no dealings; had DEMANDED FEDERAL TROOPS to insure complete protection to workers and their families in the mining region and court proceedings against the miners' union, and had offered if the men returned to work to SUBMIT GRIEVANCES AT INDIVIDUAL COLLIERIES TO THE DECISION OF THE JUDGES OF THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS for the districts of Pennsylvania in which the collieries are located. There the matter closed.

Each said at a late hour last night that the STRUGGLE WILL CONTINUE.

A statement was issued at the temporary White House last night, which, in part, named those present, who, besides the president, operators and miners' representatives, were Attorney General Knox, Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of labor, and Secretary Cortelyou.

The president made a statement, as follows:

President Appeals For Settlement.

I wish to call your attention to the fact that there are three parties affected by the situation in the anthracite trade: The operators, the miners and the general public. I speak for neither the operators nor the miners, but for the general public. The questions at issue which led to the situation affect immediately the parties concerned—the operators and the miners—but the situation itself vitally affects the public. As long as there seemed to be a reasonable hope that these matters could be adjusted between the parties, it did not seem proper to me to intervene in any way. I disclaim any right or duty to intervene in this way upon legal grounds or upon any official relation that I bear to the situation; but the urgency and the terrible nature of the catastrophe impending over a large portion of our people in the shape of a winter fuel famine impel me after much anxious thought to believe that my duty requires me to use whatever influence I personally can to bring to an end a situation which has become literally intolerable. I wish to emphasize the character of the situation and to say that its gravity is such that I am constrained urgently to insist that each one of you realize the heavy burden of responsibility upon him. We are upon the threshold of winter, with an already existing coal famine, the future terrors of which we can hardly yet appreciate.

Evil Possibilities Appalling.

The evil possibilities are so far-reaching, so appalling, that it seems to me that you are not only justified in sinking, but required to sink, for the time being, any tenacity as to your respective claims in the matter at issue between you. In my judgment the situation imperatively requires that you meet upon the common plane of the necessities of the public. With all the earnestness there is in me I ask that there be an immediate resumption of operations in the coal mines in some such way as will without a day's unnecessary delay meet the crying needs of the people.

I do not invite a discussion of your respective claims and positions. I appeal to your patriotism, to the spirit that sinks personal considerations and makes individual sacrifices for the general good.

Mr. Mitchell then said:

Would Accept Tribunal's Decision.

Mr. President, I am much impressed with what you say. I am much impressed with the gravity of the situation. We feel that we are not responsible for this terrible state of affairs. We are willing to meet the gentlemen representing the coal operators to try to adjust our differences among ourselves. If we cannot adjust them that way, Mr. President, we are willing that you shall name a tribunal who shall determine the issues that have resulted in the strike, and if the gentlemen representing the operators will accept the award or decision of such a tribunal, the miners will willingly accept it, even if it is against their claims.

The president said:

Before considering what ought to be done I think it only just to both of you—both sides—and desirable from my standpoint, that you should have time to consider what I have stated as to the reasons for my getting you together, and I shall trespass so far upon your good nature as to ask that this interview cease now and that you come back at 3 o'clock. I should like you to think over what I have stated, not to decide now, but give it careful thought and return at 3 o'clock.

The conference then adjourned until 3 o'clock. Upon reassembling, Mr. Baer spoke as follows:

Mr. President, do we understand you correctly that we will be expected to answer the proposition submitted by Mr. Mitchell this morning?

The President—It will be a pleasure to me to hear any answer that you are willing to make.

Mr. Baer—I have prepared an answer.

Mr. Baer made the following statement:

Statement by Mr. George F. Baer, president of the Reading railroad:

To the President of the United States:

We understand your anxiety as forcibly expressed in the statement you read to us this morning to bring about "an immediate resumption of operations in the coal mines in some such was as will, without a day's unnecessary delay meet the crying needs of the people." We infer that you desired us to consider the offer of Mr. Mitchell, verbally made this morning, expressing and speaking for the United Mine Workers, to go back to work if you would appoint a commission to determine the questions at issue.

You distinctly say that you "do not invite a discussion of your respective claims and positions." But we assume that a statement of what is going on in the coal regions will not be irrelevent. We represent the owners of coal mines in Pennsylvania. There are from 15,000 to 20,000 men at work mining and preparing coal. They are abused, assaulted, injured and maltreated by the United Mine Workers. They can only work under the protection of armed guards. Thousands of other workmen are deterred from working by the intimidation, violence and crimes inaugurated by the United Mine Workers, over whom John Mitchell, whom you invited to meet you, is chief.

Reign of Lawlessness In Region.

I need not picture the daily crimes committed by the members of this organization. The "domestic tranquility" which every constitution declares is the chief object of government does not exist in the coal regions. There is a terrible reign of lawlessness and crime there. Only the lives and property of the members of the secret oath bound order which declared that the locals should have "full power to suspend operations at collieries" until the non-union men joined their order, are safe. Every effort is made to prevent the mining of coal, and when mined, Mitchell's men dynamite bridges and tracks, mob train men and by all manner of violence try to prevent its shipment to relieve the public.

The constitution of Pennsylvania guarantees "protection to life and property." In express terms it declares the right of acquiring, possessing and defending property "to be inalienable." When riot and anarchy too great to be appeased by the civil power occur, the governor of Pennsylvania is bound to call out the state troops to suppress it. He must fearlessly use the whole power of the state to protect life and property and to establish peace—not an armed truce, but the peace of the law which protects every man at work and going to and from work. He has sent troops to the coal regions. Gradually the power of the law is asserting itself. Unless encouraged by false hopes, order will soon be restored, and then we can mine coal to meet the public wants. If the power of Pennsylvania is insufficient to re-establish the reign of law, the constitution of the United States requires the president, when requested by the legislature and the government, "to suppress domestic violence." You see there is a lawful way to secure coal for the public.

Shouldn't Treat With Fomenters.

The duty of the hour is not to waste time negotiating with the fomenters of this anarchy and insolent defiance of law, but to do as was done in the war of the rebellion, restore the majesty of law, the only guardian of a free people, and to re-establish order and peace at any cost.

The government is a contemptible failure if it can only protect the lives and property, and secure the comfort of the people by compromising with the violators of law and the instigators of violence and crime.

Just now it is more important to teach ignorant men, dwelling among us, misled and used as tools by citizens of other states, that at whatever cost and inconvenience to the public Pennsylvania will use the whole power of government to protect not only the man who wants to work, but his wife and children while he is at work, and to punish every man who by instigation or by overt acts attempts to deprive any man of his liberty to work.

Propose Local Judges as Arbitrators.

Under these conditions we decline to accept Mr. Mitchell's considerate offer to let our men work on terms he names. He has no right to come from Illinois to dictate terms, on the acceptance of which anarchy and crime shall cease in Pennsylvania. He must stop his people from killing, maiming and abusing Pennsylvania citizens and from destroying property. He must stop it because it is unlawful and not because of any bargain with us.

We will tdd to our offer "to continue the wages existing at the time of strike and to take up at each colliery and adjust any grievance," this further conditfon—if the employers and employes at any particular colliery cannot reach a satisfactory adjustment of any alleged grievances, it shall be referred to the judges of the court of common pleas of the district in which the colliery is situated for final determination.

(Signed) GEORGE F. BAER,
President Philadelphia and Reading Iron and Coal Company and Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal and Iron Company and Temple Iron Company.

The following is the text of the statement made to the president by the official representatives of the miners' union:

Statement of Miners' Leader.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3, 1902.

Mr. President:

At the conference this morning, we, the accredited representatives of the anthracite coal mine workers, were much impressed with the views you expressed and the dangers to the welfare of our country from a prolongation of the coal strike that you so clearly pointed out. Conscious of the responsibility resting upon us, conscious of our duty to society, conscious of our obligatins to the 150,000 mine wrkers whom we have the honor to represent, we have, after most careful consideration and with the hope of relieving the situation and averting the sufferings and hardship which would inevitably follow in the wake of a coal famine, decided to propose a resumption of coal mining upon the lines hereinafter suggested.

Before doing so, Mr. President, we desire to say that we are not prompted to suggest this course because of any doubts of justice of our claims. In deferring to your wishes we are prompted by no fear on our part of our ability to continue the contest to a successful issue, thanks to the generous assistance rendered us by our fellow workers in this and other lands; thanks to the justice loving American public, whose sympathies are always on the side of right, we are able to continue the struggle indefinitely. But, confident of our ability to demonstrate to any impartial tribunal the equity of our demands for higher wages and improved environment, we propose that the issues culminating in this strike shall be referred to you and a tribunal of your own selection, and agree to accept our award upon all or any of the questions involved. If you will accept this responsibility, and if the representatives of the coal operators will signify their willingness to have your decision incorporated in an agreement for not less than one year or more than five years, as may be mutually determined by themselves and the anthracite coal mine workers, and will pay the scale of wages which you and the tribunal appointed by you shall award, we will immediately call a convention and recommend a resumption of work, upon the understanding that the wages which shall be paid are to go into effect from the day upon which work is resumed.

Very respectfully yours,
JOHN MITCHELL,
President U. M. W. of A.
JOHN FAHY,
THOMAS DUFFY,
D. D. NICHOLLS,
District Presidents U. M. W. of A.

The statement of President Thomas followed much the same lines as that of Mr. Baer, as did that of Mr. Markle. In part, the latter said:

Markle Demands President Interfere.

I fully endorse these remarks from you, and as an American citizen and a citizen of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, I now ask you to perform the duties vested in you as the president of the United States, to at once squelch the anarchistic condition of affairs existing in the anthracite regions by the strong arm of the military at your command. A record of 21 murders, a long list of brutal assaults, houses and bridges dynamited, daily acts of violence now taking place, and several washeries burned down, are actual evidence of this condition of lawlessness existing there. Are you asking us to deal with a set of outlaws? I can hardly conceive of such a thought.

Please remember, Mr. President, that there is a large idle class of men now in the anthracite coal fields, taking every kind of unlawful act to prevent those who desire to work to relieve the situation in the anthracite coal market. Please remember that in the field now are only 3,000 national guard; please remember that the total national guard of the state of Pennsylvania is only about 10,000.

Mr. President, a condition exists, not a theory, in the anthracite coal fields between a set of professional agitators and their co-workers on the one side (anarchistic in their acts) and the operators and a majority of the working men on the other, who are endeavoring to relieve the seriousness of the anthracite coal situation. You, Mr. President, I believe, can relieve the situation at once. Will you do it?

Truesdale Asks Government Action.

Mr. Truesdale said in part:

It is first and foremost our duty, and we take this occasion to state and press it upon your consideration and through you upon that of the authorities of the state of Pennsylvania, to insist upon it that the existing conditions of anarchy and lawlessness, of riot and rapine, a condition which has been raging with more or less violence throughout the anthracite regions during the past five months, be immediately and permanently suppressed. That to this end we ask that the entire authority and power of the state of Pennsylvania, civil and military, and, if needs be, that of the United States government as well, be exercised forthwith.

Second, we ask that the civil branch of the United States government, taking cognizance of and following the decisions of its courts rendered in litigation growing out of previous similar conditions, at once institute proceedings against the illegal organization known as the United Mine Workers' organization, its well-known officers, agents and members, to enjoin and restrain permanently it and them from continuing this organization and requiring them to desist immediately from conspiracy, conniving, aiding or abetting the outlawry and intolerable conditions in the anthracite regions, for which they, and they alone, are responsible. We are advised by our counsel that such civil action will lie on the part of the United States government, as it is well known that United States statutes are daily, openly and grossly violated; that previous decisions of the courts justify fully such action being taken at this time; and that ample remedy can be given immediately and effectively for existing conditions.

Serious Charges Against Strikers.

Third—Then, Mr. President, there is a great, a pressing, duty imposed upon us at this time to thousands of true loyal citizens of Pennsylvania, who have been lawfully pursuing their various avocations or professions under great difficulties, and who, with great sacrifice, have been abused, villified, boycotted and in many cases almost ruined, because they had the manhood to raise their voices against the illegal acts and violences of this illegal organization and its officers and agents. No step can be taken by us, Mr. President, which can possibly result in placing those good citizens of Pennsylvania at the further mercy of this illegal organization, its officers and members. Think of it, Mr. President, physicians have been threatened and boycotted because they saw fit to minister to the dying child of some poor worker, because he was exercising his God-given right to labor for his family and to provide for the wants of his dying child. Members of the clergy have been treated likewise for performing the offices of the dead to the member of a family of a non-union worker.

Fourth—Another duty, Mr. President, and we regard it as the most supreme. One-sixth of the membership of this illegal organization is composed of young men and boys between the ages of 14 and 20, the future citizens and lawmakers of the great state of Pennsylvania. These young men and boys during the past two years have had their young, immature minds poisoned with the most dangerous, anarchistic, distorted, wicked views and errors concerning the rights of citizenship and property that any one can possibly conceive of, all through the teachings and practice of the officers, organizers and apostles of the United Mine Workers' association. Mr. President, no adjustment of this matter can be thought of which by any possibility can result in further strengthening and fixing in the minds of this youthful element in the anthracite coal fields the belief that the teachings of this organization and its officers, with their acts and doings in support thereof, constitute the ethics and objects of American citizenship frequently referred to during the past weeks in proclamations issued in behalf of this illegal organization.

His Duty to Fight Its Teachings.

Fifth and finally, Mr. President, as a plain citizen of these United States, looking at the whole question broadly and with reference to its possible effect on our future welfare and prosperity, I think it my bounden duty to resist and combat with every power and faculty, both paysical and mental, the avowed and evident object and purpose of this United Mine Workers' association, as exemplified in the anthracite district of Pennsylvania today and as taught and defended by its officers and other exponents of its well-known and so-called purposes and principles.

Mr. David Wilcox, vice president and general counsel of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad company, said in part:

The United Mine Workers of America is an association composed of a large number of miners and laborers engaged throughout the country in mining anthracite and bituminous coal and employed by the owners of the mines. It has divided the whole country into various districts, each of which is represented by a so-called president and embraces local unions, and it seeks to compel every one engaged in the industry to join the organization. The affairs of the organization are managed by an executive commitee having its headquarters in Indianapolis and by conventions called from time to time representing the entire organization. The object and practice of the association are so far as possible to regulate the supply of labor engaged in the occupation of coal mining through the country and the terms of employment thereof. It thus consists of one central organization, which restrains and controls the production of fuel everywhere throughout the country and monopolizes the labor engaged therein. These are its purposes and results. Its ultimate object is to control the entire fuel supply of the country. At this hearing it is represented by one person, while six persons represent but a part of the production of anthracite coal. It is therefore the most extensive combination and monopoly which the country has ever known.

Court Decisions Against Its Acts.

It habitually enforces its orders and directions by whatever means may be most effectual, including strikes, boycotts, picketing, besetting and the like, not confined to its own members alone, but in which are compelled to join as far as possible all other persons similarly employed. Its violent methods have already received the condemnation of the circuit court of the United States (Reinecke Co. vs Wood, 112 Fed rep, 478; United States vs Weber, 114 Fed rep, 950; United States vs Haggerty, 116 Fed rep, 510).

In accordance with these objects last May the United Mine Workers ordered a strike in the anthracite coal region, which extended to all the workings therein. Since that time it has been so far as possible forcing all persons who are willing to work to cease doing so. Within a few days one or more miners who had returned to work, having been formerly connected with the mine workers' association have been murdered by those acting in sympathy with the strike.

These facts show that the mine workers' association is not within the rules regarding ordinary local labor organizations. On the contrary, the association and all of its members constitute a combination or conspiracy, not only at common law, but also in restraint of trade and commerce among the several states, and also an attempt to monopolize the labor necessary in supplying coal found in one state to the markets of other states, and thus to monopolize this part of the commerce among the several states. The action had by said United Mine Workers has greatly injured the interstate business originating in the anthracite coal fields.

Restraining Interstate Commerce.

The courts have already many times held that such a combination is unlawful within the act of congress of July 2, 1890, passed for the purpose of preventing restraints of interstate commerce and known as the "Sherman act" (United States vs Counsil, 54 Fed. Rep. 994; 157 Fed. Rep. 85; Thomas vs Cincinnati Co., 62 Fed. Rep. 802, 803; United States vs Agler, 62 Fed. Rep. 824; U. S. vs Elliot, 62 Fed. Rep. 801; 64 Fed Rep. 27; Arthur vs Oakes, 63 Fed Rep. 310; in re Debs, 64 Fed. Rep. 724; Affd. 158 U. S. 564, 600; U. S. vs Trans-Missouri association, 166 U. S. 280, 343, 356). In addition to the circuit court of the United States for the western district of Virginia, upon March 25 last, held that this identical United Mine Workers' association was illegal (U. S. vs Weber, 114 Fed. Rep. 950). The case comes clearly within the Debs case. That was an effort to organize a universal association of railroad employes, covering the whole country, for the purpose of controlling interstate commerce. The government instituted suit by injunction, and when the injunction was disobeyed enforced the same by the use of the United States army. This quickly disposed of the matter, and the action of the government was upheld by the courts (in re Debs, 64 Fed. Rep. 724, affd. 158 U. S. 564, 600).

The true couse for the national government is, therefore, to proceed in accordance with the precedent in the Debs case. These considerations were called to the attention of the president and the attorney general last June.

The anthracite coal companies are making every effort to mine coal as rapidly as possible. They are obstructed by the failure of the state authorities to fully protect those who desire to work for them and by the failure of the national government to enforce the statute under which the mine workers' association has been already held to be illegal. As soon as action of that sort is effectively taken there can be no doubt that the supply of coal will be ample.

Thomas P. Fowler, president New York, Ontario and Western Railway company, briefly stated that he supported the statements of the other operators, but later on would make a statement.

The president asked Mr. Mitchell if he had anything further to say.

Mr. Mitchell said:

Mitchell Denies Operators' Charges.

The charge made by the gentlemen that 20 murders have been committed in the anthracite coal regions during the present strike is untrue. If they will name the men and will show that they have committed the murders I will resign my position. That is a fair proposition. Mr. President, that is a fair example of how our organization and our people are maligned. The truth of the matter is, as far as I know, there have been seven deaths unfortunately. No one regrets them more than I do. Three of them were committed by the coal and iron police, and no one else has been charged with them. God knows the miners do not escape being charged with everything done there. They speak about burnings. There was a reward offered for burnings. I can bring affidavits of a hundred people if necessary that the lightning caused one burning that they charged to the United Mine Workers. Mr. President, I have admitted on more than one occasion that there has been some lawlessness, but I will say that a large portion of such lawlessness has been provoked by criminals who have been brought into the anthracite regions to recruit the coal and iron police. I want to say, Mr. President, that I feel very keenly the attacks made upon me and my people, but I came here with the intention of doing nothing and saying nothing that would affect reconciliation.

The Operators Said "NO."

The president then asked the representatives of the anthracite companies whether they would accept Mr. Mitchell's proposition. They answered "No." In response to a further question from the president they stated that they would have no dealings whatever with Mr. Mitchell looking toward a settlement of the question at issue, and that they had no other proposition to make save what was contained in the statement of Mr. Baer, which, in effect, was that if any man chose to resume work and had a difficulty with his employer, both should leave the settlement of the question to the judge of the court of common pleas in the district in which the mine was located.

At about 5 o'clock the conference was brought to a close without agreement.

The Burmese Game of Chess.

The Burmese game seems to be rather a heavy variety of chess, the peculiarity of it being that a pawn "queens" when it strikes an imaginary diagonal line drawn from the player's left hand corner to the right hand corner in front of him—his opponent's left hand corner. The pieces are massed on the player's right hand, but the three privileged pawns—there are only three allowed to "queen"—can only "queen" when the queen has been taken. We should say here that no piece equivalent to our queen really exisits in eastern chess, the most powerful piece being equivalent to our rook or castle.

In the Burmese game the privilege of translation confers no higher hand on a piece than that of "chekoy"—called queen in European equivalence by virtue of its being unique—a piece possessing scarcely more power than a pawn. The usual move of the piece called "queen" in all oriental varieties of chess is one square diagonally and it is never one of the superior pieces.—London Spectator.

A Plant 1,000 Years Old.

In the town of Hildersheim, Germany, is probably the most unique plant in the world. It is a rosebush 1,000 year old and sprouts from its branches have realized fabulous sums. Some years ago a rich Englishman offered $250,000 for this entire tree, but the sum was indignantly refused. This wonderful plant clings amid thickly grown moss against the side of the famous old Church of St. Michael. It is claimed that it has bloomed perennially since the days of King Alfred, and this statement has never been disputed, for its record has been as carefully kept as the pedigree of the bluest blooded family in the kingdom. It is supposed to have been discovered by some mysterious means through the medium of King Louis of Hildersheim as far back as 1032.

How to Get Ahead.

The best way to get ahead of the other fellow is to advertise oftener and better and pay better attention to your business.—White's Sayings.

Abuse Doesn't Pay.

Do not abuse your rival in your advertisements. The majority of people always favor the abused.

A DOMESTIC DIFFICULTY.

The Solution Was Original, Though the Result Was Unhandy.

"Every time I tell this story," a bright society matron remarked, "somebody accuses me of making it up, but it is a true story nevertheless.

"Up in the Virginia mountains David and I took a long walk to explore the wild country road near our hotel. Away up on the rough mountain side was a little cabin, and as I have a most fervent human interest in the home life of all peoples remote from cities I proposed that we visit the cabin, with the wayfarers' usual pretext, to ask for a drink of water. In the one room of the small house were the usual furnishings, a few chairs, many dogs lying about, guns on the wall, a high bed in each corner and a homely table spread with homely crockery in the center of the household picture. A plain little woman, worn and aged, but very neat in calico frock and gingham apron, met us at the door and asked us in, while one of the rough boys lounging on the porch was dispatched to the spring for fresh water.

"Instead of the usual mountaineer's open fireplace, with iron crane and kettles, was a surprising arrangement of a cooking stove mounted on a kitchen table. My glance reverted to this curious sight so often that our mountain hostess seemed constrained to explain.

"'You uns ain't used to seein' cook stoves fixed up that way, I reckon,' she said apologetically. 'Pap, he got the cook stove down in town way las' May, and he didn' think 'bout the stovepipe, and he didn' git 'nuff to reach up to that there hole in the chimbly, so we uns jes' h'isted the cook stove up on that there table till he gits time to go to town and git some more stovepipe. 'Tain't handy to climb up on a cheer to cook, and I wish to the land pap'd hurry hisself and git to town arter that there stovepipe. It'd be a heap handier to hev that there cook stove down on the groun'.'

"Of course 'we uns' agreed with the good woman that her complaint was well based, but we praised her cleverness and originality in utilizing the kitchen table. Probably not one woman in 10,000,000 would have ever suggested that way out of the domestic difficulty."—Detroit Free Press.

Much In a Name.

An Englishman who has just returned from an extensive tour through the east tells a good story in which he was one of the principals.

He was one of a party at a banquet tendered to the maharajah of Patiala, at which nearly a hundred guests, representing nearly every branch of Indian life, were present. As a special guest he was seated on the left of the Indian potentate.

During the meal he noticed that the latter partook of some fine Cumberland ham, and, knowing that it was contrary to the Indian caste rules to eat any portion of a pig, he without a thought asked his highness how it was he was eating ham.

The maharajah looked at his plate, then, turning round to his body servant standing at the back of his chair, said:

"What am I eating?"

The servant instantly replied:

"Mutton, sahib." And without referring to the incident again the maharajah continued his meal.

After the banquet the Englishman related the incident to an Indian judge, and the latter said:

"If that servant had said 'ham,' he would have been headless before tomorrow morning. It is advisable not to notice caste rules when you are with natives of rank."—Pearson's.

What Answer Could She Make?

Mother—Elsie, your sister tells me you took a second helping of pudding at Mrs. Brown's today.

Little Elsie—So I did, mamma.

"Do you think that was right, Elsie?"

"Yes. You know you have often told me not to contradict any one, and Mrs. Brown said, 'I know Elsie will have a second helping to pudding,' and I couldn't contradict her, could I?"—Washington Star.

UP TO LAND OWNERS.

All Their Property Is Put In Jeopardy.

FARM AND TOWN ALIKE IN PERIL.

Tom Johnsonism Thrusts an Issue Into This Campaign Conflicting With All Past Democracy and Hostile to That Party's Antecedents.

Every farm owner in Ohio., every holder of the least little lot of land for his humble home, finds himself confronted in this campaign with his right to that land threatened with a platform and leaders that would take it away altogether.

Private ownership in land is a crime, according to the doctrine that these men declare to be their real aim and ultimate purpose. The state must own and possess every particle of it, and no man, woman or child ever can or shall again own a single iota of land. Such is the thing actually aimed at.

Confiscation of it all would be the quickest way to get the land away from its present proprietors, who are only usurpers, according to the Henry George Theory, that Tom Johnson openly boasts to be the one thing that he aims at and is working for in the present campaign.

But, since confiscation would be too raw and radical a thing to try, or even to talk about openly yet, there are other ways of getting at the same result, that may prolong the agony, yet deprive private owners of their property. One sure way is to tax them to the full income value of the land, its rental, as George calls it. It would then revert to the state mighty quick, and that is just what Johnson and Bigelow are driving at under the disguise of the Democratic party in Ohio.

The Democracy as a party have not adopted this doctrine, but their Ohio leaders in the present campaign are working for it. They deny that it is "the single land tax," to use the universal phrase descriptive of the Henry George theory. With a quibble and a quirk they say that what they propose is "a tax upon land values," just as if the man whose real estate would thus be taken from him would care one whit whether it was a tax on the land, or a tax on the value of the land, or a tax that took away his entire income from it, or its rental, as they call it.

Just as Tom Johnson has dodged his tax to the tune of hundreds of thousands of dollars by tying up the Cuyahoga county auditor with an injunction from the United States court, so he dodges behind the Democratic party in this thing, and denies the principles that he professes. The most conspicuous supporter of Henry Georgeism, Johnson wiggles away from the plain words of Henry George, and denies them as brazenly as Peter denied his Master. But the exact words of George himself best tell the real, the undeniable, the ultimate outcome of the theories that Johnson does confess are the things that he aims at above all beside, and those words he can not dodge.

Nor can the Democratic party of Ohio dodge what Johnson wants. They brought him back from Brooklyn to be their mayor of Cleveland, when thousands of Cleveland Democrats refused to vote for him on the ground that he was a non-resident of Ohio. They have since by formal action of their state convention made him master of their party machinery. At that convention they acclaimed him as their next nominee for governor of Ohio, and their favorite son for the presidential nomination in 1904. All this time the party managers knew perfectly well that Henry Georgeism was Tom Johnson's only known fixed principle, for his absolute free trade ideas are part of that. They knew that they had no other excuse even for nominating H. S. Bigelow to head their state ticket this year than that Tom Johnson discovered him because they are both socialists and single taxers together.

Individual Democrats may express their disgust and dismay at this prostitution of their party platform and machinery by refusing their votes for these strange doctrines. Thousands of them will bolt Bigelow because of it. But the party managers went into this thing with their eyes wide open. They can not escape the lash when Johnson cracks the party whip, as he has been doing in Democratic counties in a way that Ohio never knew before. Such a surrender to socialism will arouse the resentment of every owner of the property that is jeopardized, and the multitudes whose homes are their all will be the men most angered by this attack.

We Will Stand by Our Soldiers and Our Flag.

General C. H. Grosvenor, in his speech to the Buckeye club at Columbus, said on the Philippine question: "Speaking for the Republicans in congress, I can say that we utterly refuse to abandon our obligations in those islands or to pledge ourselves what we will ultimately do with them. We will not run away from them; we will not cease to make war in them until in every one of them the American flag floats free and unvexed by a foe. We do not condemn the American soldier for the work he has done in them, but we will stand by the old army and the new army, the flag and the country, and fear not the puny assaults of the Democratic minority."

KISSING THE HAND.

The Practice Was Instituted by the Early Roman Rulers.

The practice of kissing the hands was instituted by the early Roman rulers as a mark of subjection as much as one of respect, and under the first Cæsar the custom was kept up, but only for a time.

These worthies conceived the idea that the proper homage due to their exalted station called for less familiar modes of obeisance, so the privilege of kissing the emperor's hand was reserved as a special mark of condescension or distinction for officers of high rank.

No such restriction, however, was placed on the emperors themselves, who, if they wished to confer signal honor on any of their subjects, kissed either the mouths or the eyes of those they wished specially to favor, the kiss generally intimating some promotion or personal satisfaction for some achievement.

Roman fathers considered the practice of kissing of so delicate a nature that they never kissed their wives in the presence of their daughters.

Then, too, only the nearest relatives were allowed to kiss their kindred of the gentler sex on the mouth, for in those days, as now, kissing was not a mere arbitrary sign, but it was the spontaneous language of the affections, especially that of love.

Under the Romans if a lover kissed his betrothed before marriage she inherited half of his worldly goods in the event of his death before the marriage ceremony, and if she died her heritage descended to her nearest relatives.

A PANTHER'S DEN.

Clean and Bright, In Decided Contrast to the Popular Idea.

It was my good fortune to discover the newly abandoned lair of a cougar family and further and to me new evidence of that fastidious cleanliness which is a marked characteristic of the animal. This retreat was not at all the typical "panther's den" of tradition, but a bush grown harborage under the edge of a rock with just enough of shelf to keep off the rain. I should not have found this breeding place but for a certain well gnawed array of bones scattered over a little smooth bench above a creek channel. From this boneyard there was a very traceable path leading through grass and brush to the retreat where the dam had housed her young. The evidence here told plainly of the cougar's long immunity from annoyance and attack and of a thoroughly cleanly habit of life. There was no bone or other sign of feasting about the lair. The dam had carried her kill to the creek bench in every instance, and the children had been called to the dining room. As bones which would have been crunched or eaten by grown animals had been perfectly cleaned by the kits I was able to judge of their summer's diet. This had consisted mostly of minor game, rabbits, marmots, grouse and the like, with an occasional small deer. At least one whole family of badgers, old and young, had been served, pussy having probably lain for them at their hole until they were all in.—Franklin Welles Calkins in Outing.

The Horse Is Useful Even If Dead.

The whale can be put to a great number of uses when dead, as can also the horse, the various parts of which are utilized as follows: Hair of mane and tail for haircloth, stuffing mattresses and making bags for crushing seed in oil mills, etc.; hide and skin tanned for leather for covering tables, etc.; tendons used for glue and gelatin; flesh for food for dogs, poultry and man; fat used for lamps, etc.; intestines used for covering sausages, making gut strings, etc.; heart and tongue for food; hoofs for gelatin, prussiate, fancy snuffboxes, etc.; bones for knife handles, phosphorus, superphosphate of lime and manure; blood for manure and shoes for reuse or for old iron.—Spare Moments.

In Suspense.

"So you don't know whether you want to go to work or not?"

"Well, suh," answered Mr. Erastus Pinkley, "I'd like de refusal ob de job a little while."

"But I need somebody right away."

"In dat case I'll have to let it go by. I'ze jes' bought a policy ticket, an' I'll hafter wait till aftuh de drawin' to see whether I'ze gwine to work at all or not."—Washington Star.

The Time Honored Spanker.

Once my sister Floy was sent on an errand for some things for my mother.

There was a traveling man there who was selling carpet spankers, and he asked her:

"Has your mother got one of these spankers?"

"No, sir," she replied.

"What does she use?" he asked.

"Her hand," was the prompt reply.—Chicago Chronicle.

Made His Mark.

"Hivens, Moike, th' eye av ye! Phat's the matther?"

"I sthruck a man yisterday an' he gave me a receipt for it."—Ohio State Journal.

His Favorite Remedy.

"Mamma," said Tommy, "does sugar ever cure anybody of anything?"

"Why do you ask, my boy?"

"I thought I'd like to catch it," said Tommy.

A Way She Has.

Inquisitive Neighbor—I hear that your sister is engaged. Is that true?

Small Boy—I dare say. She generally is.

It is every man's opinion that he would have been a great man had he lived fifty years ago.—Atchison Globe.

THE CHAMBERLAINS

FATHER AND SON, WHO ARE NOW IN BRITISH CABINET.

Many Points of Resemblance Between These Two—How They Have Created a Precedent In English Politics—Distinct Personalities.

When Mr. Balfour, premier of England, appointed J. Austen Chamberlain, son of Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, British secretary of state for the colonies, to the cabinet post of attorney general, he created a precedent in British politics. It is the first time in English history that father and son have sat in the cabinet simultaneously.

Joseph Austen Chamberlain is the eldest son of Joseph Chamberlain by his first wife and is now thirty-nine years old. His father first sent him to Rugby to make a man of him, then to Trinity college, Cambridge, to round off the corners, and after that to Paris and Berlin, so that he might learn the world. He was then made private secretary to his father. Thus he was able to get an inside view of British politics, so that ten years ago he was ready to represent the eastern division of Worcestershire in parliament. He made a good name as Liberal-Unionist whip and later as a civil lord of the admiralty. He was made financial secretary to the treasury in 1900.

In political circles in England it is said that the younger man's appointment to the post of attorney general was dictated by his father at the time Lord Salisbury turned over the reins of government to his nephew, Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, and that the new premier made the concession in order to gain the good will of the elder chamberlain.

Be that as it may, the younger Chamberlain is a pleasant, agreeable fellow of much real ability and of acknowledged great promise. He is a fluent speaker, with much of his father's sound common sense and all of his straightforwardness. His enemies accuse him of trading on his father's name. With his smooth shaven face, his monocle and his orchid in buttonhole, after the precise manner of his father, such a criticism is no more than natural. But he is really a man of strong individuality and quite unaffected. On the occasion of his maiden speech in the house of commons he was warmly congratulated by Mr. Gladstone.

In England today there is probably no one more conspicuous in politics

than Joseph Chamberlain, colonial secretary and the man who was responsible for the Boer war. Joe Chamberlain, as he is called, was born in London in 1836 of middle class parentage and left school when he was sixteen years of age to enter his father's business. The elder Chamberlain had established a manufactory of screws at Birmingham, and to this business the young man gave such close attention that twenty years later he was able to retire with a fortune of $200,000 a year. Since 1874 Joe Chamberlain has devoted his time to politics.

In 1888 he was sent to this country to negotiate a settlement of the fisheries complication. He became acquainted with Miss Endicott, daughter of Cleveland's secretary of war, and later in the same year he returned to marry her. Since then he has made several visits to this country.

His home is in the suburbs of Birmingham, where on an estate of seventy acres he has built a large and homelike residence. The notable feature of this place is the extensive orchid house, in which between 5,000 and 6,000 species of this rare and beautiful plant are grown.

Orchids are indeed Mr. Chamberlain's one weakness. He always appears in his seat in the house with an orchid in his buttonhole. He has no other particular amusement, is not fond of literature and takes no interest in horse racing or like sports. He is essentially a serious, hardworking man.

Austen Chamberlain's mother was the daughter of the late Archbishop Kenrick of Birmingham. Like his father, he takes life rather seriously, devoting his time to politics. As he is unmarried he makes his home with his father and his American stepmother.

His Sheepish Actions.

"Again," complains the devoted wife, "I have been told that you have been flirting with that odious Miss Mashem on the piazza."

"Bah!" retorts the gay husband, thinking to ridicule the suspicions of his wife. "Bah!" he repeats.

"It isn't so bad," asserts the wife, "for a man to be guilty, but what I detest is when he acts so sheepish about it."—Baltimore American.

Advertising Beats Salesmen.

J. B. Brooks, manager of the Blood Balm company of Atlanta, Ga., says:

"We do not employ traveling men, believing that newspaper advertising is more valuable than personal solicitation. We create a demand for our goods by advertising them extensively. The salaries we would have to pay traveling men we put into increased appropriations for advertising and find the results are more satisfactory."

Results From Advertising.

The benefit of advertising in the newspapers in a way to attract attention has been demonstrated anew in the case of a weekly publication in New York. Four years ago the subscribers did not number 50,000. Chiefly by means of display advertisements in the leading daily newspapers its circulation has been increased to 300,000. The ads. were striking and convincing.—Philadelphia Record.

The Community's Pulse.

The newspaper is the pulse of the community, and there isn't a better method for reaching the public than through its columns.—Saginaw (Mich.) News.

Big Ads., Big Sales.

The Sterling Remedy company is using 12,000 publications to advertise Cascarets, and the sales this year will, it asserts, exceed 10,000,000 boxes.

Persistence Brings Success.

Not every advertiser meets with success, yet the most successful merchant in any locality is always one who advertises.—Printers' Ink.

Want Reasons.

People demand reasons, are convinced by reasons and buy because of these reasons.—Shoe and Leather Facts.

GIRL WOMEN.

The general standard of measurement for womanhood is "grown-up-ness." When a girl is emancipated from school and arrives at the dignity of trailing skirts and elaborate hair dressing she is looked upon as a young woman. But nature knows nothing of such standards. When the womanly function is established womanhood is attained according to her standards, and there is need of womanly care and caution. It is girlish ignorance or neglect at this critical time which often results in long years of after misery.

Mothers who perceive the evidences of functional derangement in young girls should promptly have them begin the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, tranquilizes the nerves and tones up the whole system.

"My troubles started during my girlhood," writes Miss Flora I. Greer, of 107 Howe Street, Akron, O., "but did not prove serious until 1893. From that time I did not see a well day. I suffered at every monthly period with terrible headache, irritation of the spine and pains in my heels. I had soreness through my hips and ovaries all the time and constant backache. One doctor would tell me one thing ailed me, another would say something altogether different, but they only relieved me. I then wrote you and followed your advice. I took five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and five vials of 'Pellets.' Have not had a single symptom of my old trouble so far. Can sleep good, work hard, and eat solid and substantial food without distress."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the bowels and stimulate the sluggish liver.

Little Creatures About Our Homes

IV.—Frogs and Toads.

SINCE the people of this country have begun to imitate the French in that they have taken to eating frogs' legs as among the daintiest of morsels, a new interest has been manifested in the study of this cold blooded batrachian. The frog is an amphibious animal and during the early part of its life lives entirely in the water, and by means of gills obtains from the water the oxygen for the purification of its blood. Later in life it becomes an air breather, with lungs resembling those of the higher warm blooded animals.

In early spring frogs resort to some pool, where the female lays a great number of eggs, a thousand or more, each about the size of a common pin head and all enveloped in an albuminous substance which serves in a measure to protect them. Through this the dark brown eggs are seen as little dots, quite evenly distributed. As the eggs are laid by the female they are arranged in irregular masses by the male. Frogs are ordinarily rather solitary in their lives, but at the breeding season they frequently congregate in large numbers in some sequestered pond. Frogs and toads do not gather at the same place for breeding. The eggs of the toad are arranged by the male in long spirals. The frogs and the toads of this country leave their eggs to be hatched by the warmth of the sun and give their progeny no further attention. If the weather is warm, the eggs hatch in a few days, but in cool weather they frequently require four or even six weeks.

Before leaving the albuminous substance which surrounds the egg the baby frog, which is called a tadpole, resembles a fish and has no appendages except the tail. The embryo frog is then about half an inch long. External gills are very rapidly developed. Water is drawn into the mouth and passed out through these branching gills to furnish air for the purification of the blood. These gills are absorbed in a few days, and the external gills, resembling those of a fish, are formed. About this time the hind legs make their appearance near the root of the tail and grow rapidly, the tail being absorbed quite as fast. The front limbs are now added, and lungs are substituted for the gills, and the little "polliwog" becomes a frog. It has changed from a water breathing to an air breathing animal, and its diet has changed from vegetable to animal.

The largest of the frogs in the United States is the bullfrog, though several other species are common in this country. All of them resemble one another both in appearance and habits. The hind legs are much longer than the front legs, which fact renders walking nearly impossible, but the frog is peculiarly adapted to leaping, not only by the great size and strength of the hind legs, but by the peculiar manner in which it folds them when at rest. It is these large, muscular hind legs that are so much sought after by the epicure, and well they may be, for they are as much more delicate than chicken as that is more delicate than beef. The hind legs are the only parts of the frog usually eaten. The flesh is much more delicate and nutritious in the fall of the year than in the spring, when the frog has just come out of its winter quarters. In some places frogs are now being raised for food. Across the bay from San Francisco is a large ranch upon which several ponds are kept constantly stocked with frogs intended for the city market. The frog has a smooth, moist skin, which readily absorbs oxygen and aids the lungs materially in aerating the blood, so that the frog, though he has lost the gills of his babyhood, can still plunge into the water and bury himself in soft mud and exist for a long time without seeking the open air.

The frog swallows air through a slit in the floor of his mouth much in the same way that we swallow water. He has no ribs to expand his chest and no diaphragm, except a rudimentary one, to be depressed for the enlargement of the chest. In fact, he has no chest, for the whole body cavity is but one. Hence if his mouth were kept open he would suffocate, even while surrounded by an abundance of pure air, especially if his skin were to become dry. The tadpole, being a water breather, has no voice; but, as every one knows, in the frog the vocal chords are well developed, particularly in the male, which has such a complete control over them that his voice varies from a loud croak to a tone so soft that it seems to come from a great distance, even when produced within a few yards of us. The frog is therefore a model ventriloquist.

Frogs have many enemies which prey upon them throughout their lives. It is estimated that not more than one-tenth of 1 per cent live to go into their first winter quarters. If they escape being captured by some enemy, they live twenty years or more.

Among reptiles the serpents are the worst enemies of frogs; among fishes, the pickerel and bass; among birds, the vultures and storks. It is said that frogs breed so rapidly in the pools left by the receding Nile that were it not for the storks, which are there very numerous, they would overrun the whole valley of that historic river.

Frogs are themselves voracious feeders, preying upon insects and their larvæ, worms and other small animals in great numbers and sometimes devouring their own species. The tongue of both the frog and the toad, attached to the front angle of the lower jaw, is several inches long, points backward when not in use and is the instrument used in capturing insects. With its tongue the frog or toad lassoes an insect somewhat as a cowboy lassoes an untamed steer.

These batrachians can live for a long time without food and with but little air, but not for a great number of years, as some would have us believe. After these long fasts they will eat almost fabulous numbers of insects. One writer speaks of having fed a captive toad twenty-three squash bugs and ninety-four caterpillars, each an inch and a half in length, before it turned away to digest its meal. Certain it is that an animal which will devour so many insects in so short a time must be of value to the gardener.

As stated above, each female frog or toad may produce a thousand young in a single season. We need not look far, therefore, to find an explanation of the appearance of such vast numbers of those young creatures occasionally just after a warm shower in the late spring or early summer. We need not accept the impossible statement that they have fallen from the clouds, though it has come down to us from the early Grecian times. The writer when a boy was wandering through the sparsely timbered woods of southern Michigan on a warm day in early May when he came to one of the numerous shallow ponds that dot the whole region, and his attention was attracted by the great number of toads assembled in and about the margin of the quiet pool. It was their breeding season, and many of them were laying their eggs. It seemed that there must be millions of eggs in that pond. I attempted to count the toads, but after getting well along in the hundreds and seeing that I had gone but a short distance around the pond I became discouraged and gave up the attempt. As the pond was thirty or forty rods in circumference, there must have been 4,000 or 5,000 toads.

The five long toes on the hind foot of the frog are connected by a thin membrane, which aids the frog very much in swimming, but the toes on the front foot are neither webbed nor clawed. None of the toes of the toad is webbed. The toad differs from the frog also in living on land except during the egg laying time. The skin of the toad is dry, rough and covered with warts, and its legs are much more nearly equal in size than those of the frog. The toad has been known to live thirty-five years. The frog is well supplied with teeth in the upper jaw, while the toad has none. Both are inoffensive and harmless creatures, and both, the toad especially, are very useful to man in destroying garden pests. Handling toads does not produce warts, as some suppose, nor are these little creatures poisonous. There is a slight exudation from the skin which, if transferred to the eyes, will make them smart temporarily. The toad frequently sheds its outer skin. When it has entirely freed itself from the old coat, it rolls it up in a ball and swallows it. Both frogs and toads crawl into holes or crevices when cold weather comes and sleep quietly there until spring, when they come out very hungry and are soon as active as ever.

The tree frog is a small species which lives an arboreal life, but in the spring it takes to the water, where its eggs are deposited and where the young pass through the tadpole stage. Their toes are supplied with little sucking disks, which aid them in clinging to the underside of leaves and stems.

The "horned toads" are not in the least related to the toads, but are true lizards.

There is a large toad, called the Surinam toad, living in the northern part of South America, which ought to be mentioned, though none of the species lives in the United States. The peculiar breeding habits of this toad make it one of the most remarkable of the entire order. With the female deposits her eggs, the male immediately places them on the mother's back, to which they adhere. A cell, which is covered by a little lid, soon forms over each. In this cell the tadpole passes through all its changes, and when it finally bursts from its prison house it is a complete specimen, much larger than the eggs from which it came. This shows that it must have received some nourishment from the mother while in its temporary home.

The Skin.

Bathing to many persons is a term embodying an expenditure of time and considerable trouble. It is probably because they do not cleanse the skin until it gives visible signs of its needs. Now, the skin is everlastingly throwing off impurities which you cannot always see with the naked eye, but which will be readily found in the appearance of the bathwater even when one bathes each day. When you can wear a white collar a few hours without marring its spotlessness where it comes in contact with the skin, you may have some excuse for thinking that you are perfectly clean and not before. The neatest person I ever saw could not boast of such an achievement, for the thing is well nigh impossible. Nature has provided the pores for drainage purposes, and in health they work without ceasing.—Boston Traveler.

The Singing Mouse.

The power of song among the brute creation has so long been associated in our minds with the feathered tribe alone that we do not think of it as belonging to any four footed animals. Yet there is a mouse that sings—why, nobody knows. It is a small animal, with very large ears, which are moved about much while singing, as if that were necessary to the success of the vocal performance. The song is not, as you think, a prolonged squeak with variations, but a succession of clear, warbling notes, with trills, not unlike the song of a canary, and quite as beautiful, though some of the notes are much lower. One great peculiarity is a sort of double song, an air with accompaniment quite subdued. Upon first hearing this one believes that he is listening to more than one mouse, so perfect is the illusion.

The Louis Styles.

It was the French King Louis XI. who invented gold lace, and it was Louis XIV. who ordered all the silk upholsteries of the palace done in white with figures of gold and blue and a touch of red. The louisine silks are named after him, and all the French kings of the name of Louis have had their names brought down to posterity through the invention of some article of dress, whether it be a Louis Quinze heel or a Louis Seize coat, while to Louis Quatorze belongs the honor of a cuff and a hat.

"Thanks," replied the urbane collector. "I will try to make it convenient to disturb you at about this time tomorrow."—Houston Post.

THE BUGS.

See the many, many bugs—
Buggy bugs!
How they flutter through the twilight,
causing us excited shrugs!
How they rustle, rustle, rustle,
In the dreamy air of night,
Flipping, flapping on the highway,
Booming, buzzing on the byway,
Under each electric light!
How they dip, dip, dip!
How they zip, zip, zip,
Till they whisk about our whiskers and
go mugging at our mugs!
Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs!
Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs,
bugs, bugs!
Oh, the night is two shades darker from
the bugs!

All sorts and kinds of bugs!
Fuzzy bugs—
Bugs that humbly beg your pardon; bugs
that proudly throw on lugs!
How they flutter, flutter, flutter,
Till some lady gives a shriek,
Till she clutches at her bonnet,
Shouting that a bug's upon it,
For she felt it climb her cheek!
How they wing, wing, wing!
How they sing, sing, sing!
The mosquitoes and the beetles and each
buzzy, buggy thing!
Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs!
Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs
bugs, bugs!
There's a million miles of breeze containing bugs.

There are June and lady bugs!
Whiskered bugs!
There are bats and fleas and locusts;
there are moths in search of rugs;
Bugs that hurtle like a missile,
Bugs that roar and bugs that whistle,
Bugs in many colors tinted;
Bed—let that one be but hinted—
Bugs with faces like a pug!
And they hold a big convention under
each electric light.
Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs!
Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs,
bugs, bugs!
What a buzzy, buggy, bumping bunch of
bugs!

It Is Alleged She Quarreled With Her Husband and Then Took a Dose of Carbolic Acid.

Sorrowing over a quarrel with her husband early this morning and because she was tired of life, according to report, Mrs. Sadie Craig, boarding at the home of Mrs. Cupp, on Third street, near Jackson street, attempted to commit suicide at about 9 o'clock by taking a dose of carbolic acid.

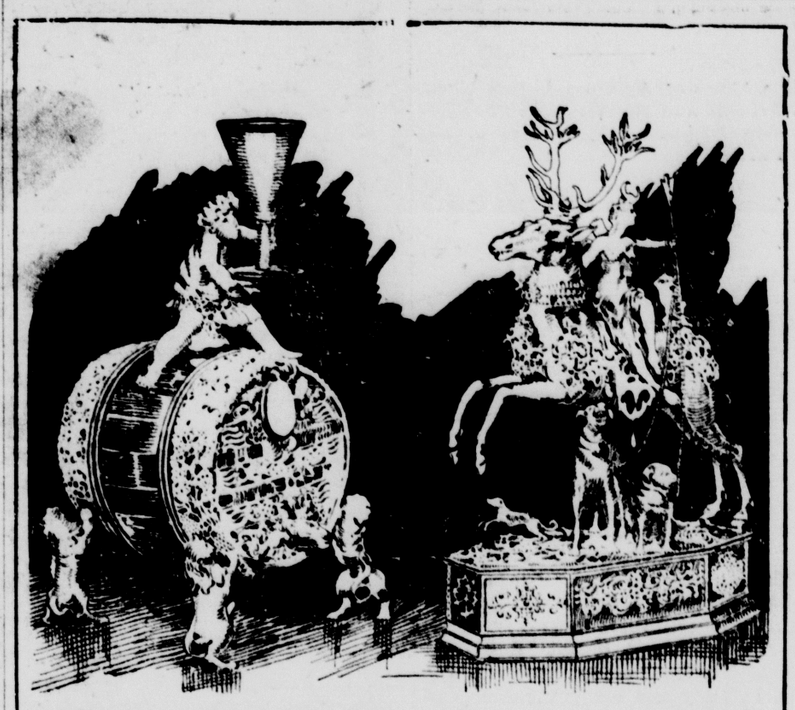
Immediately after applying a bottle of the deadly poison to her lips she commenced screaming loudly. In a moment Mrs. Cupp was at her side. Seeing the bottle on the floor at the side of the woman, Mrs. Cupp quickly realized the situation and hurried to the nearest telephone, summoning Dr. Hobbs.

The physician soon arrived and upon an examination pronounced the woman in no serious condition.

Mrs. Craig is beautiful and only 20 years of age. She is reported not to seem in the least repentent over her rash act, and states that unless she and her husband live more peaceably together hereafter that she will undoubtedly make another attempt to end her days.

Mr. Craig is employ in a local pottery and has only been in the city a short time. It is said that he and his wife have quarreled for months and that her act this morning was only what she threatened to do long ago.

A big crowd of neighbors surrounded the house upon learning of the woman's actions and many exaggerated stories were sent abroad as to her condition. She will undoubtedly recover, but will likely carry a scarred face.



PRICELESS TREASURES OWNED BY J. PIERPONT MORGAN.

At a recent exhibition of silver work, at which the value of the exhibits was estimated at $10,000,000, the specimens which attracted most attention were the two shown in the illustration. These are the property of J. Pierpont Morgan. Each is said to be worth many thousands of dollars. One of them dates from the sixteenth and one from the seventeenth century.

OFFICERS KEPT BUSY HUNTING WITNESSES WHO ARE UNWILLING

Numerous Warrants Out For Those Who Failed to Obey Their Summons—Lively Experience.

Bench warrants galore are being issued in Lisbon for the arrest of subpoenaed witnesses who have failed to appear at the appointed time before the grand jury. Several residents of the East End have been made aware of the fact only to their sorrow. Armed with three warrents of the kind, Deputy Sheriff Porter of Lisbon, and Constable Powell started out last night at 10 o'clock for the purpose of apprehending Samuel Sellers, Benjamin Day and Chris Krafft. The trio had been subpoenaed and not only failed to put in their appearance but failed to present a plausible excuse. The trio live in the East End and are well known pottery workers.

After a search of more than two hours the officers gave up their hunt for Sellers and Day but they got a clew as to the whereabouts of Krafft and had an amusing time in landing him. Going to the house where he resides they knocked for admission. For a moment all was still but when Constable Powell applied the butt of his revolver with great force against the flimsy door panel chirps from all parts were heard. "Is Chris Krafft there?" asked the constable, "No, he isn't," was the reply, "and if he were we would not let you know it." The officers had had too much experience to be run off in a manner like that and again applied the harsh knocks.

Fearing that there would be trouble the members of the household decided to open, and cautiously Mrs. Krafft thrust her head out of a window to see the cause of the disturbance.

PLEDGE TO SUPPORT PARTY

Is Carried in the Document Signed—Salineville Furnished Half the Petitioners Hereabout And This City And Wellsville the Rest.

Columbus, October 4.—(Special)—The Socialist party has filed a petition with the secretary of state for a place on the state ticket this fall. Something like 10,000 signatures were secured, about 1,500 more than necessary. Between 50 and 60 signers were secured in Columbiana county, 30 of these being from Salineville, the balance being supplied by East Liverpool and Wellsville. Every person who signs the petition of the party gives pledge to support its candidates, but a great many who signed were probably not aware they were signing a pledge.

Appended are the names of the East Liverpool and Wellsville signers:

East Liverpool:—Leslie Trump, Basil avenue; Charles M. Morgan, Jethro; John Menoforth, 191 Pennsylvania avenue; Samuel Hindman, Hague avenue; J. C. Brooks, Pleasant Heights; Charles Kontiner, Boyce street; Fred B. Martindale, Third street; Carl H. Gigax, Sixth street, Lewis Lake, Jethro; E. Smith, 247 Jackson street; Herman Webber, 314 rear of Fifth street; J. Q. Boring, J. T. Smith, C. M. J. Brocks, F. M. Demuth.

The Socialist ticket is as follows: For secretary of state, Max S. Hayes, Cleveland; judge of the supreme court, George P. Maxwell, Lexington; dairy and food commissioner George Flummerfelt, Fremont; member of board of public works, William C. Edwards, Portsmouth.

The time for the filing of petitions for places on the state ticket closed today. The Prohibitionists are the only minor party which will not have to get on by petition, they having secured the necessary number of votes last fall. The Socialist Labor party filed its petition today. It has 8,650 signatures, none of which were secured in Columbiana county.

DEMOCRATS SELECTED SALINEVILLE MAYOR FOR PLACE.

Nomination For Congress Tendered Him by the Committee at Alliance Today

Alliance, Oct. 4.—(Special)—The Democratic congressional committee in session here this morning nominated W. J. Foley, mayor of East Palestine, to fill the vacant place upon the party ticket.

The letter declination presented to the committee by T. J. Duffy, was read, and voted by those present to contain good, sound Democratic doctrines.

A resolution was adopted providing that inasmuch as the nomination tendered Mr. Duffy, September 16, had been rejected by him, the name of W. J. Foley, be substituted.

Clerk Clark, of the committee, was ordered to at once certify the name of Mr. Foley to the officers of the three counties.

The entire committee was present, and the meeting was devoid of enthusiasm, the members being disappointed at the decision of Mr. Duffy.

Knights of Labor of Trenton Confer With Manufacturing Potters.

Is Given at a Joint Conference on Uniform Scale—Brotherhood And the Operating Potters on a Very Friendly Footing.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Trenton, N. J., October 4.—The Knights of Labor organization, which has been running in opposition to the National Brotherhood of Operative potters for two years, is making strenuous efforts to obtain recognition from the manufacturers. Last week it sent a special committee to wait upon several prominent members of the Trenton Manufacturing Potters' association, with the object of forcing the adoption of the uniform list which was submitted to the manufacturers last April. A joint meeting of representatives of both organizations was held and from all accounts, the insurgents were given little encouragement. The list is confined solely to the jiggermen and it is said that many of the articles which it embraces were objected to by the manufacturers. Behind their objections is a refusal to deal with the Knights of Labor, which, by the way, as far as the influence it exercises is concerned, is on its last legs. The Brotherhood has on several occasions during the past year received requests in person from operators to settle shop disputes which is evidence that it is recognized as the controlling body.

The question of installing a uniform price list in the local plants, was the platform over which the jiggermen broke away from the Brotherhood and formed an independent organization which afterwards become a part of the Knights of Labor.

The friendly feeling which at present exists between the Brotherhood and the manufacturers grew out of the conference last June, when a uniform price list was adopted for the sanitary plants. The Brotherhood has for its staunchest supporter the Trenton Potteries company, which has been instrumental during the past few months in settling several shop disputes with the men themselves and in one instance discharged a foreman because he insisted in applying his version to some provisions in the list.

The board of directors of the Trenton Free Public library is in receipt of a communication from the heads of the Carnegie library, East Liverpool, asking for a list of the books on pottery subjects which were installed a short time ago.

The first kiln at the new plant of William Clayton & Co., manufacturers of porcelain goods will be fired this week. The firm reports that it has several large orders ahead.

Will Probated.

Lisbon, October 4.—(Special)—The will of the late Elizabeth McIntosh, of Madison township, has been admitted to probate, and Samuel M. Smith, was appointed executor. William Bailey, John Bailey, and Samuel Connell, were made appraisers.

A CROWDED HOUSE AT FIRST LECTURE

University Extension Course in This City Starts Off Auspiciously.

Dealt With America in the Days of Benjamin Franklin And Presented a Most Entertaining Picture of the Dawn of Our History.

Every seat in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium was occupied last evening by those who had assembled, eager and enthusiastic, to hear Dr. Sparks, of the Chicago university, an excellent scholar, an able speaker, a man of national repute, deliver his lecture on "Benjamin Franklin."

Prof. R. E. Rayman, who introduced the speaker, first made a few preliminary remarks, saying: "For two years I have been watching with great interest the university extension work and this evening I am glad to see that so many others are interested in it. It also affords me pleasure to see the majority of the high school students here tonight. I am sure you will all receive great benefit from the lecture this evening. On the 17th and 18th of this month there will be a Tri-State Round Table meeting, at which there will be representatives from West Virginia Pennsylvania and Ohio. At this time Dr. W. O. Thompson, of the Ohio State university, will be with us and will lecture on the subject, 'Why We Educate.' I now take great pleasure in introducing Dr. Sparks."

Dr. Sparks spoke in part as follows: "I do not come as a lecturer, but rather as a teacher of American history that we may see the cause and effect the decentralizing as well as the uniting influences which affect so materially the growth of our country. These lectures will cover a period from 1760 to 1800, but from 1760 to 1766 the period was distinguished by one predominant man, Benjamin Franklin, who figured largely in the making of America.

"Let us look at the America of 1760. What were we, and what had we? We will have to take away many of our conveniences and necessities of today for we had no electric lights, no telephones, no telegraphs, no printing presses, and we would have to haul down the stars and stripes, for in 1760 there was no America.

"Step by step, a slow process has been going on until the principle of union, our great defense, has made us the America of today. Who were the Americans of 1760? Why, the red men whose race is now almost run. Since then we have built up the nation.

"The Dutch settled on the Hudson river, the Germans in Pennsylvania and that vicinity. The French established themselves in the Carolinas. Thus, could we have lived peaceably together, a thrifty element would have been a great impetus to the growth of our country. But not so, for a race prejudice arose, which interfered with America's unity.

"Secondly, sectarian prejudice arose and the Puritans, Quakers and Catholics would persecute each other whenever opportunity afforded. A third de

In the Code, According to House Vote—Bribery to Be Punished.

Columbus, October 4.—(Special)—The house yesterday voted to let the merit system stay in the code. An amendment by Hypers, of Springfield, providing for the removal of all officers for bribery, was adopted. The mayor is given authority to suspend an officer for such a charge. The personnel of the conference committee which will try to settle the code question is the subject of much gossip.

The house is through with the bill, save that part which the committee on repeals is examining, but it will be voted upon not later than Tuesday. The only important point of difference between the two bodies is over the matter of organization of cities. The house favors single headed boards and the seate the multiple headed boards.

THE COUNTY JAIL AGAIN CONDEMNED

Have Added Something to the Comfort of Inmates, But More Are Necessary—The Jail Population Reduced to 22 Today.

Lisbon, October 4. — (Special.) — The grand jury this morning made its regular inspection and condemnation of the old rookery known as the county jail. Sheriff Leonard and wife are keeping the premises in as good order as is possible, under the circumstances, and were highly complimented by the jury. The inspecting officials first went through the upper part of the building, originally designed as the residence part exclusively, but later partly equipped with cells to accommodate more prisoners.

The cell rooms, although freshly whitewashed and cleaned, with lossened plastering, presented an uninviting appearance. Mr. and Mrs. Leonard have made a great improvement in the kitchen, by putting in a fine new range. In the basement, originally intended for all the prisoners, the jurors lined up along the corridors and witnessed the transfer of all the prisoners from their lounging corridor to the cells and back, showing how the turnkey is handicapped in handling them. The basement is in as good a condition as it can be made, but the air is rather foul, though not as bad as a few weeks ago when filth from an old cesspool seeped through into the front corridor to a depth of two inches in a night, causing most unhealthy conditions. This trouble has been remedied. The stables were found in good shape. Sheriff Leonard has five horses and several carriages.

The grand jury, as usual, decided the old structure a disgrace to the county. The number of inmates will be reduced to 22 this afternoon when the sheriff will take William Daugherty, of Salem, to the Canton work house.

CONTEMPT OF COURT

Charged Against an East Liverpool Man Arrested And Taken to Lisbon.

Lisbon, October 4. — (Special.) — Chris Krafft, of East Liverpool, was arrested there last night by Sheriff Leonard for contempt of court. He was cited before the grand jury and failed to appear. He was brought here at 3 o'clock this morning.

Back From the Phillipines.

Lisbon, October 4.—(Special)—Byron Culler, of Elkrun township, arrived in the city yesterday after a four year's service in the U. S. army in China and the Phillipines.

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE THIS.

Space has been given in this newspaper from time to time relative to the shortage of kilnmen and other workmen in the potteries of this district, and as was to be expected, steps have been taken at last to relieve the present depleted ranks of the operatives. In order that the ranks of the operatives might be swelled at the earliest possible moment, a tour of the local potteries was made yesterday afternoon by representatives of the Brotherhood and also of the Western manufacturing Potters' association The committee representing the manufacturers was composed of H. P. Knoblock, of the Dresden Pottery company and S. M. Ferguson, general manager of the East Liverpool Potteries company. The interests of the Brotherhood were looked after by John T Wood, a kilnman at the Diamond, and Andwerw Brennan, a member of local No. 24, of Wellsville. At each plant visited statistics were obtained relative to the shortage of workmen in the kiln department, and it will be some days before the complete report will be finished and presented to the heads of both sides. A meeting with this end in view will be held within a few days, and the task of compiling the report will no doubt be a tedious one. There is a shortage in all departments and not alone in the kiln department There is a shortage of dippers and a shortage of pressers. Vacant benches may be found in other departments, as well as those mentioned. It has been given out from a most reliable source that there is at least a shortage of 100 kilnmen in the city. Taking other departments into consideration, it is fair to presume that permanent employment could be given at the present time to not less than 200 skilled pottery workmen in this district. There is also a shortage of workmen in the out-of-town potteries, and reckoning the vacancies in these shops, another hundred vacant positions may be added to the list. The subject of "shortage" has become of such moment that both manufacturers and representatives of the Brotherhood have taken it up jointly. That the depressed condition will be relieved there is not the slightest doubt. There is also a shortage of small help, but of course very little can be done to offset this condition. On this account many jiggermen are compelled to remain idle several days during a week, and cannot draw a full week's pay. According to the action of the last convention neither national officers nor the executive board have power to act. Whatever might be done to relieve the shortage will have to be submitted to a referendum vote of the locals. There is little doubt but the members at large will see the necessity of taking such action as will supply the number of kilnmen necessary to operate the potteries.

SEEKS AN INJUNCTION.

Halsey M. Barrett, counsel for William R. Wilcox, a heavy holder of preferred stock in the Trenton Potteries company, otherwise the Trenton pottery trust, who brought suit in the court of chancery, at Trenton, N. J., before Vice Chancellor Stevens to restrain that corporation from executing a proposition for a funding plan has submitted argument opposing the contention of the defendant firm that the funding plan was designed to operate advantageously to all of the stockholders and averring that not only was this not so, but that the minority stockholders who dissented from the proposition were harmfully discriminated against in favor of the assenting majority. Mr. Barrett was opposed by former Attorney General John W. Griggs and R. V. Lindabury, representing the Trenton Potteries company. What was asked by the defendant company, Mr. Barrett said, was legal permission to unconstitutionally alter the relations existing between the directors in order to liquidate an obligation occasioned by several years' poor business when dividends could not be paid. A request for an injunction concluded M. Barrett's argument. Decision was reserved till later.

AN ADDITIONAL PRESS.

The additional printing press that is to be installed at the Wallace & Chetwynd pottery by the East Liverpool Potteries company has been completed and a few days ago was delivered at the plant. It is now in the packing shed, and will be installed in that part of the plant which was formerly used as a decorated warehouse. By doing this the company will greatly increase its capacity for decorating ware.

DEIDRICK WAS WRATHY.

By reason of the pipe line running from the city mains to Dresden pottery in construction at Salineville work will be delayed not less than sixty days. The making of moulds was to have started Monday morning, but the water works trustees have neglected to order the pipe for the line. When Mr. Deidrick found that the line could not be placed in for four weeks, he turned over a car of plaster of paris to East Liverpool parties. A Salineville writer says Deidrick is very wrathy about the line not being in place before this.

BUSINESS IS GOOD.

The Chelsea, at New Cumberland, is shipping large quantities of ware in cars, not using barrels or casks. At least 58,000 dozens of teas were shipped last month, a large amount going to Chicago. It was scheme ware. A kiln a day is being turned out, and it is said that it will take more than a year to fill the present order, with the plant running to its full capacity. The Chelsea's pay for two weeks ending last Saturday was $7,600. This is said to be the largest pay ever made by an eight kiln pottery in the valley.

HEAVYWEIGHT PLAYERS.

New Castle will be represented on the gridiron by two finest teams, the Shenango Athletics and the New Castle High school team. The latter has already games scheduled with Westminster, Grove City and other colleges The former team comprises employes of the Shenango pottery, who expect to have a full schedule of games with teams of 140 or 145 pounds in weight within a few days. A number of former East Liverpool players are said to be in the Shenango team.

HIGHWAYMEN AT SEBRING.

John Murray, a presser at the Oliver pottery at Sebring, had a thrilling experience near home a few nights ago. He got off a car about 9 o'clock and was crossing the railroad tracks on his way home when he was grasped by a man who told him emphatically that he wanted what he had. Murray jerked away and gave him a sledge hammer blow with his fist. The assailant was knocked down, and Murray, glad of his success, hurriedly passed on.

COING TO CROOKSVILLE.

While Will Tritt, general manager of the new Crooksville pottery, was in the city last week, he hired among other help a mouldmaker, who will take charge of the new shop at that new plant, Harry Fisher, who is at present employed at Brunt's. Louis Cochrane, whose time expires this evening, will also go to Crooksville, it is said. Commencing Monday Brunt's mould shop will be in charge of Lawrence Maley.

ALTOGETHER DIFFERENT.

Several papers published in the northern part of the county, in commenting upon the new dinner set that is to be placed in the White House, claim that Mrs. Roosevelt declined to have East Liverpool ware in the White House. The truth of the matter was that the making of this order was refused by the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles company, it being offered while President McKinley was in office.

KILNDRAWERS' MEETING.

The regular weekly meeting of Kilndrawers' local No. 17 will be held this evening in Brotherhood hall. Several applications for membership are to be considered at this session.

A NEW JIGGERMAN.

William Baker, who has been employed as a jiggerman at the East Palestine pottery, has left that town, and is now located at Canonsburg. He has taken a similar position at that plant.

SEBRING GROWING.

Wednesday morning a son was born to Mrs. and Mrs. George E. Sebring, of the Sebring Pottery company, at Sebring.

Kisses.

An old sea captain, under the impression that he was saying a good thing, asked a lady passenger why men never kiss one another, while ladies waste a world of kisses on feminine faces.

"Because," the lady replied, "the men have something better to kiss and the women haven't."

The Inevitable.

"Do as I tell you," Tommy's mamma cried. "It's about time you realized the futility of struggling against the inevitable. Do you know what that means?"

"Yes'm," replied Tommy. "It means there's no use o' your washin' my hands an' face 'cause they'll only get dirty again."

DIVIDES DEMOCRATS.

Tom Johnson's Circus Tactics Trouble His Party.

HIS RULE AROUSES RESENTMENT.

The Abuse of Auditors Angers Their Friends and His Arrogant Dictatorship Disgusts Decent Men of All Parties.

Tom Johnson, in his circus speech at Delphos said:

"Last night we told the people of Van West how Berry, their Democratic auditor, had robbed them. Berry is not worth having his record repeated."

Auditor Berry has been a life-long, earnest Democratic worker, and the tirade of abuse Johnson heaped upon him will not prompt party harmony in Van Wert county. The Democrats of other counties will have like cause of resentment for their friends, for as the Van Wert Bulletin says:

"Was ever such a piece of bossism before enforced in any county in Ohio? Tom Johnson, a big, bloated aristocrat, who made his money in trusts and railways and bossed the Ohio Democratic convention, comes to Van Wert county and bosses the affairs of the county Democrats. He dictates who shall stay on the ticket and who shall get off. He is the party. In his tent he yelled: "Auditor Berry said he would not vote for ME!" What claim has ME on any man's vote? ME is not a candidate. The Van Wert county Democrats who assembled in convention and nominated a ticket have no rights Tom Johnsonism is bound to respect. Tom brushes them aside like dead flies. Thanks to American manhood, there are Democrats who will not submit to such tyranny —who will not bow their heads and worship Tom Johnson's money bags."

But this was not all the trouble torn up in Van Wert county by Tyrant Tom. He also attacked the Democratic candidate for auditor, Henry Troup, as well as Auditor Berry, and while the new man, for fear of the election, succumbed to the pressure, yet it was with reluctance and humiliation that must make him bitter, after all. This part of the matter is thus told by The Bulletin:

Henry Troup has bowed his head and pledged his support to Tom Johnson and his theories. When Johnson came to Van Wert, Mr. Troup followed the advice of some of his friends and was conveniently absent—out of town and out of reach of Tom and his meeting. Tom was wild with rage. He stormed and threatened. In his speech he was unmercifully abusive.

Tom, who is twenty times a millionaire, is touring the state, at an enormous expense, making an issue of railway taxation. Tom strengthens his cause in close counties, by promising to put up large sums of money to carry the elections. He had his arrangements all made in Van Wert county, but when he arrived here his plans were spoiled. Some shrewd Democrats, who believe in the teachings of the party and do not believe in Tom Johnson, had influenced Henry Troup, the Democratic candidate for county auditor, to turn the cold shoulder to the Johnson circus. Tom raved and swore he would not contribute one cent to the Van Wert county fund unless Troup came to time. The head of the county Democratic committee, who was looking forward with great expectation for the big roll, and the men who revolve around about his orbit were scared. There was a commotion. Something had to be done. What happened at about this time is told by a staff correspondent of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, who is traveling with the Johnson circus, riding in the Johnson automobile, sleeping in the Johnson tent and eating at the Johnson table, and writing up daily accounts of the performances. A dispatch from Delphos to the Sunday Plain Dealer tells all about Mr. Troup and his part in the show. The dispatch says:

"The mayor's attack on these two prominent Democrats, Berry and Troup, was very fierce, and it stirred up an unprecedented turmoil within the Van Wert Democracy. Troup, the candidate, was plainly commanded to come to Delphos tonight and answer Mayor Johnson's questions or else get off the ticket. A number of county committeemen declared their intention of resigning unless Troup came to time. Among these was J. F. Lattanner, chairman of the Van Wert county committee, and formerly a member of the state executive committee.

"Under this pressure Troup hitched up his sorrel mare and drove to Delphos this afternoon. He sought out Mayor Johnson and declared his willingness to answer all questions which the mayor might propound. He explained his unwillingness to answer the mayor's demands at Van Wert in this manner:

"'You demand that I assess the steam railroads at 60 per cent. I would not agree to this because many of the farms in Van Wert county are assessed at only 33 per cent. I am willing to assess railroad property as high as other property, but no higher.'

"Mr. Johnson said that this statement was entirely just, and all that he demanded. Troup therefore came to the tent and repeated this statement. He also promised not to ride on a pass."

The above takes Mr. Troup away from the Democratic nomination and makes him Johnson's man. He was pledged to the Democracy of Van Wert county, but that was not enough. Now he is pledged to Tom Johnson. Tom is constantly changing. Two years ago he pledged himself to the single tax theory, to the Henry George idea that all taxes should be levied on lands. How long will it take Tom to work Troup up to the George standard? If Henry Troup is going to be a crank, he must be a good crank or get off the ticket.

ELECTRIFIED HOUSES.

The Simple Explanation of a Very Ordinary Phenomenon.

An instance of nonfamiliarity with simple scientific facts is illustrated by an article that goes the rounds of the press once or twice annually—namely, the story of the electrified house. The article usually states that some one has discovered that everything he touches in his house—the radiators, picture frames, banquet lamps, etc.—gives him an electric shock; hence he fears there is some connection between the arc light wires and the water pipes near his residence. The electric light inspector is therefore summoned and reports that the wires of his company are intact and that the electricity must come from some other source.

It does not dawn on any of the people consulted that the discoverer of the phenomenon is unconsciously performing one of the simplest and oldest of electrostatic experiments, the shuffling of his shoes over the dry carpet raising the potential of his body to several thousand volts, which discharge at every opportunity. One may even get electric discharges from his knuckles against the brass lock of a handbag which he may be carrying while walking on a stone pavement during cold, dry weather.

But, dismissing newspaper science, it is somewhat astonishing, in view of the many ways in which in cold, dry countries electricity is unintentionally developed and manifested by sparking, that the first knowledge concerning this phenomenon did not come to the ancients in this way rather than by the attraction of light substances by amber. The explanation of this, however, may be that the scientists of bygone days did not reside in cold, dry countries.—Cassier's Magazine.

Perfumes In Ancient Days.

Old as the history of the world itself is that of the queen of flowers. The ancient Greeks and Romans reveled in roses. They were used lavishly at their feasts. In the time of the republic the people had their cups of Falernian wine swimming with blooms, and the Spartan soldiers after the battle of Cirrha refused to drink any wine that was not perfumed with roses, while at the regatta of Baiæ the whole surface of the Lucrine lake was strewn with flowers.

DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE.

Prospects Bright For Continued Activity In Business.

New York, Oct. 4.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade, issued today, said in part:

Distribution of merchandise shows no diminution, and prospects are bright for continued activity. Dealers in many lines are urgent for prompt shipments, calling upon jobbers and manufacturers for goods already overdue. This indication of reduced stocks is a god sign, and tends to sustain quotations. Western reports are especially favorable, and the early marketing of cotton has brought distinct improvement at the south. Voluntary advances in wages have been announced in a number of instances, while the labor situation is more satisfactory, although not entirely free from controversy. Transportation facilities have improved in the coke region, where congestion was becoming severe, and railway earnings thus far reported for September exceed last year's by 94 per cent.

Pig iron furnaces are receiving larger consignments of coke, and there is less interruption because of fuel scarcity. The situation is by no means satisfactory, however, and production of iron and steel would expand considerably if facilities were normal. Much of the relief has come from large imports, the extent of which is not generally appreciated.

Wool averaged slightly higher in sympathy with the London sale, but further declines occurred in hides, and leather has become dull.

PROTESTS POUR IN

From East Enders Against Assessments for Pennsylvania Avenue Improvements.

At the next meeting of council which will be held Tuesday evening, Attorney James Davis, of the East End, will be present to represent several hundred property owners who have been assessed for the improvement of Pennsylvania avenue. Since yesterday morning property owners have called at Attorney Davis' office by the dozens, signed a remonstrance against paying the assessment, and it is believed that by concerted effort many assessments will be cancelled. So far over 100 petitions have been signed by this number, and will be greatly increased before Tuesday evening.

It was stated this morning that the owners of Columbian park had been assessed in the neighborhood of $1,500. The McKinnon estate, which fronts on Pennsylvania avenue, has been assessed over $1,500. This estate is said to be worth at least $2,000 an acre. Notices of assessment have been forwarded to almost every property owner in the East End, and it is most likely that a remonstrance will be filed with council by all of these persons against paying the stated assessments. In the East End the question is the paramount one.

NEVER WILL BE BETTER

Opinion of His Physician About the Injured Dragon Boy.

Will little Michael Dragon, of Virginia avenue, East End, ever be able to arise from his bed, and play again? It is not likely. The boy was visited early this morning by Dr. Walter E. Mowen, and after he came from the humble home he said: "He is just as well now as he ever will be."

The boy is being looked after every day by physicians, and it is the opinion of them that he will never recover. Owing to the fact that the family are foreigners it is quite a hard matter to make them understand. The mother received a letter from her husband who is at Pittsburg, last evening, and he asks that the family pack their goods and come to Pittsburg at once. Dragon says that he has secured a good job. The boy, however, is in no fit condition to be removed, and he will not be, provided Dr. Mowen can prevent it. Much concern is felt over the condition of the boy.

New Social Club.

A social club is to be organized in the East End next week. The preliminary steps have been taken, and it is the intention to secure quarters in the Ferguson & Larkins building on First avenue. A meeting to complete the organization is to be held early next week. The following young men are at the head of the movement: William White, Earl Myers, James White, Herman Supplee, Charles Harris, Fred McCain, Harry Meanor, Roger Hill, Paul Andrews. The club is to be for social purposes only.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

Superintendent Thomas Reed, of the East Liverpool street railway, who has been out of the city for several days, returned home last evening.

Mrs. Rebecca Hendricks left yesterday for the vicinity of Pottsville, Pa., to visit a sister who is critically ill and not expected to recover.

NEXT MEETING AT CANTON

The State W. C. T. U. at Salem Elects Officers And Adjourns.

Salem, October 4.—The State Women's Christian Temperance Union convention closed last evening with a public meeting of "Y.s" The convention elected these officers: Mrs. Annie Woods Clark, Columbus, president; Mrs. Sarah M. Perkins, Cleveland, vice-president; Miss Frances Hamilton, Madison, corresponding secretary; Miss Olivia Annette Thomas, Bloomdale, recording secretary; Mrs. Florence Jaite, Cleveland, treasurer. It resolved to send a delegate to the world's Women's Christian Temperance Union convention, at Geneva, Switzerland, next summer, and Mrs. Clark, the president, was chosen delegate. The next annual meeting will be held in Canton.

A matter was taken up yesterday which later developed into quite a controversy. It has been the rule that all funds of the various departments, in fact, all moneys of any kind whatever, shall pass only through the hands of the state treasurer. Mrs. E. J. Gray, of Medina, state superintendent of contests, has heretofore been permitted to handle her own funds, independent of the treasurer. Yesterday it was ordered that all be handled only by the state treasurer.

The executive committee recommended that the convention adopt the motion, and when it came up in the convention a warm debate ensued. Mrs. Gray made a determined plea to be allowed to handle the funds of her own department, but the motion was adopted. Mrs. Gray then tendered to the executive committee her resignation as superintendent of the contest department.

Cruelly Crushed.

William Bliss when president of the Boston and Albany railroad was once called before the railroad committee of the Massachusetts legislature to testify on traffic matters, and a young member who was serving his first term undertook to examine him.

"I want you to tell me how much it costs to haul a freight car from Boston to Springfield," said the member.

"I don't know," replied Mr. Bliss.

"You don't know?"

"That was the answer I gave."

"What are you, anyway?"

"President."

"Of what?"

"The Boston and Albany railroad."

"Well, sir," began the legislator in rising voice, "if you are William Bliss president of the Boston and Albany railroad, and you don't know what it costs to haul freight from Boston to Springfield, who in the name of heaven does know?"

"No one that I know unless it is a member of the Massachusetts legislature who is serving his first term."

Another member continued the examination.

A Plea For Courtesy.

We have lost the old flowery forms of politeness, and now we never waste "Thank you!" on a fellow creature who is not of our own immediate circle. A tradesman does, but he knows it will be charged in the bill. I wonder what will bring us back to the old sweetness of manner? Why should not the customer in the teashop or the customer in the postoffice say "Please" when he gives his order and the other spare a "Thank you!" when he has paid his bill? It makes life run so much more easily.—Girl's Realm.

A STRONG, VIGOROUS MAN

Is Liable to Break Down—Pe-ru-na is Sure to Restore.

Hon. Frank Dunn, Alderman Twenty-Fourth District, writes from 232 East Fifty-Eighth Street, New York City: The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen: "There is no remedy for a broken-down system that I know of which will so effectually restore health as Peruna.

"Whenever I am overworked or suffer from the consequences of a cold a few doses of Peruna builds me up again more quickly than anything I ever tried. I find it especially valuable for catarrh. Three bottles cured me three years ago of catarrh of the stomach and I have never had the least symptoms of it since."

Very truly,

FRANK DUNN, Alderman 24th Dist., N. Y. City.

A TONIC is a medicine that gives tone to some part of the system. There are different kinds of tonics, but the tonic most needed in this country, where catarrh is so prevalent, is a tonic that operates on the mucous membranes.

Peruna is a tonic to the mucous membranes of the whole body. It gives tone to the capillary circulation which constitutes these delicate membranes.

Peruna is a specific in its operation upon the mucous membrane. It is a tonic that strikes at the root of all catarrhal affections. It gives tone to the minute blood vessels and the terminal nerve fibres. Catarrh cannot exist long where Peruna is used intelligently. Peruna seeks out catarrh in all the hidden parts of the body.

Paul Landrum writing from Atlanta, Ga., says:

"In January last I began the use of your Peruna and Manalin for what was termed organic heart trouble. At that time I could scarcely walk to my place of business without stopping to rest and on arrival felt completely exhausted. Had severe pains in my heart and general dizziness. After using the first bottle of Peruna I began to improve and today I feel that I am a sound man and I work fourteen hours a day without any bad feeling."—Paul Landrum.

A. M. Ikerd, an employee of the C. B. & Q. R. R., West Burlington, Ia., writes:

"I had catarrh of the stomach and small intestines for a number of years. I went to a number of doctors and got no relief. Finally one of my doctors sent me to Chicago and I met the same fate. They said they could do nothing for me, that I had cancer of the stomach and there was no cure. I almost thought the same, for my breath was something awful. I could hardly stand it, it was so offensive. I could not eat anything without great misery, and I gradually grew worse.

"Finally I got one of your books, and concluded I would try Peruna, and thank God, I found a relief and a cure for that dreadful disease. I took five bottles of Peruna and two of Manalin, and I now feel like a new man. There is nothing better than Peruna, and I keep a bottle in my house all the time."—A. M. Ikerd.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

When to Eat Fruit.

The question is often asked, At what time of day should fruit be eaten? In tropical countries, where fruit is the chief article of food, the rule appears to be that the earlier in the day it is taken the better and the later the worse. In hot weather many wise people will eat none after noon, alleging that the digestion then declines in power with the decline of the day and the fruit, instead of digesting, decomposes owing to the presence of the saccharine matter. The objection to fruit and certain kinds of vegetables late in the day, be the explanation what it may, is certainly justified by an ample experience, though some persons can eat fruit at all hours without feeling any inconvenience.—Table Talks.

TWELVE PAGES.

The whole country will regret that the conference on the miners' strike, held at the White House in Washington, did not reach a more satisfactory conclusion. The president did all in his power to bring about a peaceful settlement of existing difficulties; but his appeals, both to patriotism and manhood, apparently fell on deaf ears. The coal operators exhibit the same obstinacy and stubborness that has characterized their course from the beginning of the struggle. The offer of President Mitchell, of the Mine Workers' union, to submit the whole controversy to a tribunal of arbitration of President Roosevelt's own selestion and to abide by the result will strike the public generally as being fair and just. How the operators can quarrel with it, if they are conscious of having the right on their side, passes comprehension. The proposition of the other side, to let the judges of the local courts settle the problem, while it may be approved in some quarters, has less to commend it. Such struggles inevitably arouse bitter local feeling, and for the ends of justice it is but natural that something in the nature of a change of venue be desired. The real aim and purpose of the operators is to reject all plans for a settlement that will compel them to recognize the miners' union and its right to treat with them. The owners of the mines and railroads, representing hundreds of millions of capital, band together to aid each other, and yet would deny the same privilege to the men they employ, the men who create their wealth. Here is the inconsistent and inexcusable feature of their course. They retaliate by saying some of the men on strike have been disorderly. But they cannot hold the whole organization responsible for the acts of a few individuals, especially as lawbreaking is not countenanced by the miners' union as a whole, and as its officers have at all times endeavored to discourage it. There would have been no strike and no disorder had the operators shown a disposition to listen to the men and make an honest effort to settle the dispute to the interests of both parties concerned. The situation is indeed grave, but the effort to put all responsibility for it on the shoulders of the men who toil will not be countenanced by the general public. The anthracite miners, considering the hardships and dangers they incur, are among the most poorly paid laborers in the country, and the sympathy of the whole people is with them in the battle they are fighting for living wages.

The Republican county executive committee, in its session at Lisbon, performed most excellent work. The selection of A. E. Swearingen, of Hanover township, as a candidate for the office of infirmary director, is one that will be hailed with the highest satisfaction by the people of Columbiana county. Mr. Swearingen is a man of the highest standing in the community where he resides, and eminently qualified for the office for which he has been nominated. The addition of his name renders the Republican county ticket strong from top to bottom, and ensures its triumphant election as a whole.

Massachusetts Republicans fall in line approving President Roosevelt in one administration and in the intention to support him in another. The anti-administration forces in the Bay state have been noisy, but not influential, and there is going to be a grand Republican victory this fall right in the heart of Edward Atkinson's stronghold.

Tom L. Johnson is on the hunt for local issues. He ought to find one in Cleveland, where he is reported to be worth $10,000,000 to $14,000,000, but where, in five years, he has returned for taxation only $33,900.

The university extension movement has been universally commended. Its inauguration in this city is worthy of all encouragement as a stimulus to educational growth.

Carnes was a mill employe. He leaves a wife.

AT THE THEATER

Manager J. A. Norris offers to the patrons of the new Grand opera house on Saturday afternoon and evening Mr. Frank Burt's famous scenic revival of that great emotional play, "East Lynne," with Miss Rebecca Warren in the character of Lady Isabelle. Without a doubt more people have cried and laughed with Lady Isabelle than any other character known to the American stage. No novel in the English langauge has had a larger sale than "East Lynne" and no drama in the English speaking tongue has been heard by more people.

A large house greeted "Our New Minister" at the Grand Opera House last evening. The same players that appeared here last year compose the company this season and judging from the way the play was received, much better satisfaction was given. Some parts of the play have been revised and with the company this season is a complete new set of scenery. Several new parts have been added, all of which improve the production which is one of the best on the road.

The Bennett-Moulton company, that commence their week's engagement next Monday, promise their many patrons superb productions. This season the company is the largest, strongest and most complete ever seen at 10, 20 and 30 cents, and will put to shame many of the high-priced companies now upon the road, having the best vaudeville artists between the acts that money can procure.

centralizing element was the competition which arose between the ports. The fourth and most serious decentralizing element was the overlapping territory, which was caused largely by reason of disputes in measuring. For years a great debate went on in this country, during which period William Penn and the Calverts figured conspicuously.

"But, let us look at another phase in the growth of our country. Were there not elements which tended to unite as well as decentralize the nation's people? The colonists finally came to the conclusion that God must have ordered this fair land for us, and they began to talk about a 'destiny.' Was Patrick Henry not the first one to use this word in his stirring speeches?

"When England began to press the crown of oppression upon young America's brow, this had a tendency to unite the colonies in sympathy. England issued writs, smuggling took place, and it was at this time that James Otis made that great speech of which John Adams said: 'When Otis made that speech, at that very time, the child of liberty was born.'

"Then came the stamp act with tyranical laws, and it was about this period that Benjamin Franklin figured most conspicuously.

"He spent 10 long years in the service of America, and when he returned the snows of many winters had laid upon his beloved wife's grave, for she had long since passed through those gates, whose portals we call Death."

A GOOD PRESCRIPTION.

Laughter as a Stomach Cure and an Aid to Health.

Worry is but one of the many forms of fear, so that worry tends to the production of indigestion. Indigestion tends to put the body of the subject in a condition that favors worry. There is thus established a vicious circle which tends to perpetuate itself, each element augmenting the other.

It is necessary to secure a cheerful, wholesome atmosphere for the dyspeptic. He should eat his meals at a table where there is good fellowship and where funny stories are told. He should himself make a great effort to contribute his share of this at the table, even if it be necessary, as it was in one case under my care, for him to solemnly and seriously collect funny paragraphs from the press, and at first interject them spasmodically during lulls in the conversation at the table. The very efforts and determination of the man to correct his own silent habits at table, to correct his feelings of discouragement and worry, were in themselves a promise of success. The effort made was adequate to the obstacles to be overcome. He succeeded, and the spectacle of that man trying to be funny at table when he felt thoroughly discouraged and blue is one we shall never forget.

Laughing is in itself also a useful exercise from the standpoint of digestion. It stirs up all the abdominal organs, it increases the circulation of the blood, it increases peristalsis, it increases the secretion of gastric juices. Five minutes' deliberate laughing after each meal would be an excellent prescription for some people.—Family Doctor.

THE BIRTH OF JAPAN.

Curious Legend of the Creation Handed Down by the Japanese.

The following is the curious legend of the creation as it is told in Japan: Clouds formed the bridge on which once god Yzanaghi and his spouse Yzanuma stood pondering on the riddle of existence, whether the beginnings of worlds and the beginnings of life lay slumbering in that sea of chaos. Yzanaghi, apparently more enterprising than philosophically inclined, seized his shimmering spear and plunged it into the black and seething flood. Pulling it up again, he discovered seven salt drops on its diamond point, which, dropping, condensed and formed the island of Cusokorosima.

Thereupon Yzanaghi and his spouse selected the spot of earth which had thus been created as their permanent dwelling place and peopled it with innumerable genii of animal and plant life and spirits of the elements. And around this "palace of immortality" rose eight other islands—Awadsi, the island of foam; the mountainous Cho, Yamato, blessed with fruit; Yyo, unsurpassed in its beauty; the quinquangular Tsikousi, Sado, rich in copper and gold; Yki, one of the pillars of heaven, and Oko, surrounded by three satellites.

Such was the birth of Japan, of that curious land of Fusiyama, with its amiable population of artist artisans, its graceful teahouses, its glistening silks, its grotesque dwarf trees, its white cranes and dreamy lotus ponds. —Harper's Magazine.

The Man and the Wave.

Once upon a time a man was telling a tale of woe that unveiled his matrimonial experience.

"It was all on account of a little dainty handkerchief," he said. "The first time that I saw the girl and before we had been introduced she waved that bit of lace at me, and I was carried away. It was a fall in love and then matrimony. But, alas, that delicate handkerchief was no index to the girl's nature, and I found myself wrecked on the sea of matrimony."

Moral.—A man may be carried away by a wave and wrecked without going near the water.—New York Herald.

Every Convenience.

There is a dock laborer in Glasgow who is possessed of a great sense of humor. Perhaps it's because he's an Irishman. Pat had been disturbed several times in his single apartment by a well meaning lady missionary. Seeing Pat was rather an exemplary sort of a husband, she suggested that he might be able to afford a room and kitchen soon.

"An' phwat wad Oi want lavin' such a comfortable house as this for?" asked Pat.

"Well," she replied, "you would have more room—more conveniences."

"Convaniences is it?" said Pat, with a smile. "Sure, an' at prisint if Oi want to go to the drawin' room or the dinin' room or the conservatory, begorra, Oi've just got to sit still. Phwat could be handier?"

The lady couldn't say.—London Answers.

Not an Occasion For Haste.

During the Sikh war the late Field Marshal Sir Neville Chamberlain, who then held the rank of colonel, called for volunteers to assist him in blowing up a bastion. Three or four responded, and the colonel led the little party close up to the point where the mine was to be fired. As soon as the explosives were in place and the fuse lighted the volunteers started to run in order to get out of the way of the explosion no less than to effect, as speedily as possible to retreat to the safety of the British lines. They had not gone a dozen yards before Chamberlain shouted: "Come back! There's to be no indecent haste, young men. We'll walk." And walk they did, while the fuse slowly sputtered down to the waiting powder.

A Minor Consideration.

The ambitious young woman was attracted by an advertisement, one line of which read, "How to Become an Author." The advertiser claimed that by his method failure was impossible.

So the ambitious young woman sent on the necessary trifling sum of money, and by return mail she received a slip on which was printed this bit of advice, "Write something."

"But," she protested by letter, "I already have done that, and it hasn't been printed."

"We congratulate you," was the reply. "If you have written something you already are an author. Publication is a minor consideration, with which we have nothing to do."—Brooklyn Eagle.

NO AGREEMANT

NOW IN FORCE IN THE CITY FOR CLOSING HOURS.

The Old Regulation Expired October 1, And a New One Has Not Been Made.

Speculation is being indulged in just now as to whether the proposed revision of the retail clerk's agreement with the merchants will go through, or whether the ultimate result will be the abandonment of all regulation as to working hours for clerks employed in East Liverpool.

As a matter of fact, no agreement now exists between the merchants and their employes. The closing regulations which have been in force and which were mutual between the clerks and the merchants expired on October 1, and at that time the members of local union No. 133, presented a new and revised agreement. This document contains several changes, the most important among which was the demand that 6 o'clock be adopted as the closing hour on Monday nights. When the agreement was laid before the merchants the only objection made was to the 6 o'clock Monday night clause, all others, of which there were several, were conceded. The claim was made by the merchants in session then, that the paper presented to them was not an official one, since it neither contained the seal of the union, nor the signatures of the officers of No. 133. This point was waived, however, and the answer returned that the merchants could not agree to the early closing hour for Monday nights.

Since no conference has been held, nor no agreement reached since October 1, the business establishments are now relieved from observing any rules whatever.

It is understood that the employes of the local dry goods stores were the ones to propose the changes in the regulations which are now annoying the parties interested, and as the majority of the dry goods clerks are ladies, the real foundation of the trouble can be laid at their door.

At the meeting next Tuesday night it is assured that there will be the largest attendance for months. No action will be taken that will change the clerk's side of the controversy, in the least. The lady members outnumber the men more than two to one, and the demand will stand. It is confidently expected that there will be a few warm debates before adjournment is taken.

Meantime a few of the merchants are taking advantage of the fact that no agreement now exists, and are observing whatever hours suits them best.

Too Gorgeous Books.

The author of "Elizabeth and Her German Garden," writing on the "Giving of Books" in the Century, says:

Gifts of books addressed solely to the spirit should never be editions de luxe. Of what use is a book to me, however much I may want to read it, if it is so gorgeous that it must not be taken anywhere where rain might fall on it, or where it might get muddy, or where a heedless gnat, caught by the quick turning of a leaf, might leave its legs in the pages, angering the owner of the defiled book, who does not want its legs, almost as much as it is itself angered by having to go on being a gnat without them? I can no more take an overgorgeous book to my heart than I can fold my child in my arms when it is dressed for a party.

When she saw two officers staring her in the face up went her hands and she commenced pleading for mercy. She knew, however, that she had done nothing to cause her arrest, and with wonderful assurance invited the officers in to take any or all of the people of the household. Chris was the only one wanted. The officers found him curled up in bed and though they hated to cause him so much inconvenience commanded that he dress immediately and follow. He complied but with reluctance and in a few mindtes was on the way to the Lisbon jail in charge of Officer Porter.

Constable Powell has numerous such warrants in his possession and will likely make arrests today.

The Baggage Smasher's Wisdom.

The other day an express wagon filled with trunks rattled up Broadway, and just opposite the postoffice a big Saratoga slid off and came crashing down on the car tracks. Several people ran out from the sidewalk to rescue it, but the trunk proved to be empty, and there was little damage done. "Now, if that had been full," said one old gentleman to the expressman, "you'd have had a fine old time with it." "Huh," replied the baggage charioteer scornfully, "full trunks don't fall off by theirselves. You got to fling them off!"—New York Commercial Advertiser.

AERIAL POLO.

A Queer Kind of Amusement on a Pacific Ocean Island.

Writing on "Our Equatorial Islands" in the Century, James D. Hague says:

It became an amusing diversion to overturn the large flat stones beneath which the rats were hiding in solid masses and watch them as they scampered in all directions, pursued and quickly snatched up by the man-o'-war hawks. These crafty birds were apt to learn that the appearance of a man walking on the island, especially with a dog, meant rats for them, and any one thus going forth was usually followed by a hovering flock, ready and impatient for the sport they had learned to expect. A rat brought to hand by the dog was quickly tossed in air, where the birds were ready to snatch it, sometimes with a contest on the wing for the disputed possession. One form of this sport, a sort of aerial polo, which seemed to be as good fun for the birds as for the observers, consisted in tossing two rats into the air at the same moment, not singly and apart, but tied together with about six feet of strong twine.

Instantly the birds made a dash for the rats, and the successful winner of the first prize went sailing off with one rat in his bill and the other swinging in the air beneath until snatched by the second winner, when, after a quick, sharp struggle and a taut strain on the cord, the bird with the weaker hold was compelled to let go. This then went on as a continuous performance, with somewhat Jonah-like but rapidly repeated disappearances and reappearances of the little rats, swallowed and reluctantly disgorged by the birds in quick succession until the flock, thoroughly exhausted by their impetuous flight and extraordinary exercise, alighted on the ground for a short truce, when the two temporary stakeholders would be found sitting face to face, keenly eying each other from opposite ends of the string still connecting them, each anxiously on the sharp lookout for sudden jerks and unpleasant surprises, while all the other pursuers gathered around in a ring, waiting for the two prize birds to fly. The general aspect of all participants seemed to verify the familiar adage that the pleasure is not in the game, but in the chase.

The Proper Treatment For a Sprained Ankle.

As a rule a man will feel well satisfied if he can hobble around on crutches two or three weeks after spraining his ankle, and it is usually two or three months before he has fully recovered. This is an unnecessary loss of time, for in many cases in which Chamberlain's Pain Balm has been promptly and freely applied, a complete cure has been effected in less than one week's time, and in some cases within three days. Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, men—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous effort to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insiduous consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boschee's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure-all, but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get this reliable remedy at Charles F. Craig's.

ABSOLUTE FREE TRADE

And Nothing Short of That Is Intended.

CUSTOM HOUSES TO BE ABOLISHED.

Tom Johnson Admits That This Is One Thing That He Aims at, and He Is "The Whole Thing" Among Ohio Democrats at This Time.

Always heretofore the Democrats have dodged and denied on the free trade issue, and have stubbornly insisted that they had no purpose or intention of favoring absolute free trade. All kinds of fine phrases, from "tariff revision" on through a long list more or less meaningless, have been used to evade the rugged issue that their opposition to protection to American industries, actually meant the abolition of all taxes upon foreign imports.

But in Ohio, at least, this mask has been stripped off at last. At Lima, O., Tuesday night, Sept. 23, TOM JOHNSON DECLARED OPENLY, as he had done less conspicuously in previous meetings and in congress, THAT HE BELIEVED IN MR. GEORGE'S PROPOSITION TO ABOLISH CUSTOM HOUSES. Our authority for this is "the Democratic paper of Ohio," the Columbus Press.

"Me," as Johnson calls himself, hath said it, and that settles it at this time for the Ohio Democracy, who have chosen him as their supreme dictator, and who wear his button for their party's next nomination for the presidency. The custom houses must go, and absolute, unqualified, undiluted free trade is the party doctrine.

No longer will any readjustment of rates, to lessen possible inequalities, answer for the Ohio Democracy. Mere "revenue reform," once so radical, is not now near deep-rooted enough for the followers of Tom Johnson and the recent Bigelow. Even "the tariff for revenue only" is no longer drastic enough, for in its place comes the tearing down of every custom house, the removal of every tariff collector, the sweeping away of the last scintilla of the least possible protection to the feeblest home industry.

And in their place, what is proposed by ME, Tom Johnson? Why direct taxation; the single tax on land values, and nothing else, doing away with every other form of levy and assessment upon every other form of property. This is the Henry George idea, pure and simple and perfect, and Mr. Johnson declared in that same breath at Lima, in his very words as given by the Columbus Press:

"THE DOCTRINES OF HENRY GEORGE ARE THE MOVING SPIRIT OF WHATEVER I DO, WHETHER AS MAYOR OF CLEVELAND, OR IN THIS TENT, OR IN ANOTHER FIELD OF ACTIVITY."

Keep that in mind. Remember that Henry George was for the uttermost free trade, and that Johnson is, because the single land tax is to take care of everything, local, state or national. Free trade stripped of the least pretense of protection is the Ohio Democratic doctrine today.

LABOR DEMAND EXCEEDS SUPPLY.

Farmers, Contractors and Builders Short of Help.

Prosperity is causing a stringency in the local labor market. There are several new buildings in Troy on which work is stopped temporarily because of the lack of workmen.

Contractors are confronted with a new competition in securing and keeping help. The bumper crops have created an abnormal demand for farm help. Crops must be harvested and housed, and farmers are offering extra inducements in the shape of higher wages for hands.

This happy condition for the workman is the same or "more so" in the skilled labor market, and even clerks are in demand in the cities. This Republican brand of prosperity, aided by good crops, extends through every grade of society and to all parts of the United States.—Troy (O.) Union.

During the Salem Republican convention a delegation of potters called on the Mahoning county leaders and wanted to be assured that Mr. Kennedy would support the McKinley high tariff. They declared that they would have no work if the tariff should be reduced on pottery products. The pottery workers of East Liverpool, Sebring and other parts of the district must be somewhat surprised over the action of the Democratic congressional convention at Alliance in declaring for an abolition of all tariffs and in favor of direct taxation.—Youngstown Telegram.

MRS. HELENA BLAU,

Young Milwaukee Society Woman.

Mrs. Helena Blau.

TEN thousand cured women have written to tell how Wine of Cardui bestows the blessing of health on every woman who takes it, rich and poor alike. Mrs. Helena Blau, No. 123 Seventh Street, Milwaukee, Wis., is one of the young women whom Wine of Cardui has rescued from a life of suffering. She writes:

"Wine of Cardui is certainly 'worn out' women's best friend and I am pleased to give my experience with it. A few months ago I caught a severe cold, having been out in inclement weather, which settled all over me, particularly in the abdomen. I was in almost constant pain. I consulted a physician and took his medicine for a month and without any relief. I then decided I would try your medicine and it was a lucky day for me when I did so. I noticed a change in a few days and felt encouraged to continue taking Wine of Cardui, and my patience was rewarded, for in two weeks my pains had left me and I felt like a new woman."

The woman who has suffered from female weakness should do anything within reason to secure health. Wine of Cardui is the medicine that appeals to reasonable women—women who hold operations and cutting in horror—women who know that Nature is the best physician. Wine of Cardui gives women back their health by giving Nature a chance to build up the wasted and diseased tissue. Wine of Cardui regulates the menstrual flow and Nature, when relieved of the drains or of the poisons in the system, makes the functional organs strong and healthy again.

Any woman who is silently suffering untold pains because she is too sensitive to undergo a physician's examination and treatment can find no excuse for not securing relief when Wine of Cardui is offered to her. There is no publicity to deter her. She can take Wine of Cardui in the privacy of her home, with as much assurance of a final cure as though a dozen doctors recommended it. Many physicians do recommend Wine of Cardui to their patients.

Why not get a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

Their Present Platform Most Radical Ever Advocated and Their Leader Wants All Custom Houses Wiped Out, Destroying Protection.

It is just ten years ago that the Democratic party persuaded the people of the United States to put their foot in it. Under the Harrison administration and the McKinley tariff the country was prosperous as never before that time. Business was in such full tide as to persuade many that it would stand any kind of tampering, and so the talk began about the need for a change as the reason for defeating Harrison and electing Cleveland and a congress that would carry out his recommendations in favor of the freest trade that any president had ever advocated in any of his public messages.

The election went for free trade and notice was thus served on that November night to every industrial interest that it was in peril. In consequence, every man in charge of an enterprise who was at all prudent and looked forward to the possibilities of the coming months, began to set his house in order for the troubles that were threatened by the Democratic platform and campaign speeches and newspapers. The contracting current of trade grew more and more constricted month after month until less than six months after Cleveland's election the effect was so fully felt in financial circles that the terrible currency panic of 1893 held the entire country in its grasp. This is the actual sequence of events. The threat of free trade stopped the factories, the stoppage of the factories affected the banks, and the disaster to the banks paralyzed every interest. It is true, just as Democrats state, that their free trade tariff bill did not get upon the statute book until many months afterward, but they were elected pledged to its passage, and it was the bounden duty of every manufacturer and business man of every kind to get ready for trouble from the first, and not wait until the storm burst upon him.

At that time there had been 30 years of almost uninterrupted Republican rule, for on no previous occasion had the Democrats been in power in all branches of the government at once, so that they could put into the statute book unhindered their free trade heresies. Almost the first act of the first Republican congress was a protective tariff law, to undo the mischief of the Democratic panic of 1857, just as the first act of the first congress of the United States under the constitution, when George Washington first was president, was a law for the protection and encouragement of American industries. The Morrill tariff carried the United States through the Civil war, and the marvelous progress of the succeeding years, and in consequence an entire generation had come and gone in the 35 years after the Democratic times of 1857 of "ten cents a day no roast beef," until the election of 1892, and the cry for a "change" sounded very plausible to the millions who never knew of the sufferings of their fathers, and to the other millions who had come upon these shores since those days.

Ten years, however, is not so long a period, and there are too many Americans, both among the women as well as among the men, who remember the troubles of the free trade panic precipitated by the election of Cleveland and a congress of his kind, to care to risk anything else of the sort. And yet that very question is before us today more truly than it has been at any time in the past ten years. Nor is it as much in evidence in any other state as it is in Ohio in the shape that the campaign is taking.

Tom Johnson, who has suddenly become the "ME" of the Democracy here, in the hope of equally being the "ME" of his party everywhere, is an out and out free trader. The Henry George doctrines, which he declares to be the "moving spirit of whatever I do," explicitly demand the abolition of every form of tax except that upon "land values." The single land tax would not leave the least room for even "incidental protection."

Mr. Johnson at Lima declared that he believed "Mr. George's proposition to abolish custom houses." Consequently, not one Democrat in Ohio, who has been with his party in the past when it favored even "incidental protection," as it has often done in this state, especially in certain districts, has left the slightest footing for his faith in the platform of his party or its candidate this year, because that candidate is himself a Henry George man, thrust upon his party for that reason and no other.

Free trade is in the fight in Ohio, and it is up to every man who cares to protect his own employment, or to get good prices from the produce of his fields, from the workers in the factories, to vote against the Johnson party—"horse, foot and dragoons."

BASEBALL GOSSIP

Record of Mercer and Carey in the Big Clubs of the American League.

Now that the American League baseball season has closed, baseball fans in this city will read with interest the work that was done by Win Mercer, who was pitching for the Detroit team during the season, and of George Carey, who looked after the initial bag for the Washington, D. C., club. There has just been prepared a semi-official batting average of all the players of this league, coupled with other interesting statistics, which is here given.

During the season 123 players were used by all the clubs in the league. In the list of fielding averages Carey held 12th place. His record in them was as follows: Games 120; A. B. 455; R. 45; B. H. 143; S. B. 0; S. 8; Pct. 314. Mercer is close to the bottom of the long list, holding 112th place. His record was: Games 33; A. B. 98; R. 7; B. H. 17; S. B. 1; S.H. 4; Pct. 173. Carey has the best average in the outfield of any first baseman in the American League with but one exception, that being McGann, of Baltimore, who has an average of 990. Carey's average was one point less. The official record gives Carey the following: Games 120; P. O. 196; A. 66; Errors 14; Pct. 989. Among the pitchers of this league, Mercer holds sixth place. He has to his credit 33 games; P. O. 18; A. 98; E. 6; Pct. 951. In the pitcher's average the following record is given Mercer: Games 33; B. B. 84; W. P. 2; H. P. B. 8; S. O. 36; Won 15 games; lost 15; T. O. Pct. 500. In the number of shut out games that Mercer has won and lost during the season was Won 4, Lost 4.

Sporting papers issued this week contain among other things the following about "Win Mercer:"

Detroit has released pitcher McMackin. The team has this season used twelve pitchers—Mercer, Mullin, Miller, Yeager, Siever, Cronin, McCarthy, Kissinger, Egan, Terry, Fisher and McMackin.

It is said that Mercer some time ago signed to manage the Detroit team next season.

To punish Pitcher Tannehill for deserting the Pittsburg team, he has been ordered to report at the home grounds every day until October 15. This prevents him from taking any part in the exhibition games, the proceeds of which go to the players, and it will also keep him from joining the Cantillion Stars which is managed by "Win Mercer," of East Liverpool.

It is not hard to prove the claims made for Doan's Kidney Pills. Scores of people in East Liverpool testify to their merit. Surely the evidence from friends and neighbors, plain statements of their experience, is better proof than the testimony of people residing in some far-away place. Read the following:

Mr. William Torrence, fireman at engine house No. 1 says: "For some time I was annoyed with symptons of either weakened or over-excited kidneys. I had noticed more than one recommendation made byp eople living in East Liverpool about Doan's Kidney Pills, and thinking that if the medicine performed half what it promised it might help me, I bought a box at Larkins' Drug Store. # BEAVER OIL FIELD

Drillers in the Vicinity of Georgetown Are Having Troubles of Their Own.

Drillers in the Georgetown oil fields are having trouble. Tools in three wells are stuck and this has delayed operations somewhat.

Gailey & Co., on the J. R. Peters farm and Finnegan & Co., on the Dawson farm, are sufferers. The most serious trouble happened to Le Comete & Co., drilling No. 3, on the Dawson farm. At a depth of 540 feet, with only a possible 150 feet to go, the tools stuck in the casing. The stem broke in the hole, and the well, which had indications of being a good one, will have to be adandoned. The well was to have been shot this week. Kirk & Critchlow, operating on the Frank Laughlin farm, have been forced to suspend operations on account of a scarcity of water. The concern drilled down 120 feet with an eight inch pipe and struck water, but after it had been bailed out twice the supply of water was exhausted. They will go deeper as this is the only way of getting a supply of water.

The National Transit company has commenced putting down three-inch pipe in Dry Run and Beaver creek. These are all gravity lines and the three inch pipes gives better satisfaction and enables the gaugers to get the oil from the fields in short time. All of the oil in the Georgetown field is pumped to Turkeyfoot, thence to McDonald, Pa. The work of laying pipes, replacing the smaller ones is an indication that oil in large quantities is expected from the field.

NEW SCHOOL HOUSE

Kensington Will Move Its Schools From the Hill to the Village.

The school board of Kensington has been successful in securing a grant from the township board for building of a new school house. The site selected for the structure is that of the George Cox Meat Packing house which was burned about 18 months ago.

The present building is located on the hill north of the village and was considered not a suitable place because of the hardship incurred by the children in the climbing of the hill, especially in winter when the roads were icy and drifted. The new site is a splendid location for the school. Arrangements have been made whereby Mr. Cox becomes the owner of the old school building. What disposition he will make of it is not known. Kensington schools are graded ones and consist of two rooms.

Mr. Cox is a resident of this city.

The meeting of the entire family was a most joyous occasion, and after the bountiful dinner was served, Mr. Marietta, of Salineville, made a picture of the group.

After a most pleasant day all reprired to their homes wishing Mr. and Mrs. Williams a prosperous and happy future.

TOOL THAT ALMOST TALKS

Yet Its Complicated Mechanism Can Be Tended by a Girl.

The most highly developed of machine tools is the automatic screw machine, and, like many another contrivance for saving labor, its home is New England. It is a development of the ordinary steel working lathe, the intermediate step being the monitor lathe, in which the various cutting tools protrude from the side of a steel turret like thirteen inch guns from a battleship turret. In the nonautomatic screw machine the turret is revolved by the operator so as to bring each tool into play, just as the turret on the old Monitor was revolved to bring one gun after another into action. But in the automatic machine the work is done without human guidance.

In making screws, nuts, bolts, studs and other small pieces that must be turned, drilled or threaded for watches, clocks, typewriters, electrical instruments and other mechanisms all the operator has to do is to feed the "stock"—a long, thin rod of steel or brass—to the machine. The feeding mechanism carries the rod slowly forward into the field of action. The turret advances and puts its first tool at work on the end of the rod. When this tool has done its task, the turret withdraws it, turns and advances a second tool into action. Each cutting tool around the turret has its distinct work to perform—one cutting a thread, another shaping a head, another putting on a point, another drilling a hole, still another putting on knurling. The turret automatically brings each of perhaps six tools into action, and when the work is finished the completed screw drops into a pan, while the "stock" is automatically fed forward to begin the complex operation again. A stream of machine oil pours continuously on the work to carry away the heat, and the little metal cuttings collect in a heap under the machine.

Hour after hour this wonderful automaton goes through its cycle of operations, the turret clicking every moment as it brings a new tool forward. Small brass pieces, on which but one tool cuts, are dropped at the rate of four a second. Large screws of complicated design upon which a whole turretful of tools must work are cut from a steel rod at the rate of one or two a minute. So perfectly are these screw machines constructed that an unskilled workman can operate a row of them. All he is required to do is to keep them fed with "stock." In some shops girls tend the machines.—Success.

Effective, but Dangerous.

To cleanse glass vases, carafes or bottles of any sort nothing is better than a little muriatic acid. A tablespoonful rinsed slowly around in a vase or decanter will cleanse it thoroughly, removing from the glass every particle of foreign matter. The acid can then be poured into another vase to perform the same office and even then returned to the bottle of supply for service on another occasion. After the acid is out of the vase or bottle the latter must be rinsed inside thoroughly first with hot soapsuds and then in several clear waters. Muratic acid is a deadly poison and must be used with great caution and only by an intelligent adult. A child or servant should never be intrusted with its use.—New York Post.

Paper Hunting.

One of the most exciting of all riding games is paper hunting, or following a trail made by dropping pieces of paper. It can be made as dangerous as steeplechasing or no more so than an ordinary gallop over the fields. The danger is in the fences to be ridden over, says Country Life In America. There is no limit to the pace but the speed of the leading horse and the necessity of keeping the trail. The "hare," as the man a-horseback who lays the trail is called, is expected to foil his pursuers, the "hounds," as often as he can by the arts of the fox or by his own ingenuity, only restricted by certain rules of the game.

G. C. Clemens, of Topeka, Kan., the noted constitutional lawyer, who bears so striking a resemblance to Mark Twain, (Samuel B. Clemens) that he is frequently taken for the original Mark, is a man of deep intellect and wide experience. He is considered one of the foremost lawyers in this country. In a recent letter to the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Mr. Clemens says:

* * "Personal experience and observation have thoroughly satisfied me that Dr. Miles' Nervine contains true merit, and is excellent for what it is recommended."

Mr. Norman Waltrip, Sup. Pres. Bankers' Fraternal Society, Chicago, says:

Dr. Miles' Pain Pills

are invaluable for headache and all pain. I had been a great sufferer from headache until I learned of the efficacy of Dr. Miles' Pain Pills. Now I always carry them and prevent recurring attacks by taking a pill when the symptoms first appear."

A Genius.

Small Son—I know what I'll be when I grow up—I'm going to be a great inventor.

Papa—That's encouraging, certainly. What makes you think you have inventive genius?

Small Son—Why, I wanted to take a screw out and I couldn't find a screwdriver, so I unscrewed it with your razor.—Short Stories.

A Wonder.

An advertisement was inserted for some one to take charge of the choir and play the organ at a village church. The following was among the replies: "Sir—I noticed your advertisement for an organist and music teacher, either lady or gentleman. Having been both for several years, I offer you my services."

Beauty is More Than Skin Deep.

Beauty depends more upon the condition of the liver and blood than anything else. A bad liver means a yellow, dark, muddy complexion, and bad blood means pimples, black heads and other skin eruptions which always detracts from otherwise pretty features. Without a healthy liver and good blood beauty is impossible. Wright's Celery Tea, a harmless, vegetable compound from natures own store house which acts directly upon the blood, nerves, liver and stomach, promoting a healthy digestion, creating new, rich, red corpuscles in the blood and stimulating the liver to a healthy activity, will impart a freshness, clearness and brilliancy to the complexion equal to that of youth. At all druggists, 25c and 50c.

THE PUBLICATION OF MODERN ELOQUENCE (Ten Handsome Library Volumes) is an event of premier importance. For the first time the best After-Dinner Speeches, Lectures, Addresses, Anecdotes, Reminiscences and Repartee of America's and England's most brilliant men have been selected—edited—arranged—by an editorial board of men, themselves eloquent with word and pen—men who have achieved eminence in varied fields of activity.

These gems of spoken thought were fugitive from lack of proper preservative means, until the Hon. Thomas B. Reed, upon voluntarily retiring from the Speakership of the House of Representatives, gathered about him these men of mark and experience in literature, his friends and co-workers in other fields, and began the task of preparing this great work.

North, East, South and West, and the Mother Country as well, have been searched for gems in every field of eloquence.

Here was a lecture that had wrought upon the very souls of great audiences; there an after-dinner speech, which "between the lines" was freighted with the destinies of nations. Here was an eulogy expressing in few but virile words the love, the honor and the tears of millions; and there an address pregnant with the fruits of a strenuous life's work. Or, perchance, a reminiscence, keen, scintillant repartee, or a story, potent in significance, and aflame with human interest. Matter there was in abundance, for English-speaking peoples are eloquent, but the best, only the best, the great, the brilliant, the worthy to endure, has been the guiding rule of Mr. Reed and his colleagues. Their editorial labors have been immense.

While libraries and musty files were being delved into in a hundred places—while famous men were putting into manuscript their brain children—while reminiscence, repartee and story were being reduced to type, and speeches, addresses, and lectures, which money could not buy, were in friendship's name being offered, Mr. Reed was preparing for this work, his most ambitious contribution to literature—his piece de resistance—"The Influence and the History of Oratory." Prof. Lorenzo Sears, beloved and honored in many lands for his critical and contributory work in literature, was writing "The History of After-Dinner Speaking." So with Champ Clark, Edward Everett Hale, Senator Dolliver, and Hamilton Wright Mabie—each was producing a special contribution, which of itself is a gem of thought, a monument to research, study, and observant experience.

Whatever the viewpoint, this work is without precedent. It has no predecessor, no competitor. Speeches that have been flashed across continents, lectures that have been repeated over and over again to never-tiring audiences (but never published), addresses that made famous the man, the time, and the place—these are brought together for the first time, and with them a large number of the wittiest sayings of the wittiest men of the nineteenth century.

For an hour—for a whole evening in the easy chair at home—for the study of style and diction that have electrified brilliant assemblies, for the man ambitious to become a successful or popular public speaker, and for the one who has to prepare a toast or an address, this work is a never-failing source of charm and inspiration. Nor is this solely "a man's work." "The tenderest tribute to woman I have ever read," said Senator Dolliver when he read the manuscript of Joseph Choate's after-dinner speech, "The Pilgrim Mothers."

ATTRACTIONS MANY AT COMING FAIR

LARGE PURSES ARE OFFERED

For the Several Races And Other Features Will Make the Event Most Interesting—The Program for the Four Days.

The first tri-state agricultural fair to be held at Columbian park Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, October 13, 14, 15 and 16, is being looked forward to with much interest. There is every reason to believe that it will be a great success.

It follows the four days' fair at Steubenville and much of its success depends on the success of that. If the Steubenville fair draws a big crowd Columbian park will undoubtedly follow suit. The horses entered at Steubenville will be here and the stocks will also be transported to the park. Several thousand dollars are to be given away as premiums and there promises to be much competition. The competition for premiums will be open to the world.

Mayor Davidson states that games of chuck-a-luck, roulette wheels, wheels of fortune etc., will positively not be allowed to operate in the park. This will meet with the hearty approval of all citizens. It is the exhibition they want to attend and they do not want to be swindled.

The police protection will be of the best. A large number of the blue coats have already been engaged and given their orders. Nearly every local horse of any fame will be entered in the races and numerous horses from abroad have up to date been registered. The running races will bring horses from all parts of the state.

The following is the speed program:

First day.—Gentlemen's road race, purse $25. No horse eligible to this class that has ever won better than entrance money in a race or that has a record better than 2:59¼. 2:40 trot, stake $2000; 2:15 pacing, stake $1,000; running race, ½ mile and repeat, $100; 2:40 pacing, $200.

Premiums will be given for the best appearing and best bred draught horses, geldings, mares, and a $10 prize to the man having the largest display of horses of any age.

Cattle, sheep, swine, chickens, turkeys, geese, ducks, guineas, pea fowls, all fruits, grains and vegetables, farming implements, machinery and vehicles, bread, cake, butter, preserves, jellies, floral displays, manufactures, fancy work, and many things under a special department will be exhibited for handsome premiums. Five great attractions are to be given each day of the fair. Max and Rex, the wonderful dog drivers, will drive Nan Wilkes, 2:27, and Humming Bird, 2:22, in a race.

THE PRESIDENT MAY USE CLUB ON COAL ROADS

OPERATORS SAID "NO" TO MITCHELL'S OFFER

He Proposed, if Parties Couldn't Agree, to Have a Tribunal Appointed by the President Settle the Strike.

PUBLIC VIEW PRESIDENT'S CHIEF RESOURCE AS TO BOTH.

Suggestion Was Made In Administration Circles, Though Not Coming From the President, That Result of Conference Would AROUSE AND CONCENTRATE PUBLIC SENTIMENT—Operators Called Upon the President to Interfere by SENDING TROOPS to the Anthracite Region, if the Governor of Pennsylvania Failed to Suppress Lawlessness. Also Asked the President to INVOKE ACTION OF THE UNITED STATES COURTS—Made Fearful Charges of Lawlessness and Crime Against United Mine Workers—REFUSED TO TREAT WITH MITCHELL—Wanted COMMON PLEAS JUDGES In Pennsylvania Districts Where Collieries Are Located to ARBITRATE — MITCHELL DECLINED—DENIED MINERS ENTIRELY TO BLAME FOR LAWLESSNESS.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The suggestion was made in administration circles last night, though not as coming from the president, that the result of the coal conference had been to AROUSE AND CONCENTRATE PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

One of the president's advisers who was seen intimated that some consideration had been given before the conference to the question of the future course of the administration in the event either party refused absolutely to do anything toward a settlement. He intimated that there was a possibility the INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION MIGHT BE ABLE TO TAKE SOME STEPS WITH RESPECT TO CARRYING CHARGES ON THE ANTHRACITE COAL ROADS. STILL PUBLIC SENTIMENT, HE ADDED, WAS THE CHIEF RESOURCE OF THE PRESIDENT AS TO BOTH PARTIES TO THE STRIKE.

It was anounced at the White House last night that the PRESIDENT HAD NO COMMENT TO MAKE on yesterday's conference.

Operators Said Would Retard.

Stipulating that they should not be quoted the operators talked quite freely of the conference after leaving the White House.

Several of them declared the interference of the president had resulted to retarding rather than forwarding the settlement. They asserted that no progress had been made and said they would return to continue the contest. They declared that the situation was most serious as to coal supply, but said that coal would be furnished to the public, and that if given protection they could get men to mine coal to at least 70 per cent of their capacity. They declared there would be no compromise and that the strike would continue until the MINERS SUCCUMB. They asserted their determination to make no concessions further than the offers already made.

Mitchell Said Strike Would Continue.

During last evening President Mitchell, of the mine workers' union, dictated a formal statement concerning the proceedings of the conference and its results, in which he announced that the STRIKE WOULD CONTINUE AS A RESULT OF THE FAILURE OF THE CONFERENCE.

He concluded his statement as follows:

THE PRESIDENT EXPRESSED THE HOPE THAT THERE WOULD BE NO LAWLESSNESS IN THE COAL FIELDS AND THE REPRESENTATIVES OF THE MINERS ASSURED HIM THAT THEIR EVERY EFFORT WOULD BE EXERTED TO MAINTAIN PEACE.

The conference yesterday was a failure.

Apparently the rock upon which the conference split was recognition of the miners' union. The president had urged the contending parties to cease strife in the interests of the public welfare; the miners, through the president of their union, expressed a willingness to submit differences to arbitration of a tribunal to be named by the president and to enter into an agreement to abide by terms fixed by the arbitration for a period of from one to five years, and the employers, through the presidents of the railroad and coal companies and a leading independent mine operator, had squarely refused arbitration, had DENOUNCED THE MINERS' LABOR ORGANIZATION AS A LAWLESS AND ANARCHISTIC BODY, with which they could and would have no dealings; had DEMANDED FEDERAL TROOPS to insure complete protection to workers and their families in the mining region and court proceedings against the miners' union, and had offered if the men returned to work to SUBMIT GRIEVANCES AT INDIVIDUAL COLLIERIES TO THE DECISION OF THE JUDGES OF THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS for the districts of Pennsylvania in which the collieries are located. There the matter closed.

Each said at a late hour last night that the STRUGGLE WILL CONTINUE.

A statement was issued at the temporary White House last night, which, in part, named those present, who, besides the president, operators and miners' representatives, were Attorney General Knox, Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of labor, and Secretary Cortelyou.

The president made a statement, as follows:

President Appeals For Settlement.

I wish to call your attention to the fact that there are three parties affected by the situation in the anthracite trade: The operators, the miners and the general public. I speak for neither the operators nor the miners, but for the general public. The questions at issue which led to the situation affect immediately the parties concerned—the operators and the miners—but the situation itself vitally affects the public. As long as there seemed to be a reasonable hope that these matters could be adjusted between the parties, it did not seem proper to me to intervene in any way. I disclaim any right or duty to intervene in this way upon legal grounds or upon any official relation that I bear to the situation; but the urgency and the terrible nature of the catastrophe impending over a large portion of our people in the shape of a winter fuel famine impel me after much anxious thought to believe that my duty requires me to use whatever influence I personally can to bring to an end a situation which has become literally intolerable. I wish to emphasize the character of the situation and to say that its gravity is such that I am constrained urgently to insist that each one of you realize the heavy burden of responsibility upon him. We are upon the threshold of winter, with an already existing coal famine, the future terrors of which we can hardly yet appreciate.

Evil Possibilities Appalling.

The evil possibilities are so far-reaching, so appalling, that it seems to me that you are not only justified in sinking, but required to sink, for the time being, any tenacity as to your respective claims in the matter at issue between you. In my judgment the situation imperatively requires that you meet upon the common plane of the necessities of the public. With all the earnestness there is in me I ask that there be an immediate resumption of operations in the coal mines in some such way as will without a day's unnecessary delay meet the crying needs of the people.

I do not invite a discussion of your respective claims and positions. I appeal to your patriotism, to the spirit that sinks personal considerations and makes individual sacrifices for the general good.

Mr. Mitchell then said:

Would Accept Tribunal's Decision.

Mr. President, I am much impressed with what you say. I am much impressed with the gravity of the situation. We feel that we are not responsible for this terrible state of affairs. We are willing to meet the gentlemen representing the coal operators to try to adjust our differences among ourselves. If we cannot adjust them that way, Mr. President, we are willing that you shall name a tribunal who shall determine the issues that have resulted in the strike, and if the gentlemen representing the operators will accept the award or decision of such a tribunal, the miners will willingly accept it, even if it is against their claims.

The president said:

Before considering what ought to be done I think it only just to both of you—both sides—and desirable from my standpoint, that you should have time to consider what I have stated as to the reasons for my getting you together, and I shall trespass so far upon your good nature as to ask that this interview cease now and that you come back at 3 o'clock. I should like you to think over what I have stated, not to decide now, but give it careful thought and return at 3 o'clock.

The conference then adjourned until 3 o'clock. Upon reassembling, Mr. Baer spoke as follows:

Mr. President, do we understand you correctly that we will be expected to answer the proposition submitted by Mr. Mitchell this morning?

The President—It will be a pleasure to me to hear any answer that you are willing to make.

Mr. Baer—I have prepared an answer.

Mr. Baer made the following statement:

Statement by Mr. George F. Baer, president of the Reading railroad:

To the President of the United States:

We understand your anxiety as forcibly expressed in the statement you read to us this morning to bring about "an immediate resumption of operations in the coal mines in some such was as will, without a day's unnecessary delay meet the crying needs of the people." We infer that you desired us to consider the offer of Mr. Mitchell, verbally made this morning, expressing and speaking for the United Mine Workers, to go back to work if you would appoint a commission to determine the questions at issue.

You distinctly say that you "do not invite a discussion of your respective claims and positions." But we assume that a statement of what is going on in the coal regions will not be irrelevent. We represent the owners of coal mines in Pennsylvania. There are from 15,000 to 20,000 men at work mining and preparing coal. They are abused, assaulted, injured and maltreated by the United Mine Workers. They can only work under the protection of armed guards. Thousands of other workmen are deterred from working by the intimidation, violence and crimes inaugurated by the United Mine Workers, over whom John Mitchell, whom you invited to meet you, is chief.

Reign of Lawlessness In Region.

I need not picture the daily crimes committed by the members of this organization. The "domestic tranquility" which every constitution declares is the chief object of government does not exist in the coal regions. There is a terrible reign of lawlessness and crime there. Only the lives and property of the members of the secret oath bound order which declared that the locals should have "full power to suspend operations at collieries" until the non-union men joined their order, are safe. Every effort is made to prevent the mining of coal, and when mined, Mitchell's men dynamite bridges and tracks, mob train men and by all manner of violence try to prevent its shipment to relieve the public.

The constitution of Pennsylvania guarantees "protection to life and property." In express terms it declares the right of acquiring, possessing and defending property "to be inalienable." When riot and anarchy too great to be appeased by the civil power occur, the governor of Pennsylvania is bound to call out the state troops to suppress it. He must fearlessly use the whole power of the state to protect life and property and to establish peace—not an armed truce, but the peace of the law which protects every man at work and going to and from work. He has sent troops to the coal regions. Gradually the power of the law is asserting itself. Unless encouraged by false hopes, order will soon be restored, and then we can mine coal to meet the public wants. If the power of Pennsylvania is insufficient to re-establish the reign of law, the constitution of the United States requires the president, when requested by the legislature and the government, "to suppress domestic violence." You see there is a lawful way to secure coal for the public.

Shouldn't Treat With Fomenters.

The duty of the hour is not to waste time negotiating with the fomenters of this anarchy and insolent defiance of law, but to do as was done in the war of the rebellion, restore the majesty of law, the only guardian of a free people, and to re-establish order and peace at any cost.

The government is a contemptible failure if it can only protect the lives and property, and secure the comfort of the people by compromising with the violators of law and the instigators of violence and crime.

Just now it is more important to teach ignorant men, dwelling among us, misled and used as tools by citizens of other states, that at whatever cost and inconvenience to the public Pennsylvania will use the whole power of government to protect not only the man who wants to work, but his wife and children while he is at work, and to punish every man who by instigation or by overt acts attempts to deprive any man of his liberty to work.

Propose Local Judges as Arbitrators.

Under these conditions we decline to accept Mr. Mitchell's considerate offer to let our men work on terms he names. He has no right to come from Illinois to dictate terms, on the acceptance of which anarchy and crime shall cease in Pennsylvania. He must stop his people from killing, maiming and abusing Pennsylvania citizens and from destroying property. He must stop it because it is unlawful and not because of any bargain with us.

We will tdd to our offer "to continue the wages existing at the time of strike and to take up at each colliery and adjust any grievance," this further condition—if the employers and employes at any particular colliery cannot reach a satisfactory adjustment of any alleged grievances, it shall be referred to the judges of the court of common pleas of the district in which the colliery is situated for final determination.

(Signed) GEORGE F. BAER,
President Philadelphia and Reading Iron and Coal Company and Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal and Iron Company and Temple Iron Company.

The following is the text of the statement made to the president by the official representatives of the miners' union:

Statement of Miners' Leader.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3, 1902.

Mr. President:

At the conference this morning, we, the accredited representatives of the anthracite coal mine workers, were much impressed with the views you expressed and the dangers to the welfare of our country from a prolongation of the coal strike that you so clearly pointed out. Conscious of the responsibility resting upon us, con-

ATTRACTIONS MANY AT COMING FAIR

LARGE PURSES ARE OFFERED

For the Several Races And Other Features Will Make the Event Most Interesting—The Program for the Four Days.

The first tri-state agricultural fair to be held at Columbian park Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, October 13, 14, 15 and 16, is being looked forward to with much interest. There is every reason to believe that it will be a great success.

It follows the four days' fair at Steubenville and much of its success depends on the success of that. If the Steubenville fair draws a big crowd Columbian park will undoubtedly follow suit. The horses entered at Steubenville will be here and the stocks will also be transported to the park. Several thousand dollars are to be given away as premiums and there promises to be much competition. The competition for premiums will be open to the world.

Mayor Davidson states that games of chuck-a-luck, roulette wheels, wheels of fortune, etc., will positively not be allowed to operate in the park. This will meet with the hearty approval of all citizens. It is the exhibition they want to attend and they do not want to be swindled.

The police protection will be of the best. A large number of the blue coats have already been engaged and given their orders. Nearly every local horse of any fame will be entered in the races and numerous horses from abroad have up to date been registered. The running races will bring horses from all parts of the state.

The following is the speed program:

First day.—Gentlemen's road race, purse $25. No horse eligible to this class that has ever won better than entrance money in a race or that has a record better than 2:59¼. 2:40 trot, stake $2000; 2:16 pacing, stake $1,000; running race, ½ mile and repeat, $100; 2:40 pacing, $200.

Second day.—2:40 pace, stake $200; 2:25 pacing, stake $500; 2:24 trotting, stake, $1,000; running race, ¾ mile and repeat, $100.

Third day.—2:27 trot, purse, $250; 2:17 trotting, stake $500; 2:22 pacing, stake $1,000; runing race, ¾ mile and repeat, $100.

Fourth day.—Free for all trot, purse, $400; 2:20 pace, $250; 2:30 pacing, stake, $200; 2:11 pacing stake $1,000; runing race, mile and repeat, $100.

Premiums will be given for the best appearing and best bred draught horses, geldings, mares, and a $10 prize to the man having the largest display of horses of any age.

Cattle, sheep, swine, chickens, turkeys, geese, ducks, guineas, pea fowls, all fruits, grains and vegetables, farming implements, machinery and vehicles, bread, cake, butter, preserves, jellies, floral displays, manufactures, fancy work, and many things under a special department will be exhibited for handsome premiums. Five great attractions are to be given each day of the fair. Max and Rex, the wonderful dog drivers, will drive Nan Wilkes, 2:25, and Humming Bird, 2:22, in a race.

Also Asked the President to INVOKE ACTION OF THE UNITED STATES COURTS—Made Fearful Charges of Lawlessness and Crime Against United Mine Workers—REFUSED TO TREAT WITH MITCHELL—Wanted COMMON PLEAS JUDGES In Pennsylvania Districts Where Collieries Are Located to ARBITRATE — MITCHELL DECLINED—DENIED MINERS ENTIRELY TO BLAME FOR LAWLESSNESS.

Washington, Oct. 4.—The suggestion was made in administration circles last night, though not as coming from the president, that the result of the coal conference had been to AROUSE AND CONCENTRATE PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

One of the president's advisers who was seen intimated that some consideration had been given before the conference to the question of the future course of the administration in the event either party refused absolutely to do anything toward a settlement. He intimated that there was a possibility the INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION MIGHT BE ABLE TO TAKE SOME STEPS WITH RESPECT TO CARRYING CHARGES ON THE ANTHRACITE COAL ROADS. STILL PUBLIC SENTIMENT, HE ADDED, WAS THE CHIEF RESOURCE OF THE PRESIDENT AS TO BOTH PARTIES TO THE STRIKE.

It was anounced at the White House last night that the PRESIDENT HAD NO COMMENT TO MAKE on yesterday's conference.

Operators Said Would Retard.

Stipulating that they should not be quoted the operators talked quite freely of the conference after leaving the White House.

Several of them declared the interference of the president had resulted in retarding rather than forwarding the settlement. They asserted that no progress had been made and said they would return to continue the contest. They declared that the situation was most serious as to coal supply, but said that coal would be furnished to the public, and that if given protection they could get men to mine coal to at least 70 per cent of their capacity. They declared there would be no compromise and that the strike would continue until the MINERS SUCCUMB. They asserted their determination to make no concessions further than the offers already made.

Mitchell Said Strike Would Continue.

During last evening President Mitchell, of the mine workers' union, dictated a formal statement concerning the proceedings of the conference and its results, in which he announced that the STRIKE WOULD CONTINUE AS A RESULT OF THE FAILURE OF THE CONFERENCE.

He concluded his statement as follows:

THE PRESIDENT EXPRESSED THE HOPE THAT THERE WOULD BE NO LAWLESSNESS IN THE COAL FIELDS AND THE REPRESENTATIVES OF THE MINERS ASSURED HIM THAT THEIR EVERY EFFORT WOULD BE EXERTED TO MAINTAIN PEACE.

The conference yesterday was a failure.

Apparently the rock upon which the conference split was recognition of the miners' union. The president had urged the contending parties to cease strife in the interests of the public welfare; the miners, through the president of their union, expressed a willingness to submit differences to arbitration of a tribunal to be named by the president and to enter into an agreement to abide by terms fixed by the arbitration for a period of from one to five years, and the employers, through the presidents of the railroad and coal companies and a leading independent mine operator, had squarely refused arbitration, had DENOUNCED THE MINERS' LABOR ORGANIZATION AS A LAWLESS AND ANARCHISTIC BODY, with which they could and would have no dealings; had DEMANDED FEDERAL TROOPS to insure complete protection to workers and their families in the mining region and court proceedings against the miners' union, and had offered if the men returned to work to SUBMIT GRIEVANCES AT INDIVIDUAL COLLIERIES TO THE DECISION OF THE JUDGES OF THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS for the districts of Pennsylvania in which the collieries are located. There the matter closed.

Each said at a late hour last night that the STRUGGLE WILL CONTINUE.

A statement was issued at the temporary White House last night, which, in part, named those present, who, besides the president, operators and miners' representatives, were Attorney General Knox, Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of labor, and Secretary Cortelyou.

The president made a statement, as follows:

President Appeals For Settlement.

I wish to call your attention to the fact that there are three parties affected by the situation in the anthracite trade: The operators, the miners and the general public. I speak for neither the operators nor the miners, but for the general public. The questions at issue which led to the situation affect immediately the parties concerned—the operators and the miners—but the situation itself vitally affects the public. As long as there seemed to be a reasonable hope that these matters could be adjusted between the parties, it did not seem proper to me to intervene in any way. I disclaim any right or duty to intervene in this way upon legal grounds or upon any official relation that I bear to the situation; but the urgency and the terrible nature of the catastrophe impending over a large portion of our people in the shape of a winter fuel famine impel me after much anxious thought to believe that my duty requires me to use whatever influence I personally can to bring to an end a situation which has become literally intolerable. I wish to emphasize the character of the situation and to say that its gravity is such that I am constrained urgently to insist that each one of you realize the heavy burden of responsibility upon him. We are upon the threshold of winter, with an already existing coal famine, the future terrors of which we can hardly yet appreciate.

Evil Possibilities Appalling.

The evil possibilities are so far-reaching, so appalling, that it seems to me that you are not only justified in sinking, but required to sink, for the time being, any tenacity as to your respective claims in the matter at issue between you. In my judgment the situation imperatively requires that you meet upon the common plane of the necessities of the public. With all the earnestness there is in me I ask that there be an immediate resumption of operations in the coal mines in some such way as will without a day's unnecessary delay meet the crying needs of the people.

I do not invite a discussion of your respective claims and positions. I appeal to your patriotism, to the spirit that sinks personal considerations and makes individual sacrifices for the general good.

Mr. Mitchell then said:

Would Accept Tribunal's Decision.

Mr. President, I am much impressed with what you say. I am much impressed with the gravity of the situation. We feel that we are not responsible for this terrible state of affairs. We are willing to meet the gentlemen representing the coal operators to try to adjust our differences among ourselves. If we cannot adjust them that way, Mr. President, we are willing that you shall name a tribunal who shall determine the issues that have resulted in the strike, and if the gentlemen representing the operators will accept the award or decision of such a tribunal, the miners will willingly accept it, even if it is against their claims.

The president said:

Before considering what ought to be done I think it only just to both of you—both sides—and desirable from my standpoint, that you should have time to consider what I have stated as to the reasons for my getting you together, and I shall trespass so far upon your good nature as to ask that this interview cease now and that you come back at 3 o'clock. I should like you to think over what I have stated, not to decide now, but give it careful thought and return at 3 o'clock.

The conference then adjourned until 3 o'clock. Upon reassembling, Mr. Baer spoke as follows:

Mr. President, do we understand you correctly that we will be expected to answer the proposition submitted by Mr. Mitchell this morning?

The President—It will be a pleasure to me to hear any answer that you are willing to make.

Mr. Baer—I have prepared an answer.

Mr. Baer made the following statement:

Statement by Mr. George F. Baer, president of the Reading railroad:

To the President of the United States:

We understand your anxiety as forcibly expressed in the statement you read to us this morning to bring about "an immediate resumption of operations in the coal mines in some such was as will, without a day's unnecessary delay meet the crying needs of the people." We infer that you desired us to consider the offer of Mr. Mitchell, verbally made this morning, expressing and speaking for the United Mine Workers, to go back to work if you would appoint a commission to determine the questions at issue.

You distinctly say that you "do not invite a discussion of your respective claims and positions." But we assume that a statement of what is going on in the coal regions will not be irrelevent. We represent the owners of coal mines in Pennsylvania. There are from 15,000 to 20,000 men at work mining and preparing coal. They are abused, assaulted, injured and maltreated by the United Mine Workers. They can only work under the protection of armed guards. Thousands of other workmen are deterred from working by the intimidation, violence and crimes inaugurated by the United Mine Workers, over whom John Mitchell, whom you invited to meet you, is chief.

Reign of Lawlessness In Region.

I need not picture the daily crimes committed by the members of this organization. The "domestic tranquility" which every constitution declares is the chief object of government does not exist in the coal regions. There is a terrible reign of lawlessness and crime there. Only the lives and property of the members of the secret oath bound order which declared that the locals should have "full power to suspend operations at collieries" until the non-union men joined their order, are safe. Every effort is made to prevent the mining of coal, and when mined, Mitchell's men dynamite bridges and tracks, mob train men and by all manner of violence try to prevent its shipment to relieve the public.

The constitution of Pennsylvania guarantees "protection to life and property." In express terms it declares the right of acquiring, possessing and defending property "to be inalienable." When riot and anarchy too great to be appeased by the civil power occur, the governor of Pennsylvania is bound to call out the state troops to suppress it. He must fearlessly use the whole power of the state to protect life and property and to establish peace—not an armed truce, but the peace of the law which protects every man at work and going to and from work. He has sent troops to the coal regions. Gradually the power of the law is asserting itself. Unless encouraged by false hopes, order will soon be restored, and then we can mine coal to meet the public wants. If the power of Pennsylvania is insufficient to re-establish the reign of law, the constitution of the United States requires the president, when requested by the legislature and the government, "to suppress domestic violence." You see there is a lawful way to secure coal for the public.

Shouldn't Treat With Fomenters.

The duty of the hour is not to waste time negotiating with the fomenters of this anarchy and insolent defiance of law, but to do as was done in the war of the rebellion, restore the majesty of law, the only guardian of a free people, and to re-establish order and peace at any cost.

The government is a contemptible failure if it can only protect the lives and property, and secure the comfort of the people by compromising with the violators of law and the instigators of violence and crime.

Just now it is more important to teach ignorant men, dwelling among us, misled and used as tools by citizens of other states, that at whatever cost and inconvenience to the public Pennsylvania will use the whole power of government to protect not only the man who wants to work, but his wife and children while he is at work, and to punish every man who by instigation or by overt acts attempts to deprive any man of his liberty to work.

Propose Local Judges as Arbitrators.

Under these conditions we decline to accept Mr. Mitchell's considerate offer to let our men work on terms he names. He has no right to come from Illinois to dictate terms, on the acceptance of which anarchy and crime shall cease in Pennsylvania. He must stop his people from killing, maiming and abusing Pennsylvania citizens and from destroying property. He must stop it because it is unlawful and not because of any bargain with us.

We will tdd to our offer "to continue the wages existing at the time of strike and to take up at each colliery and adjust any grievance," this further condition—if the employers and employes at any particular colliery cannot reach a satisfactory adjustment of any alleged grievances, it shall be referred to the judges of the court of common pleas of the district in which the colliery is situated for final determination.

(Signed) GEORGE F. BAER,
President Philadelphia and Reading Iron and Coal Company and Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal and Iron Company and Temple Iron Company.

The following is the text of the statement made to the president by the official representatives of the miners' union:

Statement of Miners' Leader.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 3, 1902.

Mr. President:

At the conference this morning, we, the accredited representatives of the anthracite coal mine workers, were much impressed with the views you expressed and the dangers to the welfare of our country from a prolongation of the coal strike that you so clearly pointed out. Conscious of the responsibility resting upon us, conscious of our duty to society, conscious of our obligatins to the 150,000 mine wrkers whom we have the honor to represent, we have, after most careful consideration and with the hope of relieving the situation and averting the sufferings and hardship which would inevitably follow in the wake of a coal famine, decided to propose a resumption of coal mining upon the lines hereinafter suggested.

Before doing so, Mr. President, we desire to say that we are not prompted to suggest this course because of any doubts of justice of our claims. In deferring to your wishes we are prompted by no fear on our part of our ability to continue the contest to a successful issue, thanks to the generous assistance rendered us by our fellow workers in this and other lands; thanks to the justice loving American public, whose sympathies are always on the side of right, we are able to continue the struggle indefinitely. But, confident of our ability to demonstrate to any impartial tribunal the equity of our demands for higher wages and improved environment, we propose that the issues culminating in this strike shall be referred to you and a tribunal of your own selection, and agree to accept our award upon all or any of the questions involved. If you will accept this responsibility, and if the representatives of the coal operators will signify their willingness to have your decision incorporated in an agreement for not less than one year or more than five years, as may be mutually determined by themselves and the anthracite coal mine workers, and will pay the scale of wages which you and the tribunal appointed by you shall award, we will immediately call a convention and recommend a resumption of work, upon the understanding that the wages which shall be paid are to go into effect from the day upon which work is resumed.

Very respectfully yours,
JOHN MITCHELL,
President U. M. W. of A.
JOHN FAHY,
THOMAS DUFFY,
D. D. NICHOLLS,
District Presidents U. M. W. of A.

The statement of President Thomas followed much the same lines as that of Mr. Baer, as did that of Mr. Markle. In part, the latter said:

Markle Demands President Interfere.

I fully endorse these remarks from you, and as an American citizen and a citizen of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, I now ask you to perform the duties vested in you as the president of the United States, to at once squelch the anarchistic condition of affairs existing in the anthracite regions by the strong arm of the military at your command. A record of 21 murders, a long list of brutal assaults, houses and bridges dynamited, daily acts of violence now taking place, and several washeries burned down, are actual evidence of this condition of lawlessness existing there. Are you asking us to deal with a set of outlaws? I can hardly conceive of such a thought.

Please remember, Mr. President, that there is a large idle class of men now in the anthracite coal fields, taking every kind of unlawful act to prevent those who desire to work to relieve the situation in the anthracite coal market. Please remember that in the field now are only 3,000 national guard; please remember that the total national guard of the state of Pennsylvania is only about 10,000

Mr. President, a condition exists, not a theory, in the anthracite coal fields between a set of professional agitators and their co-workers on the one side (anarchistic in their acts) and the operators and a majority of the working men on the other, who are endeavoring to relieve the seriousness of the anthracite coal situation. You, Mr. President, I believe, can relieve the situation at once. Will you do it?

Truesdale Asks Government Action.

Mr. Truesdale said in part:

It is first and foremost our duty, and we take this occasion to state and press it upon your consideration and through you upon that of the authorities of the state of Pennsylvania, to insist upon it tnat the existing conditions of anarchy and lawlessness, of riot and rapine, a condition which has been raging with more or less violence throughout the anthracite regions during the past five months, be immediately and permanently suppressed. That to this end we ask that the entire authority and power of the state of Pennsylvania, civil and military, and, if needs be, that of the United States government as well, be exercised forthwith.

Second, we ask that the civil branch of the United States government, taking cognizance of and following the decisions of its courts rendered in litigation growing out of previous similar conditions, at once institute proceedings against the illegal organization known as the United Mine Workers' organization, its well-known officers, agents and members, to enjoin and restrain permanently it and them from continuing this organization and requiring them to desist immediately from conspiracy, conniving, aiding or abetting the outlawry and intolerable conditions in the anthracite regions, for which they, and they alone, are responsible. We are advised by our counsel that such civil action will lie on the part of the United States government, as it is well known that United States statutes are daily, openly and grossly violated; that previous decisions of the courts justify fully such action being taken at this time; and that ample remedy can be given immediately and effectively for existing conditions.

Serious Charges Against Strikers.

Third—Then, Mr. President, there is a great, a pressing, duty imposed upon us at this time to thousands of true loyal citizens of Pennsylvania, who have been lawfully pursuing their various avocations or professions under great difficulties, and who, with great sacrifice, have been abused, villified, boycotted and in many cases almost ruined, because they had the manhood to raise their voices against the illegal acts and violences of this illegal organization and its officers and agents. No step can be taken by us, Mr. President, which can possibly result in placing these good citizens of Pennsylvania at the further mercy of this illegal organization, its officers and members. Think of it, Mr. President, physicians have been threatened and boycotted because they saw fit to minister to the dying child of some poor worker, because he was exercising his God-given right to labor for his family and to provide for the wants of his dying child. Members of the clergy have been treated likewise for performing the offices of the dead to the member of a family of a non-union worker.

Fourth—Another duty, Mr. President, and we regard it as the most supreme. One-sixth of the membership of this illegal organization is composed of young men and boys between the ages of 14 and 20, the future citizens and lawmakers of the great state of Pennsylvania. These young men and boys during the past two years have had their young, immature minds poisoned with the most dangerous, anarchistic, distorted, wicked views and errors concerning the rights of citizenship and property that any one can possibly conceive of, all through the teachings and practice of the officers, organizers and apostles of the United Mine Workers' association. Mr. President, no adjustment of this matter can be thought of which by any possibility can result in further strengthening and fixing in the minds of this youthful element in the anthracite coal fields the belief that the teachings of this organization and its officers, with their acts and doings in support thereof, constitute the ethics and objects of American citizenship frequently referred to during the past weeks in proclamations issued in behalf of this illegal organization.

His Duty to Fight Its Teachings.

Fifth and finally, Mr. President, as a plain citizen of these United States, looking at the whole question broadly and with reference to its possible effect on our future welfare and prosperity, I think it my bounden duty to resist and combat with every power and faculty, both physical and mental, the avowed and evident object and purpose of this United Mine Workers' association, as exemplified in the anthracite district of Pennsylvania today and as taught and defended by its officers and other exponents of its well-known and so-called purposes and principles.

Mr. David Wilcox, vice president and general counsel of the Delaware and Hudson Railroad company, said in part:

The United Mine Workers of America is an association composed of a large number of miners and laborers engaged throughout the country in mining anthracite and bituminous coal and employed by the owners of the mines. It has divided the whole country into various districts, each of which is represented by a so-called president and embraces local unions, and it seeks to compel every one engaged in the industry to join the organization. The affairs of the organization are managed by an executive committee having its headquarters in Indianapolis and by conventions called from time to time representing the entire organization. The object and practice of the association are so far as possible to regulate the supply of labor engaged in the occupation of coal mining through the country and the terms of employment thereof. It thus consists of one central organization, which restrains and controls the production of fuel everywhere throughout the country and monopolizes the labor engaged therein. These are its purposes and results. Its ultimate object is to control the entire fuel supply of the country. At this hearing it is represented by one person, while six persons represent but a part of the production of anthracite coal. It is therefore the most extensive combination and monopoly which the country has ever known

Court Decisions Against Its Acts.

It habitually enforces its orders and directions by whatever means may be most effectual, including strikes, boycotts, picketing, besetting and the like, not confined to its own members alone, but in which are compelled to join as far as possible all other persons similarly employed. Its violent methods have already received the condemnation of the circuit court of the United States (Reinecke Co. vs Wood, 112 Fed rep. 478; United States vs Weber, 114 Fed rep. 950; United States vs Haggerty, 116 Fed rep. 510).

In accordance with these objects last May the United Mine Workers ordered a strike in the anthracite coal region, which extended to all the workings therein. Since that time it has been so far as possible forcing all persons who are willing to work to cease doing so. Within a few days one or more miners who had returned to work, having been formerly connected with the mine workers' association have been murdered by those acting in sympathy with the strike.

These facts show that the mine workers' association is not within the rules regarding ordinary local labor organizations. On the contrary, the association and all of its members constitute a combination or conspiracy, not only at common law, but also in restraint of trade and commerce among the several states, and also an attempt to monopolize the labor necessary in supplying coal found in one state to the markets of other states, and thus to monopolize this part of the commerce among the several states. The action had by said United Mine Workers has greatly injured the interstate business originating in the anthracite coal fields.

Restraining Interstate Commerce.

The courts have already many times held that such a combination is unlawful within the act of congress of July 2, 1890, passed for the purpose of preventing restraints of interstate commerce and known as the "Sherman act" (United States vs Counsil, 54 Fed. Rep. 994; 157 Fed. Rep. 85; Thomas vs Cincinnati Co., 62 Fed. Rep. 802, 803; United States vs Agler, 62 Fed. Rep. 824; U. S. vs Elliot, 62 Fed. Rep. 801; 64 Fed Rep. 27; Arthur vs Oakes, 63 Fed Rep. 310; in re Debs, 64 Fed. Rep. 724; Affd. 158 U. S. 564, 600; U. S. vs Trans-Missouri association, 166 U. S. 280, 343, 356). In addition to the circuit court of the United States for the western district of Virginia, upon March 25 last, held that this identical United Mine Workers association was illegal (U. S. vs Weber, 114 Fed. Rep. 950). The case comes clearly within the Debs case. That was an effort to organize a universal association of railroad employes, covering the whole country, for the purpose of controlling interstate commerce. The government instituted suit by injunction, and when the injunction was disobeyed enforced the same by the use of the United States army. This quickly disposed of the matter, and the action of the government was upheld by the courts (in re Debs, 64 Fed. Rep. 724, affd. 158 U. S. 564, 600).

The true couse for the national government is, therefore, to proceed in accordance with the precedent in the Debs case. These considerations were called to the attention of the president and the attorney general last June.

The anthracite coal companies are making every effort to mine coal as rapidly as possible. They are obstructed by the failure of the state authorities to fully protect those who desire to work for them and by the failure of the national government to enforce the statute under which the mine workers' association has been already held to be illegal. As soon as action of that sort is effectively taken there can be no doubt that the supply of coal will be ample.

Thomas P. Fowler, president New York, Ontario and Western Railway company, briefly stated that he supported the statements of the other operators, but later on would make a statement.

The president asked Mr. Mitchell if he had anything further to say.

Mr. Mitchell said:

Mitchell Denies Operators' Charges.

The charge made by the gentlemen that 20 murders have been committed in the anthracite coal regions during the present strike is untrue. If they will name the men and will show that they have committed the murders I will resign my position. That is a fair proposition. Mr. President, that is a fair example of how our organization and our people are maligned. The truth of the matter is, as far as I know, there have been seven deaths unfortunately. No one regrets them more than I do. Three of them were committed by the coal and iron police, and no one else has been charged with them. God knows the miners do not escape being charged with everything done there. They speak about burnings. There was a reward offered for burnings. I can bring affidavits of a hundred people if necessary that the lightning caused one burning that they charged to the United Mine Workers. Mr. President, I have admitted on more than one occasion that there has been some lawlessness, but I will say that a large portion of such lawlessness has been provoked by criminals who have been brought into the anthracite regions to recruit the coal and iron police. I want to say, Mr. President, that I feel very keenly the attacks made upon me and my people, but I came here with the intention of doing nothing and saying nothing that would affect reconciliation.

The Operators Said "NO."

The president then asked the representatives of the anthracite companies whether they would accept Mr. Mitchell's proposition. They answered "No." In response to a further question from the president they stated that they would have no dealings whatever with Mr. Mitchell looking toward a settlement of the question at issue, and that they had no other proposition to make save what was contained in the statement of Mr. Baer, which, in effect, was that if any man chose to resume work and had a difficulty with his employer, both should leave the settlement of the question to the judge of the court of common pleas in the district in which the mine was located.

At about 5 o'clock the conference was brought to a close without agreement.

The Burmese Game of Chess.

The Burmese game seems to be rather a heavy variety of chess, the peculiarity of it being that a pawn "queens" when it strikes an imaginary diagonal line drawn from the player's left hand corner to the right hand corner in front of him—his opponent's left hand corner. The pieces are massed on the player's right hand, but the three privileged pawns—there are only three allowed to "queen"—can only "queen" when the queen has been taken. We should say here that no piece equivalent to our queen really exisits in eastern chess, the most powerful piece being equivalent to our rook or castle.

In the Burmese game the privilege of translation confers no higher hand on a piece than that of "chekoy"—called queen in European equivalence by virtue of its being unique—a piece possessing scarcely more power than a pawn. The usual move of the piece called "queen" in all oriental varieties of chess is one square diagonally and it is never one of the superior pieces.—London Spectator.

A Plant 1,000 Years Old.

In the town of Hildersheim, Germany, is probably the most unique plant in the world. It is a rosebush 1,000 year old and sprouts from its branches have realized fabulous sums. Some years ago a rich Englishman offered $250,000 for this entire tree, but the sum was indignantly refused. This wonderful plant clings amid thickly grown moss against the side of the famous old Church of St. Michael. It is claimed that it has bloomed perennially since the days of King Alfred, and this statement has never been disputed, for its record has been as carefully kept as the pedigree of the bluest blooded family in the kingdom. It is supposed to have been discovered by some mysterious means through the medium of King Louis of Hildersheim as far back as 1032.

Do not abuse your rival in your advertisements. The majority of people always favor the abused.

A DOMESTIC DIFFICULTY.

The Solution Was Original, Though the Result Was Unhandy.

"Every time I tell this story," a bright society matron remarked, "somebody accuses me of making it up, but it is a true story nevertheless.

"Up in the Virginia mountains David and I took a long walk to explore the wild country road near our hotel. Away up on the rough mountain side was a little cabin, and as I have a most fervent human interest in the home life of all peoples remote from cities I proposed that we visit the cabin, with the wayfarers' usual pretext, to ask for a drink of water. In the one room of the small house were the usual furnishings, a few chairs, many dogs lying about, guns on the wall, a high bed in each corner and a homely table spread with homely crockery in the center of the household picture. A plain little woman, worn and aged, but very neat in calico frock and gingham apron, met us at the door and asked us in, while one of the rough boys lounging on the porch was dispatched to the spring for fresh water.

"Instead of the usual mountaineer's open fireplace, with iron crane and kettles, was a surprising arrangement of a cooking stove mounted on a kitchen table. My glance reverted to this curious sight so often that our mountain hostess seemed constrained to explain.

"'You uns ain't used to seein' cook stoves fixed up that way, I reckon,' she said apologetically. 'Pap, he got the cook stove down in town way las' May, and he didn' think 'bout the stovepipe, and he didn' git 'nuff to reach up to that there hole in the chimbly, so we uns jes' h'isted the cook stove up on that there table till he gits time to go to town and git some more stovepipe. 'Tain't handy to climb up on a cheer to cook, and I wish to the land pap'd hurry hisself and git to town arter that there stovepipe. It'd be a heap handier to hev that there cook stove down on the groun'.'

"Of course 'we uns' agreed with the good woman that her complaint was well based, but we praised her cleverness and originality in utilizing the kitchen table. Probably not one woman in 10,000,000 would have ever suggested that way out of the domestic difficulty."—Detroit Free Press.

Much In a Name.

An Englishman who has just returned from an extensive tour through the east tells a good story in which he was one of the principals.

He was one of a party at a banquet tendered to the maharajah of Patiala, at which nearly a hundred guests, representing nearly every branch of Indian life, were present. As a special guest he was seated on the left of the Indian potentate.

During the meal he noticed that the latter partook of some fine Cumberland ham, and, knowing that it was contrary to the Indian caste rules to eat any portion of a pig, he without a thought asked his highness how it was he was eating ham.

The maharajah looked at his plate, then, turning round to his body servant standing at the back of his chair, said:

"What am I eating?"

The servant instantly replied:

"Mutton, sahib." And without referring to the incident again the maharajah continued his meal.

After the banquet the Englishman related the incident to an Indian judge, and the latter said:

"If that servant had said 'ham,' he would have been headless before tomorrow morning. It is advisable not to notice caste rules when you are with natives of rank."—Pearson's.

Mother—Elsie, your sister tells me you took a second helping of pudding at Mrs. Brown's today.

Little Elsie—So I did, mamma.

"Do you think that was right, Elsie?"

"Yes. You know you have often told me not to contradict any one, and Mrs. Brown said, 'I know Elsie will have a second helping to pudding,' and I couldn't contradict her, could I?"—Washington Star.

Can Afford to Advertise.

A successful St. Louis merchant says that any man who can afford to open a store can afford to advertise. "Advertise," is his advice, "even if you can take but two inches of space in a leading newspaper. Fill your two inches in a way to make them a feature of the paper. Make your ad. a daily bulletin of your business, a news item from your store."—Philadelphia Record.

Change Your Ads.

The philosophy of changing your ads. frequently is very sound. Under the most favorable circumstances it takes time to get people to read your ads. If you change them frequently, the chances of attracting their attention are greatly increased.—Printers' Ink.

Maddening.

The wife of an Edinburgh journalist said to a young unmarried friend: "Fannie, take my advice and never marry a newspaper man."

"But your husband is a newspaper man, and you seem to get along very well."

"But we don't. Every evening he brings home a big bundle of newspapers from all over the country, and it nearly drives me crazy."

"How so?"

"I read about the bargain sales in London, Manchester and other places a hundred miles off, where I can't get to them."—Scottish American.

UP TO LAND OWNERS.

All Their Property Is Put In Jeopardy.

FARM AND TOWN ALIKE IN PERIL.

Tom Johnsonism Thrusts an Issue Into This Campaign Conflicting With All Past Democracy and Hostile to That Party's Antecedents.

Every farm owner in Ohio,. every holder of the least little lot of land for his humble home, finds himself confronted in this campaign with his right to that land threatened with a platform and leaders that would take it away altogether.

Private ownership in land is a crime, according to the doctrine that these men declare to be their real aim and ultimate purpose. The state must own and possess every particle of it, and no man, woman or child ever can or shall again own a single iota of land. Such is the thing actually aimed at.

Confiscation of it all would be the quickest way to get the land away from its present proprietors, who are only usurpers, according to the Henry George Theory, that Tom Johnson openly boasts to be the one thing that he aims at and is working for in the present campaign.

But, since confiscation would be too raw and radical a thing to try, or even to talk about openly yet, there are other ways of getting at the same result, that may prolong the agony, yet deprive private owners of their property. One sure way is to tax them to the full income value of the land, its rental, as George calls it. It would then revert to the state mighty quick, and that is just what Johnson and Bigelow are driving at under the disguise of the Democratic party in Ohio.

The Democracy as a party have not adopted this doctrine, but their Ohio leaders in the present campaign are working for it. They deny that it is "the single land tax," to use the universal phrase descriptive of the Henry George theory. With a quibble and a quirk they say that what they propose is "a tax upon land values," just as if the man whose real estate would thus be taken from him would care one whit whether it was a tax on the land, or a tax on the value of the land, or a tax that took away his entire income from it, or its rental, as they call it.

Just as Tom Johnson has dodged his tax to the tune of hundreds of thousands of dollars by tying up the Cuyahoga county auditor with an injunction from the United States court, so he dodges behind the Democratic party in this thing, and denies the principles that he professes. The most conspicuous supporter of Henry Georgeism, Johnson wiggles away from the plain words of Henry George, and denies them as brazenly as Peter denied his Master. But the exact words of George himself best tell the real, the undeniable, the ultimate outcome of the theories that Johnson does confess are the things that he aims at above all beside, and those words he can not dodge.

Nor can the Democratic party of Ohio dodge what Johnson wants. They brought him back from Brooklyn to be their mayor of Cleveland, when thousands of Cleveland Democrats refused to vote for him on the ground that he was a non-resident of Ohio. They have since by formal action of their state convention made him master of their party machinery. At that convention they acclaimed him as their next nominee for governor of Ohio, and their favorite son for the presidential nomination in 1904. All this time the party managers knew perfectly well that Henry Georgeism was Tom Johnson's only known fixed principle, for his absolute free trade ideas are part of that. They knew that they had no other excuse even for nominating H. S. Bigelow to head their state ticket this year than that Tom Johnson discovered him because they are both socialists and single taxers together.

Individual Democrats may express their disgust and dismay at this prostitution of their party platform and machinery by refusing their votes for these strange doctrines. Thousands of them will bolt Bigelow because of it. But the party managers went into this thing with their eyes wide open. They can not escape the lash when Johnson cracks the party whip, as he has been doing in Democratic counties in a way that Ohio never knew before. Such a surrender to socialism will arouse the resentment of every owner of the property that is jeopardized, and the multitudes whose homes are their all will be the men most angered by this attack.

We Will Stand by Our Soldiers and Our Flag.

General C. H. Grosvenor, in his speech to the Buckeye club at Columbus, said on the Philippine question: "Speaking for the Republicans in congress, I can say that we utterly refuse to abandon our obligations in those islands or to pledge ourselves what we will ultimately do with them. We will not run away from them; we will not cease to make war in them until in every one of them the American flag floats free and unvexed by a foe. We do not condemn the American soldier for the work he has done in them, but we will stand by the old army and the new army, the flag and the country, and fear not the puny assaults of the Democratic minority."

KISSING THE HAND.

The Practice Was Instituted by the Early Roman Rulers.

The practice of kissing the hands was instituted by the early Roman rulers as a mark of subjection as much as one of respect, and under the first Cæsar the custom was kept up, but only for a time.

These worthies conceived the idea that the proper homage due to their exalted station called for less familiar modes of obeisance, so the privilege of kissing the emperor's hand was reserved as a special mark of condescension or distinction for officers of high rank.

No such restriction, however, was placed on the emperors themselves, who, if they wished to confer signal honor on any of their subjects, kissed either the mouths or the eyes of those they wished specially to favor, the kiss generally intimating some promotion or personal satisfaction for some achievement.

Roman fathers considered the practice of kissing of so delicate a nature that they never kissed their wives in the presence of their daughters.

Then, too, only the nearest relatives were allowed to kiss their kindred of the gentler sex on the mouth, for in those days, as now, kissing was not a mere arbitrary sign, but it was the spontaneous language of the affections, especially that of love.

Under the Romans if a lover kissed his betrothed before marriage she inherited half of his worldly goods in the event of his death before the marriage ceremony, and if she died her heritage descended to her nearest relatives.

A PANTHER'S DEN.

Clean and Bright, In Decided Contrast to the Popular Idea.

It was my good fortune to discover the newly abandoned lair of a cougar family and further and to me new evidence of that fastidious cleanliness which is a marked characteristic of the animal. This retreat was not at all the typical "panther's den" of tradition, but a bush grown harborage under the edge of a rock with just enough of shelf to keep off the rain. I should not have found this breeding place but for a certain well gnawed array of bones scattered over a little smooth bench above a creek channel. From this boneyard there was a very traceable path leading through grass and brush to the retreat where the dam had housed her young. The evidence here told plainly of the cougar's long immunity from annoyance and attack and of a thoroughly cleanly habit of life. There was no bone or other sign of feasting about the lair. The dam had carried her kill to the creek bench in every instance, and the children had been called to the dining room. As bones which would have been crunched or eaten by grown animals had been perfectly cleaned by the kits I was able to judge of their summer's diet. This had consisted mostly of minor game, rabbits, marmots, grouse and the like, with an occasional small deer. At least one whole family of badgers, old and young, had been served, pussy having probably lain for them at their hole until they were all in.—Franklin Welles Calkins in Outing.

The Horse Is Useful Even If Dead.

The whale can be put to a great number of uses when dead, as can also the horse, the various parts of which are utilized as follows: Hair of mane and tail for haircloth, stuffing mattresses and making bags for crushing seed in oil mills, etc.; hide and skin tanned for leather for covering tables, etc.; tendons used for glue and gelatin; flesh for food for dogs, poultry and man; fat used for lamps, etc.; intestines used for covering sausages, making gut strings, etc.; heart and tongue for food; hoofs for gelatin, prussiate, fancy snuffboxes, etc.; bones for knife handles, phosphorus, superphosphate of lime and manure; blood for manure and shoes for reuse or for old iron.—Spare Moments.

In Suspense.

"So you don't know whether you want to go to work or not?"

"Well, suh," answered Mr. Erastus Pinkley, "I'd like de refusal ob de job a little while."

"But I need somebody right away."

"In dat case I'll have to let it go by. I'ze jes' bought a policy ticket, an' I'll hafter wait till aftuh de drawin' to see whether I'ze gwine to work at all or not."—Washington Star.

The Time Honored Spanker.

Once my sister Floy was sent on an errand for some things for my mother.

There was a traveling man there who was selling carpet spankers, and he asked her:

"Has your mother got one of these spankers?"

"No, sir," she replied.

"What does she use?" he asked.

"Her hand," was the prompt reply.—Chicago Chronicle.

Made His Mark.

"Hivens, Moike, th' eye av ye! Phat's the matther?"

"I sthruck a man yisterday an' he gave me a receipt for it."—Ohio State Journal.

His Favorite Remedy.

"Mamma," said Tommy, "does sugar ever cure anybody of anything?"

"Why do you ask, my boy?"

"I thought I'd like to catch it," said Tommy.

A Way She Has.

Inquisitive Neighbor—I hear that your sister is engaged. Is that true?

Small Boy—I dare say. She generally is.

It is every man's opinion that he would have been a great man had he lived fifty years ago.—Atchison Globe.

THE CHAMBERLAINS

FATHER AND SON, WHO ARE NOW IN BRITISH CABINET.

Many Points of Resemblance Between These Two—How They Have Created a Precedent In English Politics—Distinct Personalities.

When Mr. Balfour, premier of England, appointed J. Austen Chamberlain, son of Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, British secretary of state for the colonies, to the cabinet post of attorney general, he created a precedent in British politics. It is the first time in English history that father and son have sat in the cabinet simultaneously.

Joseph Austen Chamberlain is the eldest son of Joseph Chamberlain by his first wife and is now thirty-nine years old. His father first sent him to Rugby to make a man of him, then to Trinity college, Cambridge, to round off the corners, and after that to Paris and Berlin, so that he might learn the world. He was then made private secretary to his father. Thus he was able to get an inside view of British politics, so that ten years ago he was ready to represent the eastern division of Worcestershire in parliament. He made a good name as Liberal-Unionist whip and later as a civil lord of the admiralty. He was made financial secretary to the treasury in 1900.

In political circles in England it is said that the younger man's appointment to the post of attorney general was dictated by his father at the time Lord Salisbury turned over the reins of government to his nephew, Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, and that the new premier made the concession in order to gain the good will of the elder chamberlain.

Be that as it may, the younger Chamberlain is a pleasant, agreeable fellow of much real ability and of acknowledged great promise. He is a fluent speaker, with much of his father's sound common sense and all of his straightforwardness. His enemies accuse him of trading on his father's name. With his smooth shaven face, his monocle and his orchid in buttonhole, after the precise manner of his father, such a criticism is no more than natural. But he is really a man of strong individuality and quite unaffected. On the occasion of his maiden speech in the house of commons he was warmly congratulated by Mr. Gladstone.

In England today there is probably no one more conspicuous in politics

than Joseph Chamberlain, colonial secretary and the man who was responsible for the Boer war. Joe Chamberlain, as he is called, was born in London in 1836 of middle class parentage and left school when he was sixteen years of age to enter his father's business. The elder Chamberlain had established a manufactory of screws at Birmingham, and to this business the young man gave such close attention that twenty years later he was able to retire with a fortune of $200,000 a year. Since 1874 Joe Chamberlain has devoted his time to politics.

In 1888 he was sent to this country to negotiate a settlement of the fisheries complication. He became acquainted with Miss Endicott, daughter of Cleveland's secretary of war, and later in the same year he returned to marry her. Since then he has made several visits to this country.

His home is in the suburbs of Birmingham, where on an estate of seventy acres he has built a large and homelike residence. The notable feature of this place is the extensive orchid house, in which between 5,000 and 6,000 species of this rare and beautiful plant are grown.

Orchids are indeed Mr. Chamberlain's one weakness. He always appears in his seat in the house with an orchid in his buttonhole. He has no other particular amusement, is not fond of literature and takes no interest in horse racing or like sports. He is essentially a serious, hardworking man.

Austen Chamberlain's mother was the daughter of the late Archbishop Kenrick of Birmingham. Like his father, he takes life rather seriously, devoting his time to politics. As he is unmarried he makes his home with his father and his American stepmother.

His Sheepish Actions.

"Again," complains the devoted wife, "I have been told that you have been flirting with that odious Miss Mashem on the piazza."

"Bah!" retorts the gay husband, thinking to ridicule the suspicions of his wife. "Bah!" he repeats.

"It isn't so bad," asserts the wife, "for a man to be guilty, but what I detest is when he acts so sheepish about it."—Baltimore American.

Advertising Beats Salesmen.

J. B. Brooks, manager of the Blood Balm company of Atlanta, Ga., says:

"We do not employ traveling men, believing that newspaper advertising is more valuable than personal solicitation. We create a demand for our goods by advertising them extensively. The salaries we would have to pay traveling men we put into increased appropriations for advertising and find the results are more satisfactory."

Results From Advertising.

The benefit of advertising in the newspapers in a way to attract attention has been demonstrated anew in the case of a weekly publication in New York. Four years ago the subscribers did not number 50,000. Chiefly by means of display advertisements in the leading daily newspapers its circulation has been increased to 300,000. The ads. were striking and convincing.—Philadelphia Record.

The Community's Pulse.

The newspaper is the pulse of the community, and there isn't a better method for reaching the public than through its columns.—Saginaw (Mich.) News.

Big Ads., Big Sales.

The Sterling Remedy company is using 12,000 publications to advertise Cascarets, and the sales this year will, it asserts, exceed 10,000,000 boxes.

Persistence Brings Success.

Not every advertiser meets with success, yet the most successful merchant in any locality is always one who advertises.—Printers' Ink.

Want Reasons.

People demand reasons, are convinced by reasons and buy because of these reasons.—Shoe and Leather Facts.

GIRL WOMEN.

The general standard of measurement for womanhood is "grown-up-ness." When a girl is emancipated from school and arrives at the dignity of trailing skirts and elaborate hair dressing she is looked upon as a young woman. But nature knows nothing of such standards. When the womanly function is established womanhood is attained according to her standards, and there is need of womanly care and caution. It is girlish ignorance or neglect at this critical time which often results in long years of after misery.

Mothers who perceive the evidences of functional derangement in young girls should promptly have them begin the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, tranquilizes the nerves and tones up the whole system.

"My troubles started during my girlhood," writes Miss Flora I. Greer, of 107 Howe Street, Akron, O., "but did not prove serious until 1894. From that time I did not see a well day. I suffered at every monthly period with terrible headache, irritation of the spine and pains in my heels. I had soreness through my hips and ovaries all the time and constant backache. One doctor would tell me one thing ailed me another would say something altogether different, but they only relieved me. I then wrote you and followed your advice. I took five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, four of 'Golden Medical Discovery' and five vials of 'Pellets.' Have not had a single symptom of my old trouble so far. Can sleep good, work hard, and eat solid and substantial food without distress."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cleanse the bowels and stimulate the sluggish liver.

Little Creatures About Our Homes

IV.—Frogs and Toads.

SINCE the people of this country have begun to imitate the French in that they have taken to eating frogs' legs as among the daintiest of morsels, a new interest has been manifested in the study of this cold blooded batrachian. The frog is an amphibious animal and during the early part of its life lives entirely in the water, and by means of gills obtains from the water the oxygen for the purification of its blood. Later in life it becomes an air breather, with lungs resembling those of the higher warm blooded animals.

In early spring frogs resort to some pool, where the female lays a great number of eggs, a thousand or more, each about the size of a common pin head and all enveloped in an albuminous substance which serves in a measure to protect them. Through this the dark brown eggs are seen as little dots, quite evenly distributed. As the eggs are laid by the female they are arranged in irregular masses by the male. Frogs are ordinarily rather solitary in their lives, but at the breeding season they frequently congregate in large numbers in some sequestered pond. Frogs and toads do not gather at the same place for breeding. The eggs of the toad are arranged by the male in long spirals. The frogs and the toads of this country leave their eggs to be hatched by the warmth of the sun and give their progeny no further attention. If the weather is warm, the eggs hatch in a few days, but in cool weather they frequently require four or even six weeks.

Before leaving the albuminous substance which surrounds the egg the baby frog, which is called a tadpole, resembles a fish and has no appendages except the tail. The embryo frog is then about half an inch long. External gills are very rapidly developed. Water is drawn into the mouth and passed out through these branching gills to furnish air for the purification of the blood. These gills are absorbed in a few days, and the external gills, resembling those of a fish, are formed. About this time the hind legs make their appearance near the root of the tail and grow rapidly, the tail being absorbed quite as fast. The front limbs are now added, and lungs are substituted for the gills, and the little "polliwog" becomes a frog. It has changed from a water breathing to an air breathing animal, and its diet has changed from vegetable to animal.

The largest of the frogs in the United States is the bullfrog, though several other species are common in this country. All of them resemble one another both in appearance and habits. The hind legs are much longer than the front legs, which fact renders walking nearly impossible, but the frog is peculiarly adapted to leaping, not only by the great size and strength of the hind legs, but by the peculiar manner in which it folds them when at rest. It is these large, muscular hind legs that are so much sought after by the epicure, and well they may be, for they are as much more delicate than chicken as that is more delicate than beef. The hind legs are the only parts of the frog usually eaten. The flesh is much more delicate and nutritious in the fall of the year than in the spring, when the frog has just come out of its winter quarters. In some places frogs are now being raised for food. Across the bay from San Francisco is a large ranch upon which several ponds are kept constantly stocked with frogs intended for the city market. The frog has a smooth, moist skin, which readily absorbs oxygen and aids the lungs materially in aerating the blood, so that the frog, though he has lost the gills of his babyhood, can still plunge into the water and bury himself in soft mud and exist for a long time without seeking the open air.

The frog swallows air through a slit in the floor of his mouth much in the same way that we swallow water. He has no ribs to expand his chest and no diaphragm, except a rudimentary one, to be depressed for the enlargement of the chest. In fact, he has no chest, for the whole body cavity is but one. Hence if his mouth were kept open he would suffocate, even while surrounded by an abundance of pure air, especially if his skin were to become dry. The tadpole, being a water breather, has no voice; but, as every one knows, in the frog the vocal chords are well developed, particularly in the male, which has such a complete control over them that his voice varies from a loud croak to a tone so soft that it seems to come from a great distance, even when produced within a few yards of us. The frog is therefore a model ventriloquist.

Frogs have many enemies which prey upon them throughout their lives. It is estimated that not more than one-tenth of 1 per cent live to go into their first winter quarters. If they escape being captured by some enemy, they live twenty years or more.

Among reptiles the serpents are the worst enemies of frogs; among fishes, the pickerel and bass; among birds, the vultures and storks. It is said that frogs breed so rapidly in the pools left by the receding Nile that were it not for the storks, which are there very numerous, they would overrun the whole valley of that historic river.

Frogs are themselves voracious feeders, preying upon insects and their larvæ, worms and other small animals in great numbers and sometimes devouring their own species. The tongue of both the frog and the toad, attached to the front angle of the lower jaw, is several inches long, points backward when not in use and is the instrument used in capturing insects. With its tongue the frog or toad lassoes an insect somewhat as a cowboy lassoes an untamed steer.

These batrachians can live for a long time without food and with but little air, but not for a great number of years, as some would have us believe. After these long fasts they will eat almost fabulous numbers of insects. One writer speaks of having fed a captive toad twenty-three squash bugs and ninety-four caterpillars, each an inch and a half in length, before it turned away to digest its meal. Certain it is that an animal which will devour so many insects in so short a time must be of value to the gardener.

As stated above, each female frog or toad may produce a thousand young in a single season. We need not look far, therefore, to find an explanation of the appearance of such vast numbers of those young creatures occasionally just after a warm shower in the late spring or early summer. We need not accept the impossible statement that they have fallen from the clouds, though it has come down to us from the early Grecian times. The writer when a boy was wandering through the sparsely timbered woods of southern Michigan on a warm day in early May when he came to one of the numerous shallow ponds that [illegible] the whole region, and his attention was attracted by the great number of toads assembled in and about the margin of the quiet pool. It was their breeding season, and many of them were laying their eggs. It seemed that there must be millions of eggs in that pond. I attempted to count the toads, but after getting well along in the hundreds and seeing that I had gone but a short distance around the pond I became discouraged and gave up the attempt. As the pond was thirty or forty rods in circumference, there must have been 4,000 or 5,000 toads.

The five long toes on the hind foot of the frog are connected by a thin membrane, which aids the frog very much in swimming, but the toes on the front foot are neither webbed nor clawed. None of the toes of the toad is webbed. The toad differs from the frog also in living on land except during the egg laying time. The skin of the toad is dry, rough and covered with warts, and its legs are much more nearly equal in size than those of the frog. The toad has been known to live thirty-five years. The frog is well supplied with teeth in the upper jaw, while the toad has none. Both are inoffensive and harmless creatures, and both, the toad especially, are very useful to man in destroying garden pests. Handling toads does not produce warts, as some suppose, nor are these little creatures poisonous. There is a slight exudation from the skin which, if transferred to the eyes, will make them smart temporarily. The toad frequently sheds its outer skin. When it has entirely freed itself from the old coat, it rolls it up in a ball and swallows it. Both frogs and toads crawl into holes or crevices when cold weather comes and sleep quietly there until spring, when they come out very hungry and are soon as active as ever.

The tree frog is a small species which lives an arboreal life, but in the spring it takes to the water, where its eggs are deposited and where the young pass through the tadpole stage. Their toes are supplied with little sucking disks, which aid them in clinging to the underside of leaves and stems.

The "horned toads" are not in the least related to the toads, but are true lizards.

There is a large toad, called the Surinam toad, living in the northern part of South America, which ought to be mentioned, though none of the species lives in the United States. The peculiar breeding habits of this toad make it one of the most remarkable of the entire order. With the female deposits her eggs, the male immediately places them on the mother's back, to which they adhere. A cell, which is covered by a little lid, soon forms over each. In this cell the tadpole passes through all its changes, and when it finally bursts from its prison house it is a complete specimen, much larger than the eggs from which it came. This shows that it must have received some nourishment from the mother while in its temporary home.

The Skin.

Bathing to many persons is a term embodying an expenditure of time and considerable trouble. It is probably because they do not cleanse the skin until it gives visible signs of its needs. Now, the skin is everlastingly throwing off impurities which you cannot always see with the naked eye, but which will be readily found in the appearance of the bath water even when one bathes each day. When you can wear a white collar a few hours without marring its spotlessness where it comes in contact with the skin, you may have some excuse for thinking that you are perfectly clean and not before. The neatest person I ever saw could not boast of such an achievement, for the thing is well nigh impossible. Nature has provided the pores for drainage purposes, and in health they work without ceasing.—Boston Traveler.

The Singing Mouse.

The power of song among the brute creation has so long been associated in our minds with the feathered tribe alone that we do not think of it as belonging to any four footed animals. Yet there is a mouse that sings—why, nobody knows. It is a small animal, with very large ears, which are moved about much while singing, as if that were necessary to the success of the vocal performance. The song is not, as you think, a prolonged squeak with variations, but a succession of clear, warbling notes, with trills, not unlike the song of a canary, and quite as beautiful, though some of the notes are much lower. One great peculiarity is a sort of double song, an air with accompaniment quite subdued. Upon first hearing this one believes that he is listening to more than one mouse, so perfect is the illusion.

The Louis Styles.

It was the French King Louis XI. who invented gold lace, and it was Louis XIV. who ordered all the silk upholsteries of the palace done in white with figures of gold and blue and a touch of red. The louisine silks are named after him, and all the French kings of the name of Louis have had their names brought down to posterity through the invention of some article of dress, whether it be a Louis Quinze heel or a Louis Seize coat, while to Louis Quatorze belongs the honor of a cuff and a hat.

THE BUGS.

See the many, many bugs—
Buggy bugs!
How they flutter through the twilight, causing us excited shrugs!
How they rustle, rustle, rustle,
In the dreamy air of night,
Flipping, flapping on the highway,
Booming, buzzing on the byway,
Under each electric light!
How they dip, dip, dip!
How they zip, zip, zip,
Till they whisk about our whiskers and go mugging at our mugs!
Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs!
Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs!
Oh, the night is two shades darker from the bugs!

All sorts and kinds of bugs!
Fuzzy bugs—
Bugs that humbly beg your pardon; bugs that proudly throw on lugs!
How they flutter, flutter, flutter,
Till some lady gives a shriek,
Till she clutches at her bonnet,
Shouting that a bug's upon it,
For she felt it climb her cheek!
How they wing, wing, wing!
How they sing, sing, sing!
The mosquitoes and the beetles and each buzzy, buggy thing!
Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs!
Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs bugs, bugs!
There's a million miles of breeze containing bugs.

There are June and lady bugs!
Whiskered bugs!
There are bats and fleas and locusts; there are moths in search of rugs;
Bugs that hurtle like a missile,
Bugs that roar and bugs that whistle,
Bugs in many colors tinted;
Bed—let that one be but hinted—
Bugs with faces like a pug!
And they hold a big convention under each electric light.
Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs!
Oh, the bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs, bugs!
What a buzzy, buggy, bumping bunch of bugs!
